THE BOMBAY BANK.—The annual meeting of the proprietors of the Bank of Bombay was held on Monday, 5th August, on which occasion the directors' report of the state of affairs of the bank up to the 30th June last was read. From this statement it appeared that after the payment of the bank's liabilities there would only remain "a balance of Rs. 51,49,000 in favour of the shareholders to represent a capital estimated in February last at Rs. 1,04,50,000." On the same occasion it was unanimously resolved to call on Government to institute a thorough inquiry into the affairs of the bank. The scheme for the amalgamation of the Banks of Bombay and Bengal has been definitely abandoned, and the organisation of the New Bank of Bombay is vigorously being prosecuted; the applications for shares in the new bank increase every day, the number applied for up to August 6th being 15,150. In the Poona branch of the Bank of Bombay a shroff has been detected to have committed enormous frauds, which entail upon the bank the loss of some lacs of rupees, the precise amount not being yet fully ascertained.—Bombay Gazette, Aug. 9.

GOSSIP FROM ABYSSINIA.—We have been favoured with the perusal of a letter from Aden by the last steamer, from which we make the following extract:—"Colonel Merewether has just returned from Mussowah and brings accounts of the Abyssinian captives up to June. All communication between them and King Theodorus is cut off by the rebels, and affairs are becoming in consequence more favourable for the prisoners. Merewether expects to hear of Theodorus having killed himself by drink, for the affairs of his kingdom have become so unsettled that the sceptre seems passing away from his grasp, and he has sought the solace of the potation god to 'drown dull care!' We still expect that a British force will be despatched to Abyssinia, and there are not a few of us here who hope to see field service on the plateaus of Gondar."

STRANDING OF THE SHIP "MERCHANT PRINCE."—We regret that the ship Merchant Prince is ashore on the Choul Khadoo reef, a few miles to the southward of Bombay harbour, on the spot where the Zenobia was wrecked last year, and close to the wreck of the P. and O. Co.'s steamer Jeddo. She went ashore between 10 and 11 o'clock on the morning of August 7, moderate monsoon weather prevailing. The Kennery and Alibaugh life-boats put off to her assistance as well as a number of native craft from the villages in the neighbourhood; their aid, however, was not required, as the ship was deeply imbedded in the mud, and the sea was comparatively calm. Immediately the news reached Bombay a steam-tug was sent to her assistance, but at the hour of going to press she had not returned. The commander of the stranded vessel, Capt. Murchie, in the meantime decided to leave the crew on board and proceed to Bombay, where he arrived last night, having been brought over by Mr. Shuttleworth in the Alibaugh lifeboat. The vessel, at the time he left her, had five feet of water in her hold, and the prospects of getting her off are in consequence considered very slight. While, however, the present moderate weather continues she is not likely to receive much damage, and one of the lifeboats, it is expected, will remain by her should assistance be unexpectedly required. The conduct of the captain in leaving his ship under the circumstances is certainly open to comment. While there was any prospect of saving her he should, we think, have stayed on board, and have sent one of his officers for any assistance he might require; or, in the event of there being no prospects of getting the vessel off, he should have been the last instead of the first to leave her. The Merchant Prince was a vessel of 1,745 tons, belonging to Messrs. William Allison and Co., of Paisley. She left Glasgow for Bombay on April 22, with a cargo of coals, consigned to Messrs. Ewart, Latham, and Co. The cargo is fully insured, and it is believed that the vessel is also insured. —Times of India, Aug. 8.

THE G.I.P. RAILWAY.—The doubling of the line from Egutpoora to Bhosawul is progressing rapidly. Nearly all the earthwork and rock-cuttings have been finished, and a considerable portion of the bottom ballast laid, and if some pressure was put upon the contractors it would doubtless be completed in time for this season's cotton—say by the beginning of December next. But we hear the railway officials have not prepared themselves for this. By some oversight there is not more than sufficient rails, &c., on the ground to finish half the distance, so that it will be difficult to say when this second line will be opened to traffic. Crossings and sidings, however, are in the meantime to be laid midway between all the stations, and this will prevent the great delays to which the traffic is now subject from trains having to cross at stations. The sacrifice of an engine-driver, fireman, and a whole train over the reversing station of the Thull Ghaut does not seem to have had any effect in hastening the construction of catch sidings along that incline. We presume that the proverbial loss of a bishop is awaited before matters mend. There was great scarcity of water along many parts of the line during the past fair season; but as this is nothing unusual, it is surprising to note that no steps have been taken to convey water from some of the rivers to the principal stations. The Taptee is only three miles from Bhosawul, one of the stations where the want of water was much felt.

PUBLIC WORKS.—A stone bridge is in course of construction over the Ghore River at Seeroor, consisting of seventeen arches of 40 feet span, the cost of which will be a little over a lac of rupees. The whole seventeen arches were turned between January and June of this year. Another stone bridge of thirteen 60 feet-span elliptical arches over the Moota Moota at Poona, a little below the Bund, has been almost finished during the past fair season. The last arch was keyed on the 21st May. The cost is close on two lacs. Both bridges have been constructed under the supervision of Captain Sellon, R.E., and, it is said, reflect much credit on that officer's care and skill; the last mentioned more particularly so. —Bombay Builder for August.

CABUL.—The position of the conflicting Ameers in Cabul and Afghanistan does not seem to have materially altered during the past fortnight. If it has changed in any way, the change is not for the better to the recognised Ameer Afzul Khan. A reconciliation seems to have been effected between the ex-Ameer Shere Ali Khan and his able general Fyz Mahomed Khan, whose brother has now been set at liberty. Sirdar Azim Khan appears also to have abandoned his previous position of neutrality, and to have advanced from his province of Candahar to join Shere Ali. The Kohistanes have also declared against Afzul Khan, and some two thousand of them are with his rival, who must have succeeded in his efforts to raise money to pay his mercenaries by the issue of some kind of promissory notes. His forces are gradually being concentrated on Cabul, by three different routes, though it appears that the scene of encounter will be Chareekar—about seventy miles north of that place. One division of his army advances by the Hindoo Koosh main road; another by the Bamin and Gurdan Dewar; and the third by the Kothul. The ex-Ameer was addressing letters to all people of note or influence, calling upon them for support, which many were not disinclined to give, though they would rather wait and watch the result of the struggle before actually committing themselves. The troops at the capital, too, are believed only to be nominally opposed to Shere Ali, and it is expected that his nearer approach will be the signal for their desertion to him. The sooner, therefore, that the impending battle does take place the better it will be for Cabul and Afghanistan—that is if one battle serves to put an end to the horrors of the intestine war and intermittent butcheries which have long been the distinguishing feature of those provinces. —Bombay Times.

DEFAMATION.—At the Bombay Police Court on August 5th Mr. Adolphe Gabriel, dentist, was charged before the acting chief magistrate with defamation in having, while making an application to his worship on July 27th, made statements defamatory of the character of Dr. Lima Abraham La'Mert and Mr. Edward Alfred Davies. The case occupied the Court the whole day, and at its close, at a late hour, Mr. Gabriel was committed to take his trial at the next Criminal Sessions on a charge of defamation under Section 499 of the Penal Code.

SALE OF JEWELLERY.—At a recent sale of jewellery belonging to the estate of Mr. Rustomjee Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy a necklace, formed of a large number of splendid pearls, brought the princely sum of Rs. 40,000; a set of emerald beads, the stones being pierced through and uncut, was sold for no less than Rs. 7,300, the purchaser intending probably to use it as a kind of rosary; a single ear-ring, which has a large pendant diamond, brought Rs. 9,800; a ruby ring was knocked down for Rs. 13,000; and a pair of ruby bangles for Rs. 11,000.

FREEMASONRY.—We understand that all the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Western India (under Scotland) are to be photographed in a group by Messrs. Sykes and Dwyer before the departure of Right Worshipful R. B. Barton, Provincial Grand Master.

THE LATEST FROM ENGLAND.—The P. and O. Co.'s steamer Delhi arrived in harbour on Tuesday evening, 23rd July, and the same company's steamer Malta arrived on the night of August 7, bringing the mail to the 18th July.

THE BHOORE GHAUT VIADUCT.—Since the collapse of the Bhoore Ghaut Viaduct, Colonel De Lisle, Consulting Engineer to Government in the Railway Department, has caused the traffic over the Taptee Viaduct to be stopped. We daresay the G.I.P. Railway Company will feel themselves very much aggrieved at this act of consideration towards the public. A committee has left to inspect the viaduct, consisting of General Rivera, Mr. Rushton, Captain Oldham, and Captain Hancock.

THE BOMBAY SHIPPING COMPANY'S SHIP Defiance, Langlois, master, which arrived here on Monday, 22nd July, from Liverpool, made the run in seventy-four days, which is the shortest passage this season.

The ship Zoroaster, from London, brought out another self-righting lifeboat, built by the National Lifeboat Institution, for use at the harbour of Bombay.

HER MAJESTY'S SCREW FRIGATE Octavia, Commodore Charles F. Hillyar commander, arrived in Bombay harbour direct from Trincomalee on the 26th July.

The ship Howden, Captain Bell, arrived in port, on July 28, having lost her fore-top-mast and fore-top-gallant-masts, while at sea.

THE FRERE LAND AND RECLAMATION COMPANY have made a call of rupees one hundred on each share, payable in three instalments.

THE CASE OF HIS HIGHNESS TOOKAJEE MAHARAJ v. JAIRAM HURRY, for Rs. 13,056, has resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff.

EXTRA ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS.—The Secretary of State, in a recent despatch addressed to the Governor-General in Council, has desired his Excellency to issue instructions to all subordinate Governments to reduce the number of extra assistant commissioners in all non-regulated provinces throughout India, and to give an increase to the pay of those who will remain after this reduction. It appears that in a district there are at present from two to three extra assistant commissioners, and to this the right hon. secretary strongly objects.

LIEUT. T. W. HOGG, appointed to be an Assistant Commissioner in the Central Provinces, is posted to the Saugor District.

INDIAN BONUS QUESTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY NEWS."

SIR,—In May last a deputation waited upon Sir Stafford Northcote, at the India-office, to represent to him the injurious effects a recent order of the Indian Government would have upon the interests of the large number of retired officers of the Indian army who were entitled to claim a refund of the money they had paid towards purchasing the retirement of officers of their regiments, and further instructions were transmitted to the Government of India, which it was hoped would be sufficient to insure to them a realisation of their just claims; but the fifth paragraph of the despatch renewed the difficulty which has from the first existed by directing that deductions should be made for any accelerated promotion obtained by purchasing officers out of their regiments, and in consequence a third form has been sent home to claimants, requiring them to state how much their promotion has been accelerated in each grade; the Indian Government by this means endeavouring to escape the responsibility imposed upon them by the home authorities, although they have repeatedly declared that what they now require is an impossibility. The grievance which has existed since 1861 is, therefore, still unredressed. At first, you will remember, the Indian Government endeavoured to cut the Gordian knot by limiting the refund to the amounts paid in the rank held in 1861, but the injustice of this was so apparent that even official routine could not uphold it. The same result is, however, now to be attained in other ways, unless you, Sir, help to force the Indian Council to do justice. Lord Cranborne intended to do what was right, for he estimated the cost at £160,000. This sum, however, the Council—which is supreme in matters of finance—do not like to part with, and the efforts of the Secretary of State are frustrated by a clog on his despatch rendering it impracticable. Officers did not part with their money to obtain immediate promotion, but to secure a bonus when they retired. This privilege the amalgamation of the services destroyed, but it is surely only right that the Government should refund the sums actually paid. To those acquainted with the rules of the Indian service it is evident that no rule can be laid down for making the calculation required, and the Government are now trying by a side wind to get relieved from paying what they owe, for, while appearing to act justly, they attach such conditions as perpetuate the grievance by requiring repayment of as much as, and indeed in most cases more than they admit to be due. The council seem deaf to remonstrance from whatever quarter it may come, but surely they can be made amenable to public opinion; if not, the sooner the cumbrous machinery is abolished and despotism pure and simple reigns at the India-office the better for the service. Six years have elapsed, during which many officers have retired in the expectation of receiving sufficient to pay their debts, and although their future prospects were destroyed they had determined to vegetate upon the small pensions granted them rather than struggle with the disadvantages entailed upon them, but now unless relief comes, and that speedily, we shall find many officers driven to the Bankruptcy Court through the instrumentality of those whose duty it was to do them justice.—I am, &c., AN ARMY AGENT.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OUDE AND ROHILKUND (LIMITED), LATE INDIAN BRANCH RAILWAY (LIMITED).—A special general meeting of the shareholders of the above company was held at their office on the 28th of August; Mr. W. Dent in the chair. A resolution which was passed at the ordinary general meeting on the 14th of August, to alter the name of the company to the "Oude and Rohilkund Railway Company (Limited)," was confirmed. The capital of this company was guaranteed 5 per cent. interest by the Secretary of State for India on £4,000,000, of which the amount at present subscribed was £1,000,000, in 100,000 shares of £10 each, on which £2. 10s. per share had been paid. The shareholders had the privilege of paying up their shares in full, and converting them into stock. The company had also £50,000 of stock, called the Nulhatee Railway Stock, which was all paid up.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—That most popular place of recreation for denizens of, and visitors to, the metropolis, the Palace at Sydenham, having lately been taken under the immediate patronage of two Oriental potentates—his Imperial Majesty the Sultan and his Highness the Pasha of Egypt (both now munificent subscribers to the funds of the Crystal Palace)—its claims on our attention are enhanced. Indeed, there must be many of our readers to whom occasional references to the varied programmes offered by the Palace, are acceptable. The summer season having been distinguished by musical attractions of a high order, now gives place to an autumn promising a succession of "musical Saturdays" and concerts. Good music, eminent vocalists, and an excellent orchestral band, conducted by the energetic M. Manns, may be said to be en permanence at the Palace; and the subscribers have thus become almost as familiarised with the productions and artists of the Royal Italian Opera and Her Majesty's Theatre as the habitués of those great establishments themselves. Among the miscellaneous amusements we note Mr. W. S. Woodin's periodical visits with his capital entertainments, of which the last, a mimetic "take-off" of the more conspicuous visitors to a German watering-place, is highly amusing. An attempt is now being made to teach the younger habitués at Sydenham the Canadian game of La Crosse, which is a species of hockey or golf. This game, and cricket, are the autumn recreations offered by the beautiful grounds of the Palace. We understand that the restoration of the Eastern Courts in the Palace will be proceeded with, and thus will be revived one of the most interesting features of the noble collection. The Indian and Chinese museums we hope also to see restored.

EXTENSION OF BOOK AND PATTERN POST.—On the 1st of September next, and thenceforward, book packets and packets of patterns or samples of merchandise, may be transmitted by post between the United Kingdom and the undermentioned countries and places by the routes, and at the rates of postage specified, viz.:—Borneo, Japan, Philippine Islands, New Caledonia, Reunion, Madagascar. Via Southampton: not exceeding 4 ozs. in weight, 4d.; above 4 ozs. and not exceeding 8 ozs., 8d.; above 8 ozs. and not exceeding 12 ozs., 1s.; above 12 ozs. and not exceeding 1 lb., 1s. 4d.; every additional 4 ozs., 4d. Via Marseilles: not exceeding 4 ozs. in weight, 6d.; above 4 ozs. and not exceeding 8 ozs., 1s.; above 8 ozs. and not exceeding 12 ozs., 1s. 6d.; above 12 ozs. and not exceeding 1 lb., 2s.; every additional 4 ozs., 6d.—By command of the Postmaster-general.—General Post-office, August 31st, 1867.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for 27,000,000 rupees in bills on India were held on Wednesday, the 4th inst., at the Bank of England. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11½d. on Calcutta and Madras, and 1s. 11¼d. on Bombay. No tenders at these prices were received. The Government have probably been induced to fix the above rates at a comparatively high point, with a view to discourage remittances to the East, and thus keep their balances at Bombay as far as possible intact. Although the cost of the Abyssinian expedition will of course be eventually borne by the mother country, it will entail in the first instance a considerable drain upon the Indian treasury. The preliminary expenditure must already have been large, and even if the expedition is found to be unnecessary, many claims connected with the movement of troops will remain to be settled.

PILOT BOATS FOR BOMBAY.—Two fine pilot boats, intended for the Bombay service, were launched on Saturday from the yard of Messrs. Royden and Son, Liverpool. Each vessel measures 79 feet between perpendiculars, and 90 feet 6 inches over all, with a tonnage, builders' measurement, of 125. The boats, which were named the Sunbeam and the Zephyr, are fore and aft schooner rigged, with raised quarter decks, under which are cabin and dining saloons.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 3.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Euxine, with the heavy portion of the above mails, has arrived. She brings ninety-three passengers, £4,314 in specie, and a general cargo, including 2,244 bales of raw silk, value £190,000 sterling. She experienced fine weather. On the 30th ult., off Burling's Rocks, she spoke the steamer Pera.

DEPARTURE OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 4.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Massilia, Captain Almond, sailed hence this afternoon with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, India, and China. She took out ninety-five first and fifty-four second-class passengers, and on freight a full cargo, including dollars, £24,583. 6s. 8d.; sovereigns, £530; gold thread, jewellery, watches, &c., £1,708. 19s. 6s.; and silver plate, £100.

AS THE COST OF LIVING IN INDIA has been steadily increasing year by year for some time past, and is likely still to increase, it is apparent that what was good ordinary pay prior to 1860 is now not sufficient to induce the better class of men to quit England. With this view the East India Railway Company intend to establish a Provident Fund for the benefit of engine drivers, and they might, we think, advantageously hold out other inducements, such as rewards for economy of fuel, regularity in using, and preservation of their engines, with the same object.

ORIENTAL MANUSCRIPTS

(CHIEFLY PERSIAN),

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

 In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.*

192a. TAZKIRAE 'ALI HAZIN.—"Memoirs of Shaikh 'Ali Hazin," a Kashmerian of distinction, who was the contemporary of Nadir Shah. The work gives a sketch of the life and wanderings of the author. Some thirty years ago it was translated into English by Mr. BELFOUR, under the auspices of the Oriental Translation Society. The MS. is written by the same hand as No. 192, and is in an excellent state of preservation. 4to., pp. 77, ll. 15. Price of No. 192 and 192a together, bound in one volume, £3. 8s.

193. MIFTAHU-L-TARKIB.—"A Key to Composition." A very clear and copious work on Persian Grammar, Rhetoric, and Prosody, by MUNSHI SHIVA RAM, whose poetic name was Janhar. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in A.D. 1827, in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on fine Indian paper. 4to., pp. 330, ll. 19. £2. 2s.

194. KISSA'E KAMRUP.—"The Tale of Kamrup." This is one of the Persian versions of the Indian romance, which we have already mentioned under No. 137. It is the identical copy formerly in the possession of Captain Franklin, and the one from which he made his translation in A.D. 1790. It was purposely transcribed for his use by GHULAM GOS FARUKI, in A.D. 1788. It is in a most perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine glazed Indian paper. Small 4to., pp. 400, ll. 11. £3. 10s.

195. GULISTANI SA'DI.—"The Gulistan of Sa'di." This is a very fine copy of a highly-esteemed work, which we have already described in sundry places. Along with the Gulistan it contains Sa'di's "Book of Risalas," or pithy moral anecdotes, etc. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine straw-coloured Indian paper, with margins richly and tastefully ruled. Small 4to., pp. 167, ll. 16, with ten additional lines written round the margin. £1. 11s. 6d.

196. DIWANI SADL.—This is a good serviceable copy of a work which we have already described under No. 64. In some places it is soiled with damp, but quite legible. It is written in a fair Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper, variously tinted. 8vo., pp. 416, ll. 15. £1. 1s.

197. A'INI AKBARI.—"The Institutes of Akbar." This is a good copy of a work which we have already fully described under Nos. 4 and 5. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a small neat Nasta'lik character, on fine glazed Indian paper, with marginal notes in English. 8vo., pp. 532, ll. 19. £1. 11s. 6d.

198. BAHARI DANISH.—"The Spring Season of Knowledge." This is a fine copy of a popular work which we have already described in more places than one. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Nasta'lik character. Small 4to., pp. 428, ll. 19. £1. 11s. 6d.

199. ANWARI SUHAILI.—This is a very good copy of an esteemed work which we have already described. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on good European paper. It is evidently a collated copy, as it has numerous marginal notes and corrections, also an interlinear translation of the more difficult words. 4to., pp. 825, ll. 15. £2. 12s. 6d.

201. HITOPADESA.—"Salutary Admonition," a translation from the Sanskrit into Persian of the well-known work commonly called "Fables of Pilpay." This is a very literal translation, in a plain and easy style. The work is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper. 4to., pp. 255, ll. 18. £1. 11s. 6d.

202. GULISTANI SA'DI.—"The Rose Garden of Sa'di." This is a very fine copy of a work which we have already repeatedly described. It is in an excellent state of preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character, on good straw-coloured paper, the margins very neatly ruled, and abounding with numerous explanatory notes and various readings. 8vo., pp. 253, ll. 13. £1. 1s.

204. SHARHI DIWANI HAFIZ.—"A Commentary on the Diwan of Hafiz," a very copious explanation of the difficult words and Sufi allusions contained in this favourite author. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written chiefly in Nasta'lik, and in rather a small hand, on straw-coloured Indian paper. It is well bound in morocco, the margin in a few instances slightly worm-eaten, but the whole of the text untouched. 4to., pp. 578, ll. 22. £2. 12s. 6d.

206. AKHLAKU-L-MUHSANI.—"The Morals of the Beneficent." This is a very fair copy of a well-known work by HUSAIN VA'IZ, which we have already described in more places than one. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a very fair Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper. Small 4to., pp. 489, ll. 13. 18s.

207. RISALAT.—"Three Treatises in the Arabic Language on Logic, Syntax, and Rhetoric." The first is entitled "Mizanu-l-Mantik," and written in a bold Ta'lik character, with numerous interlinear notes. The second tract, which is on Syntax, is in a smaller hand, and also abounds with notes. The third tract is written in a very beautiful Naskhi hand, with numerous notes and explanations. 4to., in all pp. 89, ll. various. 15s.

208. DIWANI HAFIZ.—"The Diwan of Hafiz." We have already described this favourite work in more places than one. Suffice it here to say that the present copy is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a very fine and distinct Ta'lik character, on good Indian straw-coloured paper, with margins neatly ruled. It is strongly bound in morocco, and interleaved throughout with good English writing paper. It was transcribed at Agra in A.D. 1642. Small 4to., pp. 403, ll. 15. £3. 8s.

210. MUNTAKHABI SHAHNAMA.—"An Abridgment of the Shahnama," by SHAMSHER KHAN. This is a very fair and serviceable copy of a work which we have already described under No. 82 and elsewhere. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on good Indian glazed paper. It is worm-eaten in a few places on the margin. 8vo., pp. 500, ll. 17. £1. 1s.

211. AKHLAKI MUHSANI.—"The Morals of the Beneficent," by HUSAIN VA'IZ. This is a very fine copy of a well-known work which we have already described under No. 206 and elsewhere. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper, with ruled margins. Transcribed in A.D. 1590. 8vo., pp. 405, ll. 13. £1. 11s. 6d.

212. SHARHU-L-WAKAYAT.—"A Commentary in the Arabic language on the Wakaya," by 'ABD ULLAH IBN MAS'UD. This is a highly-esteemed work on Muhammadan Law. It is in the most perfect state of preservation, written in a beautifully small and distinct Ta'lik character, on finely glazed Indian paper, with margins neatly and richly ruled. The outer margin is very spacious, and is crowded with notes, critical and explanatory. It is neatly bound in the original Oriental binding. Small 8vo., pp. 554, ll. 21. £3. 3s.

213. MI'AT 'AMIL, ETC.—This volume contains the "Mi'at Amil," and several other works on Arabic Grammar. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character, on good glazed Indian paper of various tints, with ruled margin. 8vo., pp. 159, ll. 18. £1. 1s.

214. MAKAZANU-L-AMSAL.—This is a collection of Hindustani and Hindi proverbs, compiled by MUHAMMAD 'ALI (whose poetic name was Sakhnani), in the time of the Marquis Wellesley. The work is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fair Ta'lik character, on fine Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 146, ll. 11. £1. 1s.

215. TAZKIRATU-L-SAFADI.—"Memoirs by Safadi." This volume contains the first portion or livraison of a voluminous collection of extracts, etc., in Arabic, by SHAIKH SALAHU-L-DIN AL SAFADI; partly the compositions of Safadi himself, but chiefly extracts from the more esteemed works of previous Arabian authors. The MS. is in the finest state of preservation, written in a neat Naskhi character, on strong finely glazed Indian paper, with rich Oriental binding. 4to., pp. 876, ll. 17. £2. 12s. 6d.

216. AKHLAKI HINDI.—"Indian Ethics." A Hindustani version of the Persian work called "Mufarrihu-l-Kulub," which we recently described. This MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a very fair Ta'lik character, on fine European paper. 4to., pp. 316, ll. 11. £1. 11s. 6d.

217. MANTIKU-L-TIYAR.—"The Eloquence of the Birds," a well-known moral work, in verse, by the celebrated poet SHAIKH 'ATTAR. This MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, and richly bound in red morocco with silk fly leaves. In one respect it is quite unique, inasmuch as it is fully pointed throughout, which is rarely the case with Persian MSS. It is a fine old copy, transcribed in A.D. 1536. 4to., pp. 824, ll. 15. £3. 18s. 6d.

218. BHAGAVAT PURANA.—This is evidently a Persian version of the tenth Skandh or Section of the Bhagavat Purana, which gives a full and highly poetic account of the birth and juvenile days of Krishna. It is a very favourite work with the majority of the Hindus. Early in the present century it was published in Calcutta in the Hindi dialect under the title of "Prem Sagar," and it has ever since formed one of the text-books for passing the examination in that dialect. This copy is in very good condition, written in a fine Nasta'lik character, on glazed and variously tinted Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 436, ll. 12. £1. 11s. 6d.

219. ZAKHIRA'E ISKANDARANI.—"The Alexandrian Treasure." This (if the Preface tells the truth) is an extremely interesting work. It is dedicated to Alexander the Great, and is supposed to have been written by ARISTOTLE. It was originally composed, of course, in the Greek language, and it lay long concealed in a Christian Temple at Amuriah (in Turkey). It treats of Magic Talismans and the Healing Art, illustrated with numerous and curious pictures. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine straw-coloured glazed Indian paper, very neatly bound in small 4to., pp. 874, ll. 9. £5. 5s.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—“So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases.” From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—“Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed.”

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 18, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.

Agents—Calcutta: SCOTT, THOMPSON, and Co.; W. J. PETTAR, 74, Clive-street; NEW MEDICAL HALL COMPANY, Bombay: TREACHER and Co. Hong Kong: Mr. A. S. WATSON. Madras: J. PEARCE, and Messrs. WEST and Co.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 6s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

“If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office.”—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

“The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price.”—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta Mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 8th, and Madras to the 13th of August. Those from Calcutta are only the ordinary issues. The overland editions seem to be all sent via Bombay.

There was very little news in Calcutta. A few extracts from the Friend of India, which we publish elsewhere, seem to include the principal topics which were engaging public attention. Foremost among these was of course the Famine, and reports and narratives upon the subject were plentiful in the official world. The energy, indeed, with which everybody is finding out what was wanted and what ought to have been done is something wonderful. The steed is stolen, but the stable door is kept carefully closed, and authority is busy looking after the bolts. From Balasore and Pooree we learn that marked general improvement has taken place. Rice was becoming cheaper, and more easily obtained, partly owing to importation, and partly to the excellence of the spring crop. In Balasore the average price is from 12 to 13 Cuttack seers per rupee. During the height of the famine it was about five seers the rupee, it will be remembered, and almost unprocurable even at that rate. In Pooree, the price was from 16 to 17 seers. In some parts the landholders were recalling their villagers, and helping them to make a fresh start in the country. General satisfaction was expressed at Sir Stafford Northcote's despatch on the Famine as made known by telegraph. The Government of India has been asked "what changes in the administration of Bengal it considers desirable."

From Madras we learn that Lord Napier was still absent from the Presidency town, on his tour in the Bellary, Kurnool, and Cuddapah Districts, but in what particular part he was when the mail left seems uncertain. "We may, however," says the Madras Times, "with the greatest confidence hazard the statement that his Lordship is either engaged in the philanthropic work of inspecting some hospital, jail, or latrine, somewhere within the Dan and the Beersheba of the Ceded Districts, or is writing a minute upon it."

Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, the Commander-in-Chief, was to leave Madras by the first steamer in October, and his successor, General McCleverty, was not expected to arrive till about the 10th November. In the interval Major-general Duke, as the senior officer in command of a Division, will be appointed provisional Commander-in-Chief, exercising at the same time the command of the Southern Division.

The Madras Times makes loud complaints of the delay in the distribution of the Banda and Kirwee prize-money. "It now appears," says our contemporary, "that though the Home Government requested that the rolls of claims payable in England might be ready by the 15th May last, some of the rolls did not reach Madras till the end of June, and others not till July. The preparation of the rolls involves a great deal of work. Those now undergoing examination are H.M.'s 12th Lancers (left wing), the 3rd Madras European Regiment, B company 4th battery of Artillery, A troop Horse Artillery, H.M.'s 43rd Regiment of Infantry, the divisional and brigade staff, and the Engineers' department. Simultaneously with the preparation of these rolls, the current work of examining and passing abstracts of the claims of individuals submitted by officers, their agents, and station prize committees is being carried on. Of fifty-nine such abstracts that have been passed, as many as forty-nine pertain to non-commissioned officers and privates at various stations; the remaining ten abstracts are those of commissioned officers. It is expected that the whole of the rolls that have to be sent to England, with the exception of that of H.M.'s 43rd Regiment, will be despatched by the present mail."

It is stated that the Local Government forwarded their Municipal Bill to the Viceroy without any allusion to the popular agitation against the measure, and this notwithstanding that the petition has been so numerous and respectably subscribed to, as will be seen from a statement in another column. Lord Napier appears to have suggested something of the sort, but the other members of Government seem to have looked upon a reference to the document as infra dig. "It is a pity," says the journal already quoted, "that Lord Napier did not insist upon his suggestion being carried out, as the motives of the Government in pretending to ignore what has taken place may be misunderstood. Under any circumstances Madras has not heard the last of the Municipal Bill, for in case Sir John Lawrence gives it his sanction, it will most certainly be forwarded to the East India Association in London; while if it is referred back to the local Government for reconsideration, its further discussion in the Council will be sure to cause considerable excitement."

The Government of India have supported Colonel Fytche in his crusade against official immorality in Burmah, but have, it is declared, characterised his circular as "indiscreet." It appears that the Bishop of Calcutta, in his late tour through the province, saw a great deal more than pleased him in the mode of life prevalent among many Government officers, and had already called the Viceroy's attention to the subject. Sir John Lawrence intended to have dealt with the evil in a different manner, but Colonel Fytche has been too fast for him.

The decision of the Court of Enquiry upon the loss of the Terzah, at Bombay, is to this effect:—"The Court is of opinion that the loss of the vessel is solely attributable to the captain and officers having no knowledge of the existence of the Kennery light, and therefore mistaking it for the outer floating light, as shone in the evidence. Looking to all the facts before it, the Court is of opinion that under the circumstances no blame attaches to Mr. Anderson, the commander of the Terzah, nor to the officers, for the unfortunate accident that resulted in the total loss of that vessel. The Court cannot help remarking on the praiseworthy conduct of the crew, as evinced by them in a time of imminent danger, when the vessel struck and was rapidly going to pieces. The preservation of the lives of many of those who reached the lifeboat, after a line had been fastened to her and the ship, was brought about by the brave conduct and praiseworthy exertions of the seaman, Meadow Croft. The Court cannot speak too highly of the services of Mr. Shuttleworth and his Coolie boatmen, rendered under circumstances of great difficulty and risk to their own lives, in proceeding to the rescue of the crew of the Terzah in a heavy sea, and in weather like that which prevailed on the day of the wreck; and it is gratifying to find that the praiseworthy efforts of that gentleman and the boat's crew were so successful, that fourteen men, including the captain, were safely landed by the lifeboat. The Court would respectfully impress on Government the urgent necessity for some effectual measures being adopted to render the existence of the Kennery light more widely and universally known among commanders of vessels than is the case at present. It appears that the majority of commanders of vessels arriving daily at this port direct from England have no knowledge of the Kennery light; and under these circumstances the light, particularly during the bad weather of the south-west monsoon, instead of being (as it certainly is to those who know of its existence) a certain and unerring guide to ships entering the port in safety, leads vessels to their destruction. During the last two months several vessels, more fortunate than the Terzah, have narrowly escaped shipwreck for want of knowledge of Kennery light."

The Cashmere libel case, the third of the "Lahore abominations," has been decided technically in favour of Hemraj, the plaintiff, but virtually against him, for the Court has decreed him Rs. 200 instead of Rs. 25,000, which he claimed. Dr. Leitner, the defendant, acted as his own counsel.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which is due in London on the 20th inst.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.

The telegram announcing the release of the Abyssinian captives was very generally credited in London last week, and some of the journals urged that the preparations for the expedition should be stopped.

The Standard of Friday last made the following statement on the subject:—

No further information has been received by the Government respecting the fate of the prisoners in Abyssinia. A telegram was despatched from the Foreign-office to Constantinople on Wednesday, on the subject, but up to a late hour last night no answer had been returned. Under these circumstances, the authorities have no alternative but to push forward the preparations for the expedition with the utmost vigour. It is, of course, possible that the rumoured intervention of the Armenian bishop may have been successful; but it is, to say the least of it, unsatisfactory that the Foreign-office received no intimation of a fact of such importance, either from its representative at Constantinople or from any other accredited source, and that the report has reached us from Constantinople, and not from Suez or Aden. The position of the Government is, no doubt, one of great embarrassment. On the one hand, to relinquish all preparations at this moment would be to postpone the expedition almost for another twelve months; on the other hand, to carry them on in the face of the report, which has received such general credence, exposes them to the charge of incurring useless expenditure—a cry which is already raised in the columns of the Liberal press. We doubt not, however, that public opinion will sustain them in their resolution to be prepared for any emergency. That is the most prudent, and, in fact, the only course for a British Government to pursue.

We believe the arrangements for the expedition are now nearly complete, and that the following are the principal commands:—Sir Robert Napier will be in supreme command, civil and military. Under him there will be two divisional commanders. The 1st division will be under Sir Charles Staveley, the 2nd under Colonel Malcolm. Lieut. Colonel Morewether will command the cavalry, with the local rank of colonel.

Captain Tryon, R.N., will be at the head of the transport service, under Commodore Heath, who commands the station; and Colonel Clark Kennedy will have the organisation and charge of the mule-transport service.

There has been a great deal of advice tendered to the Government by experienced and inexperienced writers, but we think we may venture to state that most of the practical suggestions that have been made had been anticipated by those who are responsible for the arrangements. It has been the great object of the home authorities to leave to Sir Robert Napier the entire control of the whole expedition, to give him every support, and to comply with all his requirements. So thoroughly practical a soldier may safely be relied upon not to insist upon any inordinate display of force, or to neglect any precautions necessary for the efficiency of the expedition. If necessary, the thing will be well and thoroughly done. A contemporary stated that Sir Stafford Northcote returned to town on receipt of the telegram; this is incorrect. Sir Stafford Northcote has been too busy with the work of organisation to be absent from town, except during the three or four days when the Duke of Buckingham was in London. To-day, we believe, Sir John Pakington will succeed the Indian Secretary as the Minister in town.

On Saturday the same journal added:—

A telegram from Alexandria to the Foreign-office confirms the doubts we ventured to express yesterday as to the reported release of the prisoners in Abyssinia. If the truth could be ascertained anywhere, it must have been at Cairo, whither undoubtedly the first news would have come. But we learn that at Cairo nothing was known about the report, and the Armenian patriarch who was alleged to be the principal agent in the affair had heard not one word from the bishops he had sent into Abyssinia. Within the last two years many rumours have been set afloat about the release of our countrymen, and the last seems to be as unfounded as any. And we fear that even the hopes that were grounded on the earlier telegrams, to the effect that the captives were cut off from the Emperor, are equally illusory. It must be borne in mind that the prisoners were in two bodies, the one, the more numerous, being at Debra Tabor, the other at Magdala. According to our latest information the Emperor was at the former place, about five days' march from Magdala, with the country so disturbed that the transmission of news was impossible. As to the fate of the prisoners at Debra Tabor, we have been left in obscurity for months. But we believe those best acquainted with the country, with the Emperor's resources, and the forces the rebels could dispose of, have very little doubt that Theodore could, without difficulty, get to Magdala whenever he wished; so that it would be premature to express any confidence even as to the release of one of the two parties. At present there seems nothing left to us but to fight our way to their prisons.

A telegram dated Constantinople, Wednesday, and published this morning, confirms the impression now generally entertained. It says:—

The Levant Herald of the 3rd inst. publishes intelligence of the liberation of the Abyssinian captives at the intercession of Bishop Isaac, as having been telegraphically received by the British Embassy. The same paper of the 5th inst. contradicts the news, saying that no such intelligence had reached the British Embassy.

The editor of the Levant Herald, who dates from the Reform Club, London, in the meantime wrote to the papers declaring that the Levant Herald could not have made the statement without proper foundation, and throwing the responsibility of the report upon Mr. Reuter. To this Mr. Reuter replies, in a letter published this morning, to the following effect:—

With reference to the telegram from Constantinople on the subject of the Abyssinian prisoners, which I sent you on the 4th instant, I beg to say that I have made inquiries on two successive days, by telegraph, to ascertain the source from which my agent obtained the news, but as yet I have received no reply, owing probably to the telegraphic communication being at present somewhat irregular.

Full, and I hope satisfactory explanations will, however, come by the next or following mail; and as soon as they are received I will at once communicate them to the press. In the meantime I may state, in justice to my agent, that I have always found him most careful and cautious in transmitting intelligence, and that all he has sent hitherto has proved accurate.

There seems no reason to doubt that the Levant Herald circulated the report, which it is now equally certain was without foundation.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THURSDAY, September 12, 1867.

EMPLOYMENT OF NATIVES IN THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Was published in a recent number the report of a deputation from the East India Association to Sir Stafford Northcote on this subject. The Association recommend that greater facilities than now exist should be afforded for the admission of the people of the country to the ranks of its administration; and they propose, as the best means of accomplishing this object, that the competitive examination for a portion of the appointments should be held in India, the candidates being afterwards required to pass a final test in this country. In the principle advocated we cordially concur; but it does not seem quite clear how a line is to be drawn at a "portion of the appointments," seeing that the competition is not for special offices, but for the general service of Government. It would, therefore, be necessary, in order to carry out the views of the Association, to make the rule inclusive as far as natives are concerned; and to this plan we see no objection. It has to be sure been proposed—so Sir Stafford Northcote told the deputation—that certain appointments should be exempted from the ordinary rule, and be available for competition in India alone. But this arrangement would surely be unjust to competitors in this country, by limiting the sphere of their employment—already greatly reduced by the formation of the Staff Corps, and the appropriation of so many appointments to the members of the Bar. It was prophesied in India when the competition system was first introduced, that the next change would be to cut off as many appointments as possible from the regular members of the service, in order that patronage might be given to outsiders; and the tendency, as we have seen, has been in this direction. The policy, as far as it has gone, is doubtless beneficial; but to extend it so as to further lower the value of the service would be mischievous in the highest degree. We see already the difficulty of getting first rate men to commit themselves to an Indian career, and to deprive that career of any of its present attractions would necessarily aggravate the evil. Far better would it be to adopt the second alternative mentioned by the Indian Secretary, and grant scholarships to enable natives to come and finish their education in England, passages being provided for them in the Government transport ships. By this means the number of candidates would be doubtless increased, but there would be no ground for complaint of injury to the service.

But this concession, we fear, would not satisfy the natives. What they want is to be allowed to obtain the qualification by examination in India, without the necessity for a visit to England; and this is precisely what we trust will not be granted to them. Setting aside the discouragement which would be given to candidates at home by such an arrangement—resulting in the certain deterioration of the class of competitors—we must steadily keep in view the main fact that something more than mere educational training is required, and that this cannot be obtained by any native without a sojourn in this country. "A Native of Bombay," who writes upon this subject to the Morning Herald, reflects no doubt the general opinion of his countrymen when he makes remarks like the following:—

"No native, however intelligent, able, and distinguished, can be promoted from the uncovenanted or lower to the covenanted or higher service. Although a native is by a recent law eligible for the post of judge of the highest court, yet he cannot be promoted to the office of assistant or Zillah judge, because by virtue of a general law all the higher posts in the Indian civil service are the exclusive property of that privileged class of public servants who are sent out from this country. It is high time that such anomalies and impediments should be removed. The door for the admission of the natives into the covenanted civil service of India is open in theory, but in practice it is effectually closed by compelling them to come over to this country and to cross barriers and encounter difficulties which are almost insurmountable. This is an undeniable fact, for, during the period of twelve years that has elapsed since the competitive examinations for the Indian civil service have been instituted and held in this distant country, only one native out of two hundred millions has succeeded in passing through the ordeal."

All this is very well put, and the writer advocates the claims of his countrymen in a fair and proper spirit. But he naturally does not perceive the real requirement of the case—that the holders of important public offices in India should appreciate the principles of the ruling power and feel with it a sympathy which they are never likely to acquire without a residence in this country. The latter point may be disputed. It may be said that there are crowds of English in India, very fair representatives of the nation, and that living among them is sufficient training of the kind. But the two modes of experience are not quite the same in result. There is a class feeling in India of a kind which is unknown in England; and a native has no chance of understanding us as a nation unless he comes among us and breathes the fresh air of our public life. Without this advantage his ideas will always be local and contracted; he may have an intimate acquaintance with his district, but he will have no idea of the empire; he may perform his work with accuracy and punctuality, but he will fail to apprehend the higher duties of administration.

That a concession will be made before long to the wishes of our native fellow-subjects on this head there is good reason to suppose; but we trust that it will not be carried to the point of confining examinations for the Indian service to that country alone. We live in days when statesmen are somewhat prone to committing what are familiarly called "faults on the right side," and when a little healthy intolerance here and there may become a desirable drag upon the "wheels of progress," which may otherwise run away with the state coach!

THE PROPOSED RAILWAY FROM LAHORE TO PESHAWUR.

In his last report upon Indian railways Mr. Juland Danvers described three projected lines, which have for their object the extension of communication with the Upper Provinces. The first commences at Baroda, on the present Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway, through Neemuch and on to Delhi. The second, called the Indus Valley line, is to unite the existing Sind and Punjab Railways, providing by this means a continuous communication from the port of Kurrachee to Calcutta, via Hyderabad, Mooltan, Lahore, Delhi, and Allahabad. The third is a line from Lahore to the North-West Frontier at Peshawur. The latter, on the ground that it is principally important for political purposes, has been disallowed for the present by the Home Government, on the recommendation of Sir John Lawrence, inspired of course by Mr. Massey, who dreads the financial responsibility involved.

The wisdom of this decision has been called in question by the Pall Mall Gazette, and we cordially concur with our contemporary in the opinion that the political urgency of the case should be considered paramount to financial considerations. In urging this view of the question our contemporary takes for its text an article in the Revue des Deux Mondes, by M. Lejean, a writer who, basing his conclusions upon local experience, points out the necessity for railway communication with the frontier for the purpose of enabling us to mass troops in that direction whenever the occasion shall arise—and how soon it may arise, according to present appearances, we need scarcely point out. The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab strongly recommended the line, as M. Lejean is well aware; and that writer takes it for granted that the project is now in course of execution. But he reckoned without being aware of the later policy of Sir John Lawrence, which is as timid as it once was bold—as weak as it once was strong. The self-reliant ruler of the Punjab, transferred to the supreme authority, is as thoroughly in the hands of “his advisers” as was Lord Canning in the early days of the mutinies. So, instead of telling Mr. Massey that means must be found to warrant the Government guarantee, and assuring Sir Stafford Northcote of the political urgency of the case, which no man should know better than the present Viceroy, he takes the easy course of advising the postponement of the line until some doubtful day when its construction will be quite convenient. Now, as the Pall Mall pithily puts it, there is no reason why the work should not be at once set about, except that it is not yet too late. The line is only 279 miles in length, and the money for the purpose can now be obtained in England, which would not be the case after the necessity had arisen. The material conditions of the case, as put by the writer referred to, amount to these:—The present communication between Lahore and Peshawur consists of what is called a “first-class road,” intersected for four rivers which are also “first-class,” and unbridged. Each of these streams, when most accommodating—that is to say in the dry season—takes the unincumbered individual passenger some hours to cross, while in the rains they are quite capable of detaining him days. The difficulties which they would oppose to the march of an army with all its Indian impedimenta may be therefore imagined. On the other hand, the line for a railroad has been carefully surveyed, and elaborate estimates for its construction have been compiled by an eminent civil engineer. Both the survey and the estimates have been scrutinised and finally endorsed by the Chief Military Engineer of the Public Works Department. There is nothing, therefore, to stay the immediate progress of the work but the sanction of Government and the raising of the funds. But if the entire undertaking be not proceeded with at once, a partial measure is suggested which the most extreme prudence might surely permit. A railway between Lahore and Peshawur must cross two of the great Punjab rivers—the Ravee and the Indus—at the precise point where they are already intersected by the Great Trunk Road. The bridges over these two rivers should, therefore, be at once constructed, on the principle of that over the Jumna at Allahabad, if only in the interest of the existing road, but with the certainty that they will be ultimately available for the railroad also. It would be better, too, if the bridges over the Chenab and the Jheelum were also proceeded with, in order that the whole length of the line might be completed at the same time; but the minimum suggestion is at any rate a sound one, which, failing the larger policy, we should be glad to see adopted.

The writer anticipates that the line would not prove so commercially unprofitable as has been alleged, as some salt traffic might be expected upon at least a portion of it; but political considerations, as we have said, claim paramount attention in this case, and it is to be hoped that, at whatever cost of present convenience, they will not be overlooked.

NAVAL ARRANGEMENTS.—ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—The naval arrangements in connection with the Abyssinian expedition in the Indian seas will be under Commodore Heath. Commander Tryon will have the Transport Service from India to Massowah, or whatever port may be decided on as the base of operations and depôt station. Colonel Clark Kennedy will have the control of the Land Transport depôts and the transport generally, and Colonel Ross, who is charged with the overland route arrangements in Egypt, will no doubt have full scope for his great experience and abilities.—Army and Navy Gazette.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—The Terrible, 21, paddle-wheel frigate, Captain John E. Commerell, C.B., V.C., will leave Spithead on Saturday next for Alexandria, with stores, &c., for the expedition to Abyssinia, and will, it is expected, proceed direct to her destination, probably without stopping at Gibraltar or touching at Malta, except for the release of a steam mooring lighter, which she will take in tow with her and leave outside the harbour. The naval brigade, which will be formed of volunteers from the crews of ships on the Mediterranean station, will be forwarded to the Terrible in a special steamer, and will be added to those of her own crew. The Terrible is filling up with stores and coal at Spithead with all possible despatch.

CHINCHONA.—Mr. Broughton, the recently appointed analytical chemist, has, in the course of his experiments on the chinchona of the Neilgherry plantations, been lately operating on the bark and leaves of plants in their fresh green state, before being subjected to those processes of drying and transit which it is believed considerably modify their chemical nature. In an analysis of C. Officialis var Condaminea he found the bark yield 4.48 per cent. of alkaloids or 2.05 of quinine, and 2.03 of chinchonidine and chinchonine, and on several analyses of the bark C. Officialis var Crispa—a variety which has been condemned by Mr. Howard as not worth cultivating—he found it contain an average of 3.71 per cent. of alkaloids. This latter is not, therefore, essentially inferior to the best grown barks. Mr. Broughton further found that bark grown under partial shade yields less chinchonidine and more quinine than when produced in positions directly exposed to the sun light, and that the leaves and fruit of these varieties are medicinally worthless. Other of Mr. Broughton's experiments have resulted in the discontinuance of planting one of the species of chinchonas now cultivated, and to the extended cultivation of others. Further experiments are in progress for determining the best season for cropping the bark on a large scale; the effects of mowing the barks of the various kinds, the influence of soil on the formation of the useful properties of the chinchona, and others of similar interest; but of course it will be some time before the results now on record can be reduced to rule.—Madras Times.

BENGAL.

BARBARISM IN NICOBAR.

The accounts received from the Nicobar Islands per H.M.'s steamer Wasp present a wretched picture of barbarism within comparatively a stone's throw of the richest dependency of England's crown. We are near neighbours to islanders who, if not absolutely cannibals, are at least savages in their customs and modes of life; and we have been aware of this fact for a series of years without adopting any step to train them to habits of civilisation. Indeed, by our passiveness and inactivity, we have encouraged them in the practice of that which is most abhorrent to our ideas, schooled as they are to the principles of good government and social peace and security.

The Penang Gazette gives us a narrative of the horrors disclosed by the Wasp, far exceeding all we have yet heard of the barbarities practised by Chinese or Malay pirates; and all this has gone on for years unpunished, we may say, unnoticed. Retributive justice has been slow to track out the murderer, and to teach him a lesson of moderation and humanity, and this almost upon the threshold of political progress and social enlightenment. When thrilling tales of bloodshed, of savage violence and presumptive cannibalism are reopened, when recent events have disclosed scenes of barbaric cruelty and inhuman butchery, and we can no longer close our eyes to the demonstrated fact that monsters in human form are practising the worst form of cruelty towards those cast by the warring of the elements upon their inhospitable shores, we wake up from our apathetic slumbers, and institute inquiries into the truth of what facts have borne out for years. It is now only, when public spirit is roused to indignation, and makes its voice heard through the press, that Government bethinks itself of taking action in matters which have been neglected only too long. Of late years, when vessels have been reported as missing in the Bay of Bengal, and the presumption is strong that they have been stranded on some one of the islands in the Andaman or Nicobar groups, the fate of their crews has not been deemed a subject of sufficient interest to excite a spirit of inquiry, and, for aught we know to the contrary, their bones may even now be bleaching on the sands, under a tropical sun, of one of those very islands where the tragedy was lately enacted by which the fate of the Assam Valley's men was brought to light. Ships have been cast away, their human freight has disappeared, and not a vestige been discovered of men or ships; probably, most probably, the castaways have shared the horrors of protracted suffering, and finally been sacrificed as a holocaust to savage orgies during a cannibalistic saturnalia. Such is the inference we may reasonably draw from the revelations made by the officers of the Wasp, when investigating into the murder of the brig Futteh Islam's crew, and the remorseless cruelty believed to have been perpetrated by the savages who inhabit the Nicobar Islands. At Trinkut the Wasp observed two vessels, the Rattlesnake, flying English colours though owned by the Sultan of the Maldives, and the Harriet, of Penang. These were both reported to be there on a trading expedition, and it is said that the natives menaced an attack upon the Rattlesnake on the Wasp's departure. It was the commander of this last-named trader who reported having seen a white woman on the island when he was there last November. This is highly probable from a circumstance related by the journal from which we take our data. “About six years ago,” so says the Penang Gazette, “a ship was wrecked on these islands, the captain and crew murdered by the natives, the captain's wife and two children taken on shore, and the ship plundered. The fate of the poor woman is sad enough; she was passed from one to another of the tribe according to their wishes, the children being secluded. When the poor lady was seen and spoken to by the captain of the Rattlesnake, the natives probably got alarmed at the consequences of her being discovered, and the story goes that these miscreants gave her poison in the shape of a well-known poisonous fish, ikan buntai. It was not sufficient to kill her outright, and the sufferings she endured caused her to scream and cry out so much that one of the chiefs was forced, for his own comfort, to take her into the jungle—he returned without her, and she was never seen more!" This melancholy episode occurred last November, and must have been communicated to the Straits authorities shortly after, but we do not hear of its having been noticed officially, nor, indeed, do we perceive any stir made in the matter till now, that repeated acts of unpunished and audacious barbarity have evoked an investigation! The Wasp has conveyed three men and a woman as prisoners to Penang; amongst them a man calling himself Francis, who confesses to having lived with a white woman for four months. How many others there may be in captivity on these islands it is impossible to say.

More than two years ago a brig was captured at the Great Nicobars, the captain and crew murdered, and a lady and two children landed. The fate of these last has never been ascertained, though it is supposed that the lady is still alive, and not improbably undergoing the same treatment as the one so foully dealt with by a chief in the jungle.

In January, 1854, a three-masted schooner called the Baillie Nicol Jarvie, well-known in Calcutta in former years as a coast trader, left Penang for Rangoon. She has never been heard of since, and is thought by many to have fallen into the hands of the Nicobar savages. It has since been reported that Mrs. Cowie, the captain's wife, was seen in possession of the islanders, but there seems to be some obscurity as regards the statement, owing to a confusion of dates. It would be more satisfactory to learn that she had met her grave in the sea. Who could wish an existence for her, than which death were doubly welcome?

In the same month of the year following, James Donovan, master of the Arrogant, of London, writes from Trinkut:—"The ship is now abandoned, being full of water. I have brought my crew to Nangcowry, trusting to charter a native craft to take us to some civilised place. We are now entirely in the power of the natives." His hopes were vain; neither himself nor any one belonging to his ship have ever been heard of since. Is it possible to disguise the more than presumption that they also have fallen victims to savage ferocity? With such facts before us pointing to conclusions which we cannot in reason avoid; with the bloody drama in which the crew of the Assam Valley took such an unhappy part in the Andaman islands, can it longer be doubted how we should deal with these bloodthirsty island savages? Is the right arm of the Government shortened that it can no longer strike and root out this iniquitous herd of cannibal butchers from the very doorsteps of our strongholds? Or are we perpetually to revive the stories which have recently yielded such an abundant crop of misery and desolation, and rest satisfied with official investigations and routinised tardiness? The atrocities we have enumerated had their beginning twelve years ago, and it has taken that time, short of a few months, to convince the Government of the necessity for an investigation. We learn that the harbour between Nungcowry and Camorta is one of the finest in the world, completely landlocked, and easy of entrance, with deep water anchorage for vessels of any draft, and sufficiently commodious to admit a large fleet of first-class ships. Now with this harbour in our possession, contiguous as it is to almost every place of resort on the East and West coasts up or down the bay of Bengal, within easy distance of the majority of ports touched at in ordinary coast commerce, it is surprising we have neglected our chances of utilising it in some way. We could at least establish a naval depot there, similar to the one we had at Trincomalee, for naval stores, and send round a Government cruiser periodically on special reconnoitring service. Nor, indeed, do we see any reason why the Nicobar group could not be converted into a small sister convict settlement to the Andamans, why a naval dockyard could not be built, and vessels put in there to refit and re-provision. With convict labour, and the exercise of some little management in economising materials and keeping up a supply of requisite stores, we see no reason to doubt the accomplishment of a great deal in this wise, did the Government only expend sufficient energy and perseverance in the project. The advantages offered to vessels for refitting are incalculable, while as a harbour of refuge its facilities are widely acknowledged. We think the plan so feasible, so easy of attainment, that our only wonder is it has never suggested itself to the authorities. How it is we have suffered things to continue as they are for the space of nearly twelve years we leave to the Government to explain. Wrecked ships have been plundered, their crews murdered, captives detained and ill treated without let or hindrance; and to what extent these practices have been suffered it is impossible to determine from the insufficient data before us; and now when the strange revelations fall upon our bewildered senses we promise to consider the matter when convenient, and meanwhile take half measures to ferret out what would never have been repeated, had our precautions been even of the most ordinary kind. We are glad, however, to perceive even from the small amount of interest already manifested, that the Government gives promise of some tangible movement ere long, by which the Nicobar depredators and their fellow marauders of the adjacent islands will be taught to respect our prestige in the Indian seas, and to wake up their savage intellects to an apprehension of the danger they incur in molesting the waifs of the ocean, who, through stress of weather otherwise, may be driven to seek shelter on their unwelcome shores.

The geographical position of these islands is such as to obviate the necessity for any large outlay in utilising them to some of the purposes we have mentioned; they are accessible to near and speedy communication with the Straits Settlements on the east, and within moderate distance of Madras on the west, whilst communication with Rangoon, or even Calcutta, would by no means be difficult or productive of delay, in matters which required speedy adjustment. We have, therefore, very little excuse to offer if we delay any longer in using those means within our power by which we may in time convert an aggressive race into peaceful traders and agriculturists, and protect the interests of our commerce on the eastern seas as well by the suppression of piracy, and of the indiscriminate slaughter of mariners, whom the winds and waves may cast upon the islands with which the Indian ocean abounds, as by fortifying our positions in the islands, and by the help of scientific culture inaugurating a new era in the history of the Indian Archipelago. The time has come for the Government to see the necessity for action; it has slumbered in its "masterly inactivity" long enough, and can no longer refuse to protect the interests of those who hold it responsible for their safe transport on the seas this side the Cape. A tenth portion of the sum annually wasted in India by official incapacity and folly would suffice to furnish the Government with a harbour unrivalled in its facilities as a naval depot, and possessing sufficient capacity to accommodate half the shipping of Calcutta.—Indian Daily News, July 20.

BANK OF BENGAL.—The withdrawal of the Bank of Bengal from the negotiations initiated by the ruined Bank of Bombay is a subject of regret to all who can appreciate a really imperial scheme, but it is not to be wondered at. The conduct of the latter has been consistently bad from first to last. The public will be satisfied with no mere friendly commission of inquiry, after such a scandal as the loss of nearly two millions sterling of capital and reserve belonging to the unfortunate shareholders. We have now the astounding disclosure that another 53 lakhs are gone, after parading before the public, so recently as February last, that Rs. 1,24,50,500 of the capital was intact, and that Government may consider the present scrupulous statement, which the directors make with confidence, as sufficient, and may not hesitate to renew their agreement with the Bank for one year. They assume it to be a low estimate, and beseech the Government to note the fact that the capital left intact was double of what it used to be! How reliable are the statements of the directors may be judged by going back to their own reports since August, 1865. Then we are told that, taking an unfavourable view of matters, the entire losses would not exceed 30 lakhs. At the meeting of shareholders in August the chairman stated that out of the 35 lakhs advanced on shares, from 6 to 7 lakhs were lent on the shares of the Bombay Reclamation Company, and 8½ lakhs on those of the Elphinstone Land Company, and the balance on shares in chartered banks. So flourishing was the state of affairs that in December following a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum was declared. In August, 1866, the directors, however, feel themselves obliged to report that the bank's capital is encroached on to the extent of 50 lakhs, but in making that estimate they request their shareholders to bear in mind that in valuing the bank's assets they have taken all shares at panic prices, and, in the case of bankrupt estates, the lowest possible estimate of dividends. By October they find matters worse and obtain power to reduce the bank's capital by one half of Rs. 1,04,50,000. Now the assurance is given that, at last, the worst state of matters is only 53 lakhs more. What is the value of such estimates? The commission of inquiry must be above all local influences and of the most impartial character.—Friend of India, Aug. 8.

THE HOOGHLY RIVER TRUST has miserably collapsed, as all predicted, and as it deserved to do. The trust, in its present form, was a pet of Sir Cecil Beadon's. He stuck to it in spite of the Chamber of Commerce, the press, and even the Government of India, which was weak enough to sanction it. And now it is moribund. Bad though its constitution was, a good head might have made it useful with such an engineer as Mr. Leonard; but Mr. Stuart Hogg has too much to do in his proper position in the municipality, and the mercantile members would take no interest in a body against which they had vainly protested. The last stroke has been the veto of an Act of the Bengal Council, amending that which incorporated the trust, and the refusal of the Government of India to lend it money. In disgust, Mr. Leonard has reverted to his former office under Government, and will now carry out his plans for clearing the Hooghly with the assistance of the Agitator steamer and dredge. Meanwhile he has left plans and suggestions of value. He has shown how, by an expenditure once for all of £90,000 on jetties and boat accommodation, extending over one and a half years, the Trust would derive at the least an income of £90,000 a year, while the whole cost of the establishment would be only £8,000 a year. But the miserable abortion which the late Lieutenant-governor left behind him could not manage this. The Hooghly Trust, like the Orissa famine and Bhootan blunders, shows the folly and culpability of the powerful Government of India supporting an incompetent local administration, in opposition to its own better judgment and a unanimous public opinion. Calcutta must now set about a new River Trust, to which Mr. Grey should give his attention immediately on his return from Assam. It is the worst of bad rulers that they leave their evil deeds to work after they have gone, honoured with titles and salaried with lakhs.—Friend of India, Aug. 8.

RUSSIA IN CENTRAL ASIA.—The translations from the official papers of Moscow and St. Petersburg must be read in the light of the "brilliant victories" of the Russians, and submission of the Ameer of Bokhara a month later. These victories show how little confidence is to be placed in official announcements in Russia any more than in France, when there is a strong motive to colour the intelligence. It will be seen that, in the absence of leaders like Romanovski and Tcherniaeff, a body of Bokharians under Sadyk—the hereditary enemy of Russia on the steppes, being the son of Kenisar Kasimoff, the Schamy of the Khirghiz—nearly cut to pieces some seventy Cossacks sent against them, and for the moment arrested communication between Forts 1 and 2, that is, between Orenburg and Tashkend, pillaging the auls or settlements of the Russian Khirghizes. The Ameer of Bokhara relied, but it seems in vain, on the assistance of the Khan of Khiya. It is for the interest of the Khan to maintain his tributary relation to Russia, and to see Bokhara at war with the Czar, for thus only will all caravans again pass through his territory. Russia, as we know by telegram, has taken a splendid vengeance under the very walls of Samarkand, and all Bokhara is at her feet; while Persia, her ally, is marching on Meshed and grasping at Herat. The eagles are gathering over the carcase of Central Asia, but as yet the lion only growls sleepily.—Friend of India, Aug. 8.

THE NATIONAL BANK.—Telegraphic advices from Calcutta state that the directors of the National Bank of India (Limited) have declared a dividend for the half-year ended June 30 last, at the rate of 3 per cent. and a bonus of 1 per cent., making a distribution equal to 8 per cent. per annum. The reserve fund has been increased by £8,000, and the sum of £1,400 has been carried forward to the next half-year's account. By the unanimous resolution of the shareholders it has been arranged to transfer the direction of this bank from Calcutta to London, and to register the company under the English Companies' Act of 1862. An influential board has already been formed in London, and will enter upon its duties as soon as the necessary arrangements are completed.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LORD NAPIER and suite arrived at Bellary on the 26th July, and during his stay there his Lordship was actively engaged in inspecting all the public and private institutions of the place; there was the usual review of the troops, and a levee, and several entertainments given by the heads of both the civil and military departments. From Bellary his Lordship proceeded to Dorajee and Hospett in order to examine the country through which the proposed irrigation canal is to run. Passing on to Ramandroog Lord Napier was expected to return to Bellary to an entertainment by Colonel Brewster and the officers of H.M.'s 76th Foot. He will then return to the Presidency via Bangalore and Cuddapah.—Overland Athenæum.

EPISODE IN LORD NAPIER'S RECENT VISIT TO PONDICHERY.—A correspondent of the Moniteur, of Pondicherry, writing from Cuddalore, says: At the time of Lord Napier's return to Madras, after paying a visit to the Governor of Pondicherry and making a tour in the South Arcot district, his Excellency had occasion to stop for a few minutes at the English Customs-station at Mortandy Choultry, a few miles from Pondicherry. While there, among other marks of respect which were paid him by the inhabitants, his Excellency was most of all surprised and gratified at being addressed in Latin by a humble employé about the locality, named Bernard Rassappa Valarnada Moodelly. Upon Lord Napier making inquiries regarding the antecedents of the author of this classical oration, the Moodelly replied that he was a native of Cuddalore, and had been educated at the Pondicherry Seminary, on learning which, his Excellency condescended to congratulate him upon the facility with which he expressed himself in the language of Cicero.

BELLARY PROVINCIAL SCHOOL.—Among the visits of inspection paid by Lord Napier during his brief sojourn in Bellary, one to the Provincial School, to which he was accompanied by the sessions judge of the district and his host, Mr. Wedderburn, the collector, together with H.E.'s private and military secretaries, is of special interest. The opportunity was availed of for affording the successful pupils the gratification of receiving their prizes from the Governor, whose visit to the school on the 26th July will evoke pleasurable recollections for a long while to come. After making some enquiries regarding the school, Lord Napier requested the acting head master, Mr. Best, to examine the sixth class in Cowper's "Task," and they also performed creditably an exercise in dictation in his Lordship's presence. His Excellency himself also put some questions to the boys, and afterwards distributed the prizes. Lord Napier subsequently visited the library and reading-room attached to the institution, and on leaving expressed himself gratified at having found the establishment in so satisfactory a condition. At the levee, held on the following day, his Lordship also took the opportunity of publicly expressing the gratification he had experienced on the occasion of his inspection of the Provincial School.

THE LICENSE TAX.—The following is the decision of the Supreme Government on points referred to them by the Madras Government relating to the assessment of license tax on the salaries of public officers, viz.: 1st. Whether the salary for May, 1867, or the actual net receipts for the year ending May, 1867, is to form the basis of assessment; 2nd. The mode of dealing with officers arriving in India after 1st June and before 1st November. As regards the first point, the Financial Secretary stated that the substantive salary in May, 1867, is to be the basis of assessment on the hypothesis that it is in a general way a measure of the previous year's income. Officers returning to India and taking up appointments at any time within the first six months of the official year, should be required to pay the whole year's tax; but as an act of favour, officers serving for less than six months may be allowed to pay rateably for the months they hold appointments, the amount being regulated by what they would have had to pay had they held office throughout the year.

THE LATEST FROM THE CHOLERA DISTRICTS.—The latest news from Cuttack and the famine districts is contained in letters from the collector of Pooree and his assistant. Speaking of Pooree, Mr. Raban says, that in most places there has been little change of prices, the influx of pilgrims into the town has made rice slightly dearer, though there has been a considerable import from Ganjam. It is expected that as soon as the Car festival is over prices will fall. There has been a considerable fall of rain, and the rice in the lower grounds would be better for a few fine days; the crops in the higher grounds are forward and strong. The people, in general, continue to improve, and are recovering from last year's misfortunes. There is much distress in parts, more especially among those families of a comparatively respectable class which have lost their male representatives. The labouring classes are well off, as work is abundant. There is little demand for rice at our sale golahs, except in the east of the district, and little claim upon the import golah at Pooree. The district seems very healthy just now, and there has not been any serious illness among the pilgrims. Since the commencement of the rains several cases of dysentery of last year's type have appeared among the recipients of relief at Pooree. From the Khordha division it is reported that a small quantity of paddy was exported to Cuttack, and rice is reported to be selling at 12 or 13 Cuttack seers in the Banpore part of the subdivision. Beyond this, adds the assistant collector, there is nothing of importance to report.—Overland Athenæum.

REGISTRATION OF PARTNERSHIPS.—The Bombay and Madras Chambers of Commerce have both been urging upon the Indian Government the necessity of making the registration of partnerships in India compulsory by law. In Bombay the want of registration is very severely felt—the native merchants even looking upon it as a necessity for checking many of the evils which were brought to light during the late crisis. Though registration is not so urgently required in Madras, the local chamber has expressed an opinion that in the interests of trade and commerce the principle of registration should be adopted among the native trading community. On the strength of these representations the Government of India has taken the subject under consideration, with a view to legislation.—Madras Times.

THE CAUSE OF SIR GASPARD LE MARCHANT'S RETIREMENT.—The real cause of Sir Gaspard Le Marchant's retirement from the command of the Madras army has at last come out. It appears that the pay department came down upon the gallant chief for charging the public exchequer with the cost of his journeys to and from Ootacamund, and with the conveyance of his beer and pickles and other domestic stores. Unwilling to brook such an interference from the local authorities, Sir Gaspard appealed to the Home Government, and threatened dire threats, even to the resignation of his command, if his demands were not complied with. We understand that the reply of the Home Government is singularly cool. Concurring in the views of the military finance department as to the deduction of Sir Gaspard's "travelling allowances," it accepts the chief's proffered resignation, at the same time regretting that such a cause should have led to such a result. The next question for consideration is whether Sir Gaspard's civil pay should not be disallowed by the auditors. It is something like Rs. 1,600 a month, we believe, that Sir Gaspard receives for his services as a member of the Council in which he never sits.—Madras Times.

THE EAST INDIA IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY have just issued a prospectus for the "Behar Undertaking," another name for the Soane Canal project. It is intended to throw a weir across the Soane, and by a system of works and canals on the Madras plan, to provide water irrigation for the entire tract of country between Chunar on the west and Patna on the east. The Government of India have given their sanction to the undertaking, and have co-operated actively with the company, who have undertaken to raise the necessary capital, one million sterling, and carry on the works to completion. The prospectus is modest in tone. There are no glowing promises of speedy fortunes to be made by shareholders, or of large dividends to be realised by magic; it is plainly stated that a precise estimate of the necessary cost to be incurred, and of the profits to be realised from so vast an undertaking, cannot be formed at present, but the directors consider the undertaking "a safe, sound, and profitable investment," and therefore solicit without hesitation subscriptions towards raising the necessary capital from the inhabitants of India before throwing their shares on the English market. The work which the company undertake to perform is undoubtedly one of national importance, and one in which the wealthy natives of the country should take an interest; it is also the first attempt made in India to induce the native population to become personally interested in a joint-stock enterprise, established for supplying India's great want—Irrigation and cheap water communications.—Athenæum, Aug. 13.

LORD NAPIER has not been idle at Bellary. He arrived there on the morning of the 26th July, and is the guest of the collector, Mr. Wedderburn. The first day he examined the Provincial School, where he distributed the prizes to the pupils, and the Protestant Orphan Asylum. On the next day there was a magnificent review of the garrison, which is under the command of Major-general McLeod. The evolutions of the troops, which comprise H.M.'s 76th Regiment, the B battery, D brigade, Royal Horse Artillery, the 1st Light Cavalry, the 20th and 30th Regiments of Native Infantry, are spoken of in the highest terms, one movement of the artillery having quite "electrified" the spectators. Lord Napier highly complimented General McLeod on the efficiency of the force under his command. The barracks, the hospitals, the remount horses of the artillery and cavalry, and the ordnance then came in for an inspection. His lordship then held a levee and durbar, and visited the London Mission School. Considering that all this was done in one day, it must be admitted that his lordship set an example of energy that is rarely witnessed in a climate like that of Bellary. Lord Napier proceeds to Daroje and Hospett to examine the country through which the proposed canal will pass. He will spend a few days at Ramandroog, the Bellary sanitarium, and, after returning to Bellary, will be entertained by the officers of the 76th Regiment.—Madras Times.

HYDERABAD ASSIGNED DISTRICTS.—The Governor-General has sanctioned the introduction into the Hyderabad Assigned Districts of the scale of salaries of deputy commissioners and assistant commissioners which has been introduced into the Punjab, Oude, and the Central Provinces. The following establishment has been sanctioned:—

	Per Mensem.

5 ditto ditto 2nd "	700
6 ditto ditto 3rd "	500

The appointments made are:—

DEPUTY COMMISSIONERS.

1st Class.—Lieut. col. J. W. Stubbs.

2nd Class.—Capt. J. Allardye.

3rd Class.—Capt. J. G. Bell, Lieut. R. Huddleston, and Capt. J. T. Bushby.

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONERS.

2nd Class.—Lieuts. K. J. L. Mackenzie, J. Fitzgerald, Capt. H. C. Menzies, Lieut. R. Bullock, and C. T. O. Mayne.

Lieut. col. Stubbs is posted to the Ellichpore dist.

WILD BEASTS IN SOUTH CANARA.—South Canara, a region of hills and forests, is so infested with wild beasts that the collector of the district has made a report to Government on the subject. The report is rather sensational. In 1865-6, no fewer than forty human beings were then killed by wild beasts, and for the months of 1866-7 there have been thirty-three violent deaths from the same cause. The returns, it is stated, are rather under the mark than otherwise, and that on an average at least one death per week takes place, while the depredations committed on cattle, goats and dogs are considered by the people to be even more serious. One man alone complained to the collector that he had lost fifty head of cattle by cheetahs, which are more destructive apparently than tigers, and resort now in greater numbers to the low country, owing to the clearances made in Coorg and other parts by coffee planters. The Collector advises the payment of larger sums as rewards for the destruction of beasts of prey in Canara, and says, "I venture to think it a stain on our Administration that at this date the beasts of prey should still contest the field with us, and no man dare leave his flocks out at night, except in those districts and localities where we have completed the work of extermination. I specially refer to such beautiful grazing grounds as the Neilgherries, the Palanics, and the Mookh, where man can claim the mastery for himself and his herds only by sufferance, only by daylight; whereas in Australia, the cattle, sheep, and horses, are unhoused by day and night for months. The expense of secure housing is itself a very serious difficulty in the way of the grazier." The Government have, as an experiment, raised the rewards as suggested.

THE RIOT AT VELLORE alluded to in our last appears to have been very easily quelled; it had its rise in the imposition of the License and Municipal taxes. On the morning of the 28th ult. every shop and bazaar was closed, and no provisions were procurable. The sub-collector and assistant-superintendent of the police endeavoured, but in vain, to persuade bazaar men to open their shops; and as a riotous mob had assembled and assailed the magistrate and police with brickbats, it became necessary to apply for military aid, when the inhabitants quickly dispersed. To meet the wants of the troops the commissary-general was instructed to arrange for supplies so long as the emergency continued, care being taken not to interfere with the ordinary sources of supply, and to discontinue sales to the troops so soon as the supplies were available in the bazaars. The military authorities were also instructed to ascertain and report upon the expediency of retaining a small supply of grain in reserve at Vellore, to meet any possible contingency.—Athenæum, Aug. 13.

TOO MUCH COPPER.—For some unexplained reason, copper coins have been allowed to accumulate to such an extent in the Government treasury here that there is no longer room to store them, and they are actually becoming a matter of anxiety to our official financiers. Six lakhs of rupees is their declared value. Measures have, therefore, been taken during the week to dispose of them to the public, at a discount of six pices per rupee. The bazaar rush for the treasure has apparently been so great, and new copper coins are now so plentiful, that some establishments refuse to receive them in payment except at a discount, as no sums greater than a rupee in copper will be taken by the bank, except from the railway, the Post-office, and similar public offices. Some trifling inconveniences have resulted from the measure.—Madras Times, Aug. 13.

THE KING OF BURMAH contemplates, with the sanction of the Government of India, sending a mission to Paris. His Majesty has lately been manufacturing tea, intending to go into it in a wholesale manner for exportation. Connoisseurs have tasted the tea, and have declared it to be equal in flavour to any Assam tea. Colonel Fytche, the commissioner, is about to proceed on a visit to the royal city, the king having proposed the terms of a new treaty which the Governor-general has accepted—but the commissioner has been instructed not to press any conditions to which the king may show himself very disinclined, as experience shows that conditions of such a character generally remain unfulfilled, and sooner or later generate a casus belli.—Athenæum and Daily News, Aug. 13.

THE MADRAS MUNICIPAL BILL.—The petition against the Madras Municipal Bill having obtained upwards of 12,000 signatures has been transmitted to Simla.

A CIRCULATING GOVERNMENT.—The idea has been revived in high quarters of making the Government of India circulating in the matter of the Legislative sittings of the Viceroy's Council. A few years ago Sir Charles Wood pressed on the Government of India the propriety of alternating the sittings of its Councils between Bengal and the Bombay and Madras Presidencies. The death of Lord Elgin shelved the plan for a time, but it has never been definitely abandoned. It is now stated that it is in contemplation that the Viceroy should spend the cold season of 1868 in the Western capital; and this will doubtless be the inauguration or the scheme.

CHOLERA COMMITTEE, MADRAS.—Government have appointed a local cholera committee to investigate to the fullest extent possible how far the conclusions, at which the International Cholera Committee at Constantinople have arrived, are supported by what has been observed in the Madras Presidency. The committee hope to draw, from statistics ordered to be furnished to them by the civil and military authorities throughout the Presidency, some practicable conclusions as to the means which should be adopted for the protection of the community from outbreaks of this disease.—Athenæum.

THE PROGRESS OF OOTACAMUND.—There are signs of progress among us. If the roads are worse than they have been for seven years past; if the ill odours grow daily more intense in spite of the never tiring energy of our municipal commissioners, whose agents are with frantic energy putting mud into holes on the highways and cutting the sides of some favoured roads into most symmetrical neatness; if we present an appearance in many respects inclining visitors to consider us an emblem of the unprotected female in distress, there are nevertheless signs of progress. There is some vigour left in the old town. The church work is going on vigorously. Within a year we may hope to have the neatest and best arranged church, we are told, in the diocese of Madras. The foundation stone of the new library is to be laid by the Hon. A. J. Arbuthnot before the end of the month. Mr. Egau's new shop (we wish him success in his undertaking) is rising, and bids fair to be a commodious and ornamental building. Mr. Nicholas is building in the neighbourhood of the site of the new library what we suppose is to be a photographic palace. What would not the place be if we did not labour under such exceptional difficulties.—South of India Observer, Aug. 8.

DEFALCATIONS AMOUNTING TO 30,000 RUPEES have been detected by the Government auditor in the accounts of the cashkeeper of the Negapatam office of the Great Southern of India Railway. The sum was made to appear in the accounts as lodged in the ordinary course in the Government treasury, but the officer in charge of the latter denies all knowledge of the money, and declares the receipt in the company's office a forgery. It is satisfactory to know that the money will not be lost to the company, as it has been made good by the cashkeeper. The case is under judicial investigation, and is exciting considerable interest in Negapatam, as the alleged defaulter is the son of a well-known and respected official of the town.—Madras Times, Aug. 13.

COTTON during the week has shown a decided downward tendency, owing to considerable arrivals, and sales to a fair extent have been made at from Rs. 127 to 110, but dealers are now unwilling to sell at the last figure. Freight firm—Cotton to London, £2. 12s. 6d. to £2. 15s.; to Liverpool, £2. 17s. 6d. to £3.

EDUCATION IN THE VIZAGAPATAM DISTRICT.—The Maharajah of Vizianagram has, to encourage English education in the above district, engaged to arrange for the payment of three scholarships in the Madras University, for youths born in the locality and educated in the Vizianagram school.

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE PENSION RULES.—Many old uncovenanted civil servants of Government have reason to feel aggrieved by a late interpretation of the present uncovenanted civil service retiring and pension rules in respect of their application. The old rules were much more favourable in the matter of pension than the new, but less so in point of length of service; under the new rules, the maximum amount of a pension, at the rate of one-third of salary, is fixed at £200 and £300 a year, according as the effective salary has been above or below Rs. 12,000 annually; but by the old rules a pension of one-third of salary was allowable up to £400 and £500 a year. The Madras Government was disposed to permit, with the sanction of the Secretary of State, old servants to retire at the old and more liberal rules; but not a few are now disappointed to find from a recent despatch from Sir Stafford Northcote that the new rules in respect of pension apply to all uncovenanted civil servants, old and young alike. India grows year by year a less and less desirable place of residence for that class of European servants of Government who are not of the ranks of the favoured twice-born.—Madras Times, Aug. 13.

EUROPEAN VAGRANCY is assuming such dimensions throughout India that the subject is engaging the attention of the local Governments. The Madras Government has just appointed a committee, consisting of Mr. Gordon S. Forbes, C.S., Col. Cadell, R.A., Mr. R. A. Dalvell, C.S., Mr. R. B. Elwin, of the Madras Railway, Mr. J. J. Franklin, Superintendent of Marine, and the Rev. C. R. Drury, to take into consideration and lay before Government the measures which, in their opinion, are necessary to check the growing evil.

H. H. PRINCE AZEEM JAH.—The commissioner for the settlement of claims against H. H. Prince Azeem Jah Bahadur has just issued a notification reminding creditors that the time during which claims under Madras Act III. of 1867 can be brought forward will expire on the 10th September next.

RIOT AT VELLORE.—There has been a great riot at Vellore in connection with the License Tax Act, No. 21, of 1867. All the principal shops and places of business were closed, and it is rumoured that one or two European officials have been wounded.

A KOKANI'S NOTIONS OF US.

(From the Public Opinion.)

It will be in the recollection of many of our readers that three or four years ago the Khan of Kokan, alarmed at the advance of Russia, sent an elchee to India, to see if the English would give him any aid against the great Northern encroacher. This ambassador returned as he came, re infecta, but it appears that one of his companions was moved by curiosity to know more of us, and has since paid India a visit in a private capacity. One of this observer's letters, addressed to a friend at Kokan, and written in poor Persian, has been made over to us from the dead letter office, there being no postal communication with that State, and our courteous Postmaster-general thinking it might be of some use to us. As some of our readers may be interested in the observations made upon us English and our doings by an intelligent Central Asian, we have had the document translated and cropped of its Oriental compliment, verbiage, and exaggeration of phrase. And leaving out most of the mere comments of the writer, we now put before the public the observations of Mirza Hashem Beg on one of our hill stations and its residents:—

In my letters written during my former visit to Hind I mostly confined myself to remarks on the political business on which we came; but I shall now tell you something of the ways of the Franks who rule this country, and who may come into closer connection with our beloved fatherland ere many years are over.

The place I now write from is situated on a very hilly country, on the top of one of the highest of the mountains—much loftier than those which surround Shahrissab, and, indeed, more stupendous than the great Elburz which you have seen on your way to Mekka Shereef. It is so rugged and steep that moving about on it would be extremely fatiguing, and even difficult, were it not that innumerable roads and paths have been made all over it for convenience and ease in getting from place to place. The Franks have a great dread of the fierce heat which for half the year scorches those who dwell on the plains of Hind, and during that time they flee in great numbers to such places as this, situated among these mountains. This hill is in part covered with grass green as the emerald, and in part with lofty trees, to which the pines of the Alaton and the cypresses of Iran are but as willow-wands; and the aspect of the whole is most pleasant to the eye.

The houses which the Franks have constructed on every part of the hill are strongly built of stones cemented together, and most of the roofs are composed in a curious way of little square bits of wood fastened down on each other like the scales of a Sang-posh, so that no rain can come in. In the walls of the rooms are square holes filled with glass in wooden frames, so that the light comes in, but not the wind, wet, or cold. There are neither stoves, as in the better houses of our city, nor a fire in the centre of the room with a smoke-opening in the roof as among the Khirghiz. But in each room there is a fire-hole in the wall, with a channel inside the latter, by which the smoke can escape above the roof. These things may serve to give you some idea of the comparative ingenuity of these unbelieving Franks.

In my inquiries as to the manner and habits of the people I have had great help from having formed a warm friendship with one Shah Gool, a believer, whose ancestors came over from Turkistan with Timur Lang, and who remains a sincere Soonee in the midst of the Sheeite heresy which prevails among the mongrel Mussulmans of this country. He is a soldier in one of the regiments maintained by the Franks, and comes up here on his duty as what is called orderly to the chief sahib of his regiment, a great bahadur in battle, a man of commanding presence, with mighty boots, and with a beard worthy of a true believer. During his ten years of service, Shah Gool has, unknown to his master, picked up some knowledge of the tongue of these Franks, and so acquires much interesting information about them. By his aid I have been able largely to satisfy my curiosity regarding them, and have even on several occasions ventured to some of their great feasts and gatherings, and so have discovered much of interest that would otherwise have remained hidden from me. Of these things, some of which will seem incredible to you, I can only now give a sample, reserving the rest till our next meeting, which may the Blessed One speedily bring to pass.

Although the Franks hold his country by the might of the sword, yet, singular to say, the chief power in governing rests with men of many grades, such as Kamissars, Dippties, and Stunts, who are unconnected with fighting. At the head of all is the Lat Sahib, a wise aksakal of benevolent look, who might be called sufed-reesh, but that many of the Franks, especially those who are not in the army, have the barbarous custom of getting the hair scraped off their chins every day, a custom to the origin or reason of which I can get no clue, and which I need not say takes away from the manly and impressive appearance of the face.

I have been much surprised at the absence of pomp and display in the doings of these Franks. Many of them, up to the Lat Sahib himself, often walk instead of riding, even if they have plenty of horses in their stables; and even he often goes abroad with no retinue whatever in attendance. I cannot find that the power of those in authority is at all affected by their acting thus, although it is quite inconsistent with our ideas of official importance and dignity. Although there are among these governing grades many silly or unwise men, yet I must allow that the intentions of all are good, and on the whole, their rule is characterised by a justice like that of Nushirwan. Its greatest defect in this way appears to me to be that the officials rather lean to favouring the conquered sneaking and unmanly natives of this country than such of their own fellow Franks as may have no office under the "Sirkar."

The transaction of business and Government here must be more remarkable for the amount of writing than for anything else, so much so that the inhabitants of Hind often speak of the Franks' rule as one of paper. Each of the Sahibs in any authority not only writes most of the day himself, but has a number of men under him who also write constantly. And I have not ceased wondering at the quantity of written paper which is daily carried to and from a small building near the centre of this place, where arrangements are made for communicating by writing with all parts of the country.

With all this sitting within doors and writing, however, the Franks appear to have an almost unnatural desire for unnecessary exercise and hard work. Even those who are of considerable rank often make long journeys upon relays of horses very speedily and at the cost of great exertion, when they might travel comfortably and with dignity in a carriage or a sort of box in which persons of consideration are here taken from place to place on the shoulders of the poorer people of the country. The Sahibs also often voluntarily spend many days of great endurance and fatigue in sporting trips among the steepest of these hills, and all to get a beast or a few birds or fishes which they could purchase for a small sum. Some of their women even wander a great deal among the mountains with no particular end in view.

They have also various games which involve much labour and loss of that dignified calm which all our wisest men think so suitable to rank. Some of these are played with balls on a flat place at a little distance off, where both sexes assemble in large numbers every few days, the women, however, only to look on, as these sports are too rough for their tender frames. These games involve so much labour that I wonder any one would undertake it unless compelled to do so. Many of the Franks, again, amuse themselves for hours by shooting at marks with bows and arrows. But this seems to be considered somewhat effeminate and childish, and is not much practised except by the inferior sex.

But the favourite of all their games is played on small level spots by a mixture of both sexes who employ themselves for hours in softly knocking balls about with long handled wooden hammers, in order to make them go in certain directions under little arches of thin iron. The time and attention which is bestowed upon this singular recreation, and the gravity with which it is often played by even people of some age and standing, quite beyond me to understand.

I am told that the chief Lat Sahib of all, called Jan Larrens, who formerly ruled over this Punjab subha, but now governs the whole of the mighty empire of Hind from the sea to these hills, spends much time and care upon this seemingly frivolous amusement. The interest of it seems small, and indeed Shah Gool tells me that his and other Sahibs confess as much when by themselves, so that I conjecture the reason that the game is so devotedly played, by the younger people at least, is that it gives those of both sexes opportunities of mixing freely and talking with each other. Such association between the sexes seems to be one of the great ends of life among the Franks, and in respect to it—may the blessed Prophet guard us!—there seems to be but little restriction; married women, who are called mems, though their husbands should be far away, and even unmarried ones, who are called misseys, seem to ride, walk, play, &c., with any man, married or unmarried, the only condition apparently being that they shall have been put face to face, and made to bend their heads towards each other by some one acquainted with both of them.

Marriage among the Franks is limited to one wife, and generally takes place at a later period of life than with us. Indeed, many of both sexes remain single all their lives. The women are not allowed to make any advances in this way, but we may conjecture, indeed it is apparent, that they have various means of making known to our sex when they desire to change their condition; nor, so far as I can discern, do they get more reconciled to the single state the longer it continues, for then efforts to effect a change from it sometimes become more evident as time passes. There is no difference in appearance or manner between mems and misseys, and in fact you could not discover from dress or behaviour which is which, nor is there any special distinction in the dress of either after childhood, some of advanced years and faded appearance continuing to decorate themselves as if they were still young and blooming girls.

But there are very frequent and great alterations in the outer portions of their dress, which are regulated by the orders of a potentate called, as a Mussulman tailor informs me, Feshon, who lives in Franzcesistan, and whom I conjecture to be insane. At the time of my former visit the skirts of the dress were of very great width, and kept at their full stretch by hoops of some firm substance concealed within their folds. The increase of apparent circumference brought about by these means had a very curious effect upon the shape of persons of short stature. But Feshon has issued a new order, and while the skirts have diminished in girth, the length behind has increased greatly, so that in walking the whole of the ground, however foul, is swept, and persons behind are very seriously incommoded.

On horseback the Frankish women wear tight skirts, extending to half a yard below their own feet, so that we might be led to think that they have no reason to be proud of the lower part of their persons. But this is a mistake, for at some of their recreations, especially the mixed game with balls I have already mentioned, and another amusement still to be described, it is at once apparent that they are not ashamed of their feet, but, on the contrary, vain of them, with greater or less reason; so that it is likely the long dresses worn in riding are connected with some incongruous notion of modesty, quite inconsistent with the recreations referred to. On horseback they do not sit as we and our women and the Sahibs themselves do, but with both feet on one side, one being in a stirrup, and the other hooked over a long projection above the fore part of the saddle. This has a very curious appearance to a stranger. Companies of Sahibs of both sexes frequently ride like the wind along the roads, to the imminent risk of pedestrians. When there is only one of either sex they do not, as a rule, seem to consider it necessary to ride so hurriedly as when there is a larger company; indeed, in the former case, I have observed that they often, especially if young, walked their horses slowly alongside each other for a considerable distance.

Their great feasts present some singular features. They consist either of both sexes or of men alone, the reason that women are not allowed to assemble thus without men being, I suppose, lest they should concoct some treason against the ruling sex. At the mixed feasts it is remarkable that the men dress wholly in black (except a little bit at the neck), as if in mourning garb, while the women put on their gayest and most gorgeous clothes. The reason of this anomaly I cannot even guess at. They sit for a long time at table, eating slowly and talking much between the mouthfuls, innumerable dishes being successively handed to each guest, and several kinds of wine being drunk out of glasses of different kinds. They never touch their food, except bread, with their fingers, but cut and convey it to their mouths with certain metallic instruments. The dexterity with which they feed themselves in this unnatural way, and the dishes of metal, porcelain and crystal, as well as the whole ceremonious arrangements of the table, are very creditable to them. In this matter of eating alone I think are these Franks more calm and dignified than we.

After these feasts, and frequently at special assemblies also, there is much music of various sorts by voice and instruments. But here again, strange to say, it is commonly done not by hired people, but by the guests themselves. I cannot say I think much of their music, but some of them take great delight in it, and spend many hours a day at it. The most curious kind is that produced from a great trunk set upon legs. A woman sits in front of this, and tickling a sort of tail it has with her toe, produces a variety of sounds by beating rapidly with her fingers on a number of little bits of ivory in front of it.

I cannot trust to paper all that I might say of the beauty of these Frankish women. They are perfect Houris, and I should in vain exhaust our poetic vocabulary of female beauty in trying to describe them. The swan, the gazelle, curls like snakes of molten gold, the snow of Koh-Kaf, the lilies of Irem, the roses of Khorasan, the musk of Khoten, would all fall short of the truth. And to these excellences of person are added an intelligence and vivacity which is utterly unknown among our women. One cannot wonder at the power they wield over the men, or that a tiny, gentle girl can drag captive a great bearded bahadur who has fought on many a bloody field, but in this combat is meek as a household kid, and cannot escape from the thrall of his conqueror. He follows her like a dog, and is constantly seen at her side on foot or on horseback, at feasts, musical assemblies, and games. These and other seekers after amusement are often driven indoors by the heavy rain common at this season, but in the intervals of sunshine all come clustering out like troops of gaudy butterflies.

The most extraordinary of all the recreations of the Franks is one whose existence among a people pretending to any degree of polish—and these Franks pride themselves greatly on their refinement—I would not have believed unless I had actually seen it. On certain nights abundance of refreshments and hired musicians are provided, and the Franks of both sexes, single and married, and of various ages, assemble together. They dress much in the same way as for the feast, except that all wear tight gloves of white skin (these, of various colours, they only wear occasionally at other times), and the women have on still more gaudy dresses, cut shorter below to allow of the free motion of the feet, and, in many cases, cut so marvellously short above and on the arms that I shut my eyes, dazzled and delirious, the first time I beheld this ravishing spectacle. The evolutions gone through are of many patterns, but those most frequently performed are when many couples stand up, one of each sex together, face to face, clasping each other closely round the waist, and, with loud music of many instruments, whirl rapidly round each other and round the room, like spinning dervishes, for many minutes together; a most surprising sight as you may conceive!

Verily, the views of these Franks differ from ours as doth night from day! La Houl! What saith the Prophet in the Sura Kubka, "whose even toucheth the soft person of her to whom he is not wed, is in danger of perdition." It is vain to try to realise how we should do were these things other than abominable in our eyes. But when I make a great effort to do so, I feel that though I should not so much mind the senior of my household, Fatima Khanum, indulging in this recreation I could under no circumstance relish my third, Noor Begum, thus revolving in the firm embrace of our black bearded acquaintance, Loocha Khan. But, again, what says the single one in the Sura Belal, "men are made in the various moulds, and dirt in the mouth of the Faithful is as sugar to the palate of the unbelieving Kafir."

I find difficulty in saying much about the religion of these Franks. We must believe that they have one which affects the lives of many of them. But so far as outward appearances go, the only symbol of it is, that on one day a week a certain number of them assemble in a large building where again they have music and singing, but of a different character, &c., and a moulves reads to them for a short time. No conversation goes on in that place, but there is no particular sadness or even solemnity visible in the demeanour of many of them, and the clothing of the women nearly as gaudy as at the other assemblies, but there is more of it.

The last thing I will notice at this time is a very large building called Kullub Ghur. It is intended as a sort of sarai for the unmarried men who came up here for a short time, and amongst others Shah Gool's master, Eesmit Sahib, resides here. They amuse themselves with various games with painted pieces of paper, and knocking about balls with sticks on a large green-covered table, and discussing the various mixed assemblies and those of the other sex they meet at them. They do not stint themselves in good food, and they consume considerable quantities of spirituous fluids of various sorts, which have a detrimental effect, and incite them to much loud talk and vocal music, that seem frequently to last far into the night.

I must now bid you farewell, and leave you to ruminate on the strange unheard of customs of those Ingreezi Franks, who are still as much a marvel to me as ever. HASHEM BEG.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.—Under instructions from Government, his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India has been pleased to direct that the remaining batteries of the 11th Brigade Royal Artillery be held in readiness to proceed this year to England. The non-commissioned officers, artificers, and men of these batteries desirous of extending their service in this country will be allowed to volunteer for the Royal Artillery, in any of the three presidencies, under the rules laid down in paragraph 2 of Government General Order No. 695, of November 17, 1863. The non-commissioned officers and artificers volunteering to remain in India will take rank in the new brigades to which they may be posted, according to the dates of their promotion. The Commander-in-Chief in India has requested the Commander-in-Chief, Bombay army, to move the Bombay Government to direct that Nos. 2, 3, and 5 batteries of the 21st Brigade Royal Artillery, in that presidency, be held in readiness to proceed to England this year, in pursuance of instructions received from the Government of India. The non-commissioned officers and men will be allowed to volunteer for the Royal Artillery in any of the three presidencies as above laid down.

THE PETITION TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL AGAINST THE MUNICIPAL BILL was signed by upwards of 12,000 of the wealthiest and most influential inhabitants of Madras. It was, in fact, signed by all the principal people of the city, excepting officials. The petition was despatched to Calcutta yesterday (Aug. 5). A very general impression prevails that the Supreme Government will request the Local Government to reconsider the Bill. —Madras Times.

STOCK AND MONEY MARKET.—MADRAS, Aug. 13.—A good business has been done in Government paper, and rates have gone up slightly. Transactions are reported in Fives and a-Half per Cents. at 111½, and in Fives at 106½. There has been no change in our money market, the rates for fixed loans on Government Securities being still 5 per cent., and for discount on private bills 7 per cent.; for demand loans the rate is 3½ per cent.

EXCHANGE.—Rates for four months' Bank bills have gradually fallen from 1-11½ to 1-10 and 15-16ths, at which transactions are reported for the outgoing mail. Very few document bills have been offering, but a few transactions are reported at 1-11½ to 2. The quotation for Credits is nominal.

IMPORTS.—The market has been exceedingly dull during the fortnight, and sales have been possible only at reduced rates.

HOME.OVERLAND TROOP SERVICE THROUGH EGYPT.

The following instructions, for troops passing through Egypt, are issued for general information. Their object is that all persons should know their proper place and duty so as to avoid confusion or delay:—

On the arrival of a troop ship at Alexandria or Suez, no person is to land unless under special authority till arrangements have been made by the proper officer for the disembarkation of the troops.

No person is to be allowed to bathe, on account of the danger of sharks.

As soon as the troop ship is anchored an officer of the Quartermaster-general's Department will come on board with a view to arrange for the troops landing.

The troops will generally land in three detachments. One will consist of heavy baggage guard, fatigue party, and all married non-commissioned officers and men, with their wives and children, under the second senior officer. The quartermaster to accompany them, and a proportion of officers.

Two other detachments will consist of all the single men.

Field officers and staff, and ladies and children, to land in the Tender. Other officers in the barges with the troops. Their light baggage to go with them. Officers' families in every case to accompany the officers in the railway carriage.

Band, drums, and pioneers (single) to go with their companies.

Great coats should be carried ready to wear in the trains. Packs in the hands, not on the back.

Every man, woman, and child over five years of age, will be supplied before leaving the ship with a ration consisting of half a pound of cooked preserved meat, and half a pound of biscuit, for consumption on the journey through Egypt, and before re-embarking they will each be provided with a cup of coffee. Each child under five years of age will be supplied with a quarter of a pound of fresh bread, and before re-embarking with hot milk or tea.

Officers and their families can obtain coffee before re-embarking on payment of 4d. a cup.

On landing the detachments will proceed by separate trains. The baggage will be taken out of the barges and loaded on the trains by railway porters, but a baggage guard and small fatigue party must superintend and assist. The officer in charge must be watchful that the baggage is not damaged or allowed to go astray.

Married men to accompany their wives to and in the trains.

The officers must see that each carriage is filled; two children under fourteen years of age to count as one adult. In no case, however, should more than eight men be carried in a compartment.

Orders for the disposal of knapsacks and sea bags will be given on the spot by an officer of the Quartermaster-general's Department.

The arms to be carried in the men's hands. The detachments of single men must fall in on landing, the officers to see the men with their great coats, arms, and accoutrements, into the carriages. The officers must be careful of their light baggage while the men are getting into the trains. A man from each company should remain in charge of it till the officer returns for it. The railway porters will put it into the trains.

A trumpeter or bugler to attend the senior officer in charge of each detachment, and to sit in the second class carriage next to him. The non-commissioned officers must see that no other bugle calls are sounded on the journey but those ordered by the senior officer.

The trains will generally leave about sunset and arrive about sunrise. They will stop five times, for fifteen minutes each time, at stations where there will be lights, and where the men can get drinking water. No man to leave the carriages at any other stations. At three of the stations there are ladies' waiting rooms. On the trumpet or bugle sounding, every man to take his place, and officers to see that all are present.

The officers can obtain refreshments at charge for supper 4s. each. As the men and women will carry their own provisions, they are not to be allowed to enter the refreshment rooms, and non-commissioned officers should be placed at the doors to prevent their doing so. Before re-entering the carriages the men to fall in and the roll to be called.

If any sick are left in Egypt, their great coats, sea bag, if any, and complete kit, are to be left with them, but no arms or accoutrements, and a No. 1 report is to be given to the officer of the Quarter-master General's Department. The medical officer to give a statement of their cases to the surgeon of Suez hospital.

The officer in command of the troops will be required to furnish, in duplicate, on a form which has been prepared for the purpose, a "transit return," which he will hand to the officer of the quartermaster-general's department in Egypt, for transmission to head quarters.

The officers must see that the utmost quiet and order is observed in landing, on entering the trains at the stopping-places on the journey, and on re-embarking.

A supply of 300 waterproof coats and 300 waterproof caps, each fitted with a strong becket for hanging up, will be kept on board for the use of the troops embarking in the two vessels to be employed between the United Kingdom and Alexandria. They will be placed in charge of the paymaster of the ship, and the value of any which may be lost—viz., 10s. a coat, and 2s. 2d. each cap—is to be paid to the paymaster of the ship by the troops who may be on board before disembarkation.

By order of H.R.H. the Field Marshal
Commanding in Chief,
J. HOPE GRANT, Quartermaster-Gen.
Horse Guards, Sept. 6, 1867.

REGULATIONS TO BE OBSERVED IN RESPECT TO THE BAGGAGE OF TROOPS PASSING THROUGH EGYPT.

1. No baggage in excess of the regulated allowance, either by cubic measurement or by weight, is to be taken with the troops. Any extra quantity should be sent via the Cape of Good Hope under arrangements made by the troops.

2. It is necessary that all packages taken overland should be carefully packed, and be of moderate size, the utmost limit in this respect being a company's arm chest. It is desirable that the cases should be of strong material, and that the parts should be fastened together with screws, especially the lids, which ought never to depend solely on the locks for security, even though they be of the best description.

They should be fitted with iron handles, rope becketts, or grommets worked into cleats of sufficient strength to bear the case without risk, should the entire weight fall upon one handle or becket. These precautions are recommended, as the Arabs employed as porters at the railway depots work in gangs, and handle all articles quickly and roughly, in spite of the utmost vigilance on the part of their overlookers, or such as could be exercised by a baggage guard, occasioning frequently considerable damage to property.

Any frangible articles should be packed with the greatest care, so as to admit of the packages being rolled over without breakage, and it is recommended that rope or leather straps for securing packages, portmanteaux, &c., should be avoided, as the Arab porters are sure to cut them off and appropriate them.

3. All packages to be stowed in the ship's baggage rooms should, before being forwarded to the port of shipment, bear a large printed label showing the corps to which they belong, and marked, "Baggage Room."

A list should be kept by each corps of all packages, with their weight and measurement, forwarded for embarkation and actually put on board, from which a return in duplicate of the total number of packages and the corps to which they belong is to be prepared on board under the approval of the officer in command of the troops, one to be handed to the principal transport officer or his deputy, on arrival either at Alexandria or at Suez, and one to the deputy-quartermaster-general in Egypt or to his assistant.

This return should also show the total weight and measurement of the baggage on board, and should, when practicable, be signed by the quartermaster or other officer who has seen it weighed or measured in this country or in India.

Baggage stowed in the baggage room will not be accessible to the owners until the troops are disembarked in India or in the United Kingdom.

Baggage for use on the voyage should bear the names or initials of the owners in clear characters, and be labelled with the word "cabin;" reasonable accommodation having been provided for such baggage in each officer's cabin, and further space in a baggage room for the use of married officers with their wives and families. A clear depth of sixteen inches has been allowed under the bed places in the cabins to admit a trunk of the regulation size for India, viz., thirty-six inches long, fifteen inches wide, and fourteen inches deep, which size should not be exceeded in any package taken into the cabins.

A depth of sixteen inches has also been left under the lower tier of bunks in the compartments appropriated to the wives of the staff sergeants and soldiers for their articles in daily use, but the baggage belonging to those persons will require special attention and vigilance on the part of commanding officers, for should it not be carefully packed and directed, very great inconvenience, with discomfort to the families, may ensue, and serious complication and trouble arise with the railway authorities and officers of the Egyptian Transit Administration, who will be in charge of the baggage through from port to port in Egypt.

All cabin baggage landing or embarking in Egypt should go with the troops in the barges, and on no account should it be mixed up, even for a moment, with the baggage intended for the baggage room, as great delay would be caused in again dividing it.

The railway porters will take the baggage out of the barges, and load it on the train, but a guard and small fatigue party under an officer will have to attend and superintend.

4. As medicine chests would be liable to great risk of injury in the transit through Egypt a special dispensary for the use of the troops has been provided and fitted in each of her Majesty's Indian troopships; all articles specially required for hospital purposes having been supplied. On this side of the Isthmus it will be placed in the charge of a sergeant, who will act as compounder of medicines, and on the other side it will be in the care of an apothecary or an assistant belonging to the Indian service. The requisite supply of medicines will be put on board by the Army Medical Department.—By command,

J. HOPE GRANT, Quartermaster-general.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE CAPTIVES IN ABYSSINIA.—Mr. F. W. Prideaux, of the Indian Office, forwards to the Pall Mall Gazette the subjoined extracts of a letter from his son, which reached him on the 10th inst.: "Magdala, June 30, 1867. We received intimation yesterday as to the ultimate course the Government were about to pursue with reference to our hospitable jailor. Force is the only thing that can bring the blackguard to his senses and secure our liberty. I can assure you that England has suffered most immensely in prestige on account of this unfortunate affair. Every naked ruffian thinks himself now justified in coming up with an air of insolent superiority, and considerably informing us that 'you have money, and you have skill, but as for us, we have strength!' After all, they have some grounds for this opinion, although I trust ere long to see the illusion thoroughly dispelled. An ultimatum has been despatched to the king, informing him that unless we are at the coast on the 17th of August, other measures will be employed. What he will do we can only speculate upon. If he is even willing to let us go, he can't see us safe out of the country, as it is full of rebels, all cowardly treacherous brutes. However, the general opinion is that he will stick to us to the last, and come here himself as his only resource. This is a nasty prospect, as in a fit of blind fury he may commit any atrocity. However, we all trust for the best. Our health still continues pretty good up here. It is, however, a nasty place for coughs and colds, from the latter of which I am suffering slightly now. Last rainy season I always went barefoot, because my shoes were all worn out, and I am sure it is the healthiest plan. We are trying to make ourselves comfortable for the rainy season, having had our house repaired and made water-tight. We have also got a little garden, where we have planted beans, peas, and such like, and also some flowers, but nothing has grown up yet. In the rainy season, however, everything comes up like magic. God grant that we may still spend a happy Christmas together this year. I firmly believe we shall."

CAPTAIN SOTHEYBY, C.B.—By the death of Rear-Admiral Thomas Hope, Captain Edward Southwell Sotheyby, C.B., who was actively employed on the East India and China station from December, 1852, until August, 1859, in command of the Pearl, 21, screw corvette, and who has since commanded the Conqueror, 101, Channel squadron, and Colossus, 66, in Coast-guard service, in Portland-roads, becomes Rear-Admiral on the active list.

THE DIRECTORS OF THE AGRA BANK (LIMITED) have issued their report, which they consider to be of a satisfactory character. The branches had only been in working order for a very short period, so, although profit had been made, the directors do not consider it prudent to declare the usual ad interim dividend. At the end of the year the directors state "they have every reason to anticipate that it will be in their power to submit a statement of accounts, and to sanction a division of profits which will be encouraging to the shareholders."

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 7.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamship Bangalore, Captain Browne, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived here this afternoon. She brings fifty-nine passengers, specie £1,515, and a general cargo. The Bangalore experienced fine weather during the passage. On the 6th she spoke the company's steamer Masillia, with the outward mails of the 4th.

SIR HERBERT EDWARDES is a candidate for the representation of Shrewsbury.

LIVES OF INDIAN OFFICERS,

Illustrative of the History of the Civil and Military Services of India.

BY JOHN WILLIAM KAYE,

Author of "The History of the War in Afghanistan," &c.

Contents.

The Rev. HENRY MARTYN. Sir CHARLES METCALFE. Sir ALEXANDER BURNES. Lord CORNWALLIS. Sir JOHN MALCOLM. The Hon. MOUNTSTUART ELPHINSTONE.

Sir HENRY LAWRENCE. General JAMES NEILL. Brig.-Gen. JOHN NICHOLSON. Captain ARTHUR CONOLLY. Major ELDRED POTTINGER. Major D'ARCY TODD. Appendix, &c.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

"I am not without a hope that these memoirs may be regarded, in some sort, as a Biographical History of India from the days of Cornwallis to the days of Canning. I have not attempted, indeed, to write History; the work has grown up spontaneously out of the Lives of the great men who make history * * and, unless the ability of the execution has fallen far short of the sincerity of the design, I have done something, in these pages, to do honour to a race of public servants unsurpassed in the history of the world. * * I have striven to show how youths, from the middle-class families of our British Islands, have gone forth into the great Eastern world, and, by their own unaided exertions carved their way to fame and fortune." J. W. KAYE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the ATHENÆUM.

"We say at once that more admirably-written and interesting narratives are scarcely to be found in any literature. We do not envy the man who could read without deep emotion the lives here given of Conolly, Lawrence, and Nicholson; and we doubt whether the whole range of history can show more perfect characters. Nobler subjects of biography could not have been chosen, and higher praise it is impossible to bestow on a writer than to say, as we do of this author, that he is fully equal to such a theme. * * Mr. Kaye's 'Lives of Indian Officers' will take a high place among the standard books of England."

From the SPECTATOR.

"A cadet, an artillery officer, an editor, an employé of the first rank, a successful historian, Mr. Kaye unites in his own person all the qualifications requisite to the biographer of the great Indian soldiers."

From the EXAMINER.

"Two stout volumes of biography, which, arranged chronologically, have, in addition to their biographical interest, great historical value as illustrations of the progress of political government, warlike exercise, and philanthropic effort in India during the last three generations. It is a work of remarkable interest; the interest being due not only to the stirring subjects of which it treats, but also to the admirable way in which the subjects are treated."

ALEXANDER STRAHAN, 56, LUDGATE-HILL.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the
PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Overland Mail of this morning brings our Indian news down to the 24th August from Bombay, the 17th from Madras, and the 18th from Calcutta.

Colonel Merewether, the Political Resident at Aden, had no sooner reached Bombay on the 21st than he proceeded to Poonah, to discuss with the Bombay Government the important question of the coming raid into Abyssinia. Preparations for that long-desired ultimatum were going on briskly. A good many officers of the scientific and supply departments were about to embark with a suitable escort for the Red Sea, in order to fix on proper places for landing the troops destined to march against King Theodore. Steamers were being taken up by the Government, apparently for the same destination. The reconnoitring party, according to the Times of India, is to consist of two companies of the Marine Battalion, to be commanded probably by Capt. G. M. Lyons, with a troop or so of the 3rd Native Cavalry, now at Poonah. The names of Captains Wilkins and Greig, of the Engineers; Majors Mignon and Clarke, of the Commissariat; and Major Baigrie, of the Quartermaster-General's Department, are given as likely to figure in the same movement.

The damage done by the monsoon rains to the Bombay railroads appears to be very serious. On the Great Peninsula line five out of six viaducts recently inspected are declared to be unsound. The Shahpoor viaduct is so weakened by the displacement of masonry round one of the arches that trains are ordered to go over it very slowly indeed. Over the Godavery viaduct all carriages are pushed by hand. In one or two other places the traffic will probably have to be suspended altogether. On the Central India line some of the smaller bridges have been destroyed. A hundred and twenty feet of embankment at the southern end of the bridge over the Nerbuddah have been washed away, besides four miles of telegraph, and the neighbouring country was flooded for miles round. Traffic was interrupted beyond Unclesur. The Government of Bombay had called for an immediate report on the general state of the viaducts on the Great Indian Peninsula, and great fears were expressed as to the need of suspending the traffic over a large portion of the line.

Cotton prospects in Central India are said to be very favourable. In some districts the rain had done harm, but from others, especially Chandah and the opposite side of the Wurdah, the accounts were as hopeful as could be wished. In the Nerbuddah and Chattergurr districts the crops were also looking well and plentiful. As America has not yet made up her lost ground, Indian cotton ought to be a thriving speculation for some time to come.

At the adjourned general meeting of the Bombay Bank, the shareholders unanimously carried a resolution in favour of reconstructing the bank. Applications for shares in the new concern were pouring in. A petition, praying Government to inquire into the causes of the loss of three-fourths of the bank's capital, had already been signed by many leading men. The inquiry into the forgeries on the Poonah Bank had already begun.

Sir Joseph Arnould had issued an order sanctioning the compromise lately made between the Asiatic Bank and the Bombay Land Reclamation Company. The threatened proposal to wind up the affairs of the latter company was not brought forward at the last meeting of its shareholders, who adopted the report of their directors instead.

A commission of inquiry has been appointed into the charges levelled against Colonel Elphinstone, agent of the Punjab Railway, by one of the Lahore journals, and bandied about by a large section of the Indian press. After the Colonel's defeat in his prosecution of the offending paper for libel, such a measure became inevitable, for his own sake as well as his employers. What the result may be we need not attempt to guess. Like many another honourable man, he may, as the Times of India plausibly observes, have been inveigled through ignorance or carelessness into a course of action more or less unworthy of his former repute. Meanwhile, however, it is only fair to hope for a more favourable issue to an unpleasant business.

The expediency of maintaining the present relations of the Government with the Presidency banks has been virtually affirmed by the Supreme Government, whose decisions now await the final sanction of the Home Council. Mr. Massey alone, it seems, stood out for the opposite course, as the best way of ending an anomaly unwarranted by any grounds either of policy or convenience—an anomaly which makes the State responsible for the solvency of private institutions. He is understood to recommend a gradual severance of the State's connection with the banks.

In another column will be found the reliefs of the Bombay army for the ensuing cold weather.

A disreputable street row has occurred in Bombay between three English gentlemen and a body of enraged Parsees. How or why it began may be guessed rather than positively stated; but the fighting seems to have been opened by our high-handed countrymen, who thrashed some "insolent" Parsees, whose friends in turn set upon the Englishmen, with damaging results to one of them.

The following list of troops destined for Abyssinia must be accepted for what it is worth. We quote it from the Bombay Gazette. The Times of India disbelieves it.

The commandant of Attock has curious notions of public duty. He has issued a garrison order, commending to public admiration "the devotion and glorious behaviour" of the women of the 4th Battery, 25th Brigade, R.A., who volunteered to nurse the commandant's wife and adopted daughter, "when seized with that fell disease, cholera." He feels so deeply indebted to these noble women, "that he cannot rest satisfied without making their names known to all the world through the columns of "one or more of the Indian newspapers." If the patients had been somebody else's wife and daughter would all this highflown eulogy have been devoted to their nurses' undoubted worth?

The Beloochees are said to be giving trouble in Mithankote, by crossing over the Indus to make raids into Bhawalpore.

The little war outside Aden has ended in the submission of the Foudheli chieftain, Ahmeer Ahmed Bin Abdallah, with whom Colonel Merewether had concluded a treaty, enforced by the retention of one of his sons as a hostage for the tribe's good behaviour. The Foudheli are flocking again into Aden.

The accounts from the famine districts show steady improvement there. There had been a slight increase of applicants at the relief centres, and some forms of illness still prevailed. But the worst of all, epidemic disease, was absent. Cholera had been committing sad havoc in many parts of India; but its fury was at length abating everywhere, save in Cashmere.

A fatal accident befel Lieutenant-colonel Garstin, Adjutant-general of the Peshawur Division. His skull was fractured by a fall from his horse, and death speedily supervened.

Owing to the adjournment of the Supreme Council's sittings from Simlah to Calcutta, several important Bills, including the Oudh Rent Bill, remain still in crysalis condition. This last measure, introduced by Mr. Strachey, proposes to extend the principles of the Act of 1859 in accordance with the acknowledged claims of the Oudh Talookdars. The main feature of it seems to involve a departure from the former Act, as it limits the proprietary right in land to one-fifth of the cultivators; the rest being regarded as virtual tenants at will to the Talookdars, guarded by certain claims on the latter for compensation and moderate rents.

The Delhi Gazette avers that an order is going or gone out to India, by which only officers of not more than seven years' service will be admitted henceforward to the Staff Corps. Another order, according to the Madras Times, has been telegraphed to each of the Local Governments, directing that two officers from each Presidency shall be at once sent to England to learn the manner of using and repairing the Snider rifle, manufacturing the ammunition, and working the machinery needful thereto.

The Behar Irrigation Company has issued a prospectus, which the Delhi Gazette commends to public favour as a rational and workable scheme. Any feasible plan for meeting one of the crying wants of India and reducing the chances of another Orissa Famine ought to be encouraged by a speculative public, provided it wears a look of genuine business.

The news from Kabul is hopelessly bewildering to us remote Britons. The "battles of kites and crows" are being fought without end in those hilly regions westward of Peshawur. Native opinion in Kabul seems divided on the chances of the rival Ameers. Some believe in Afzul Khan's ability to hold his ground, while others are equally certain that Shere Ali Khan will drive him out of Kabul. Equally puzzling are the accounts of Russian progress in the Khanats. We are told that the Russian troops marched from Chuzzuk upon Kurchee, which they took without firing a shot. It is also said that the Russians will make Kurchee over to the Ameer of Bokhara; why, we are left to guess.

The King of Burmah has expressed his readiness to sign a new treaty.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is due in London on the 27th inst.

We understand that the Governor-General of India has sanctioned Rs. 15,000 for the proposed Cotton Exhibition at Broach.

AN official letter from Florence informs the readers of the Times that the Italian Government has never "declined to accede to the arrangements recently suggested," seeing that no proposal has ever been made to it. At the same time it has omitted nothing which might lead to the establishment of an Italian route to the East Indies.

MAULED BY A PANTHER.—A private letter, dated the 3rd instant, states that Captain Watson, Political Assistant in Katywar, has been mauled by a panther. His right arm was seriously injured, but under the care of Mr. Higgs, late assistant apothecary at the Ghizree Sanitarium, who is now stationed at Gogo, who had to go forty miles to see him, the patient has recovered. It appears that Captain Watson had wounded the animal, when it sprang upon him and seized his arm below the elbow, inflicting two wounds about one inch in extent, besides several smaller ones.—Sindian, Aug. 14.

WRECK OF THE "ARABASTAN."—On August 18th the ship Arabastan, from Calcutta to Bombay, was totally wrecked on the Pronga.

THE BANK OF MADRAS is just about to open a branch at Trichonopoly. Mr. D. Noble has been appointed agent of the branch.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

FRIDAY, September 20, 1867.

INDIAN TROOPS ON FOREIGN SERVICE.

At the present time, when the Indian army is about to supply so large a portion of the troops destined for the Abyssinian Expedition, the general question of the employment of natives on foreign service attracts especial attention. The Friend of India, which has just been discussing it, advocates the policy of placing the Bengal army upon the same footing as that of Madras with regard to the liability to be sent beyond sea, and the Athenæum, with a strong local feeling upon the subject, expresses a similar opinion. But in doing so our Madras contemporary makes a suggestion which, if unfounded, we should like to see met by a denial. "What," he asks, "is the feeling as regards foreign service of the Bengal European officers? Until we know what that is we cannot tell what their men will do. Our own opinion is, that the European officers of the Bengal Native Army are averse to their regiments being sent on foreign service, and that this feeling on the part of the officers has infected the men. It is true that the men themselves are naturally disinclined to go on board ship—most men are—but we are satisfied that this disinclination would long ago have been overcome had the officers in reality been as eager for foreign service as they were for field service in India."

In justification of this belief our contemporary refers to certain proceedings in Lord Dalhousie's time in reference to the 38th L.I. This regiment, after volunteering for the service required, changed their minds and objected to go, in consequence, it was supposed, of their officers' disinclination. Of course it is not insinuated that the officers desire to avoid the danger. It is only the discomfort to which they are said to object. They are always ready for a foreign expedition of a hostile nature; but what they do not like is being sent to Arracan, the Straits, or Burmah, merely to do garrison duty. The consequence is, as our contemporary considers, that the Madras Army has an unfair amount of this kind of service thrust upon it, and should be relieved of some portion by the army of Bengal. "In these days," he says, "the whole over-sea duty of the Indian Empire is now done by the Madras army. The amount of that duty is so great that a large portion of the Madras sepoy's life is passed on foreign service. . . Why should the whole of the burden be thrown upon him, and no share of it on his Bengal comrade?" In illustration of the partiality which he conceives to be at the bottom of the matter, the writer states that when the last Burmese war broke out Madras troops were employed at Arracan, because the caste of the Bengal sepoys made it impossible to employ them at that place. But as soon as active service rendered it worth while for the Bengalees to go, the impossibility disappeared, and not only could Bengal troops go on board ship, but they were eager to do so, to the prejudice of the service and the injury of their comrades. The obviously proper course, as our contemporary observes, was to push to the point the regiments which happened to be nearest to the seat of war, and to let their places be occupied by those which came from a distance; but the reverse of this arrangement—involving a gross insult to the Madras regiment—was ordered, and would have been carried out but for the interference of the Governor-general, who refused to sanction it.

Such, we are told, was the manner in which, under the old regime, the rights of the minor presidencies were treated when they came into collision with Bengal interests, and the Athenæum, with local warmth, challenges the Friend of India to show that the same feeling does not exist in the present day. For ourselves, without pretending to prove the negative, we are quite sure that, whatever prejudice may have existed, none of it survives. But we must agree with our contemporary that, in the interest of the Bengal army as well as that of Madras, the former should take a share of the foreign duty at present imposed upon the latter, who acts the part of the willing horse and are treated accordingly.

INDIA'S DUTY TO ENGLAND.

WHEN the last mail left Calcutta the telegraph had told the people of India that they, and not the people of England, were to pay for the ball given to the Sultan by the department at home. Nobody supposed that the intelligence would be very welcome; but to judge by the comments in the Madras papers, a strong protest may be expected against what is considered an unwarrantable stretch of authority. And to make matters worse, an intimation had just been received in Bombay that a certain proportion of the expenses of the Abyssinian Expedition are to come from the Indian revenues.

With regard to the ball, the Athenæum is particularly indignant. Not, says our contemporary, that India is inhospitable. She would be delighted to show her respect to the Commander of the Faithful by entertaining him to any extent. But she would like to provide the entertainment as well as pay for it—to enjoy the distinction while she incurred the cost. And the writer puts the case in a still more vexatious manner when he asks why A should give a party to B, and tell C, who has nothing to do with the affair, that he shall perform the least pleasant part of the duties of the host, whether he likes it or not. But he is most irate when he considers the reason assigned—very curtly given, as may be supposed, considering the nature of the communication. "The ball," said the telegram, "was given by the Council of India, as a separate Government, to show respect to the Sultan and the Viceroy." The "separate Government" plea is more than our contemporary can bear. "There is a general feeling in England," he says, "that the separate Government is a nuisance to the Ministry, and its giving entertainment at the cost of the people of India will make its name to stink in this country. Now we must say that we were not aware that there is any such feeling in England as that alleged, or that the Ministry generally regarded any one of its department in so odious a light. A considerable number of persons in this country were disappointed at not receiving invitation to the ball, and some among them had right to resent the non-recognition of their claims, but very few concerned themselves with the imperial part of the question, and Mr. Sheridan, the mouthpiece of the aggrieved, could obtain no attention when he started the point in the House of Commons. It would have been better, perhaps, considering the fact that the majority of the people of India are not Mahomedans, that the cost of the entertainment should have been defrayed at home. But under this condition it is certain that the entertainment would not have taken place at all. For the general expenses of the Sultan's reception the Consolidated Fund was drawn upon, not without dissatisfaction, and the addition of the ball would never have been borne. As for the other plea urged by the Athenæum, that the Indian Exchequer is in an impoverished condition, it is quite beside the question. Apart from the fact that a matter of £10,000 is of no great account in the grand total of disbursements, and would certainly not be felt by the famine-stricken people of Orissa, so feelingly alluded to, the question is one of principle; and it really does not seem unreasonable that India should make a contribution towards the cost of doing honour to the acknowledged head of the Mussulmans all over the world. Unfortunately we cannot in every case localise our national demonstrations. The starving cotton spinners of Lancashire—when they are starving—contribute to the cost of balls given at our embassies in Europe to crowned heads, and crowds of other persons in whom they have no direct interest; and all over the world national responsibilities are recognised in a similar manner. The question, therefore, reduces itself to this—is India to be considered a part of the British Empire? It certainly appears that we pay something for India in this country. As Mr. Disraeli told us last session, we are an Asiatic Power rather than an European Power, and the greater part of our army is maintained to defend our Eastern possessions. India, to be sure, pays, as far as current expenses are concerned, for the protection which England supplies; but without England she could not obtain that protection at all. In any case it is as fair to call upon her to bear the cost of peace as the cost of war; and the latter class of defence, ill-defined as it may be, she will find it far cheaper in the end to incur. We have no need to enter upon such a topic as the ball to the Sultan, considered in its relation to the Eastern question; but the two have a connection which will be appreciated by politicians, and India must be aware of the interest which she has in the destiny of Constantinople. Russia is pushing her arms in Central Asia, but it is to Turkey that she is directing her diplomacy; and it is to Constantinople that we must look, if we are to have a peaceful solution of the coming complication. The Mahomedans are, as far as numbers go, in the minority in India, but they are the only part of the population that have any relation to Europe. They absorbed the Hindoos by conquest before we obtained the supremacy over both. They are, therefore, politically in the majority, and must always be so considered in political relations.

These may seem large considerations to urge in connection with so small a matter as the payment for the Sultan's Ball; but they are called for by the carping tone which we are sorry to see is taken in India with regard to the obligations of our Eastern empire towards the home country. This is illustrated again in the case of the Abyssinian expedition. Surely, if India is interested in our affairs at all, it is interested in maintaining our honour in the East. We are compelled to send an army to vindicate that honour. The locality of the scene is so closely connected with India that we naturally form the bulk of the force of Indian troops and appoint an Indian general to the command. And what could be more natural than expecting India to bear a share of the cost? But this also, it seems, is to be made a ground of complaint, and an occasion for raking up all the old grievances of our countrymen, who, conceiving that they have a right to the gratuitous protection of the British flag, and the privilege of making their fortunes upon the easiest possible terms as regards taxation, nevertheless look upon the Home Government in the light of a nuisance.

THE EUPHRATES AND INDUS RAILWAYS.

VARIOUS conflicting statements having been made as to the opinion of the Viceroy of India regarding the Indus Valley Railway, it is with much satisfaction that we observe in a Supplement to the Gazette of India a minute by Sir John Lawrence, dated at Simla, the 13th of July, in which his Excellency records his deliberate preference for the Indus line over either the Lahore and Peshawur extension or the Rajpootana line.

The following is an extract from the Viceroy's minute:—

"After a careful perusal of the different minutes which have been written regarding the three new lines of railway which it is in contemplation to construct I think it right to add that I adhere generally to what I have already said on the subject."

"I did think that a railway, connecting Mooltan with Kotree, would pay better than the proposed railway through Rajpootana, even though it would have to compete with the facilities afforded by the Indus. In adopting this view I was a good deal influenced by two circumstances—one, the difficulties of the navigation of the river, and the inconvenience of breaking bulk, once at Mooltan and again at Kotree. I thought also that by filling up this link in the whole route by railway to the sea, it would enable the Umritsur and Mooltan line on the one side, and the Kotree and Kurrachee Railway on the other, to become self-supporting, or nearly so; but from the annexed extract of a letter, which I have only just received from the Commissioner of Sindh, it seems that there is very little chance of the realisation of such a hope.

"On military and political grounds, as well as financial ones, I would prefer to have communication open with the sea from Lahore to Kurrachee in the first place, and through Rajpootana in the second degree, to a railway from Lahore to Peshawur.

"A complete Indus railway would admit of troops being rapidly brought up from Kurrachee to Lahore, or of being similarly concentrated at any spot all along the line opposite to the frontier. This is a point of primary importance. If a railway from Lahore to Peshawur would produce a beneficial effect at Cabul and in Central Asia, a complete line from Lahore to the sea ought at least to have an equal effect, while the additional material strength it would give us would, I submit, be greater in the latter case than in the former.

"I cannot myself think that the military and political considerations in favour of the Rajpootana line, as regards those States, are of great importance. The chiefs and inhabitants are peaceable, and generally well disposed. From 1824 up to 1857—a period of upwards of forty years—we never had a collision, which I can recall to mind, with any of these States; and the conduct of their inhabitants during the mutiny fully confirms this character.

"No doubt, on philanthropic grounds, it would be desirable to carry a railway through Rajpootana, as such a work would prove generally beneficial to the people. Considering, however, the state of our finances, and the utter indifference of the chiefs to the opening out of their territories, I can see no grounds for our doing anything in this way which is not clearly for the interests of British provinces in India, or which is not absolutely necessary for the consolidation of our power."

The adverse opinion of Mr. Mansfield, the Commissioner in Scinde, alluded to by the Viceroy, is in our opinion something more than met by the now celebrated minute of Sir Bartle Frere on the comparative merits of the three rival schemes now being pressed on the notice of Government in which he "tore into shreds and tatters the arguments advanced for dwarfing the noble railway system already projected for Northern and Western India, and ridiculed the idea of sending the traffic of a division of the empire larger than Great Britain, containing twenty millions of inhabitants, and having a half complete railway system of its own, terminating with a rising commercial city, and a noble port and harbour, four hundred miles round to Bombay. Sir Bartle Frere saw at a glance the immense importance, both politically and commercially, of the Punjab lines in the whole economy of the railway system of India; he saw, too, no doubt, their bearing and intimate connection with that direct route to Europe through the Euphrates Valley which, through the untiring exertions of the very able chairman of the Punjab and Sindh Railways, must sooner or later be a fait accompli. Nor did he stand alone in the view he took of this great question. The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab was strong on the same side, and the whole press of India was unanimous in urging the completion of these lines with the utmost possible speed."

At the recent meeting at Dundee of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, Sir Samuel Baker, President of the Geographical Section, when speaking of our Indian possessions, said:—"It appears to many of us as the affair of yesterday, that the overland route to India was established by the indefatigable Waghorn (whose name should ever be held in honour); but in the short space of about fifteen years the camel has ceased to be the 'ship of the desert' upon the Isthmus of Suez. A railroad connects the Red Sea with the Mediterranean; a canal already conveys the sweet waters of the Nile through deserts of arid sand to Suez; and a fleet of superb transports upon the Red Sea conveys our troops to India. Who can predict the future? who can declare the great French work to be impossible, and deny that, within the next half century, the fleets of the Mediterranean will sail through the Isthmus of Suez upon the Lesseps Canal? England has been the first to direct to general use the power of steam. Our vessels were the first to cross the Atlantic and to round the stormy Cape to India. But have we not thus destroyed the spell that kept our shores inviolate? Not only ourselves, but the French also, possess a magnificent line of transports upon the Red Sea. We can no longer match the dexterity of our sailors against overwhelming odds. Steam breaks the charm. Wars are the affair of weeks or days. There are no longer the slow marches that rendered inaccessible far distant points. The railway alters the former conditions of all countries. Without yielding to exaggerated alarm, we must watch with intense attention the advances of Russia upon the Indian frontier, and, beyond all geographical enterprises, we should devote extreme interest to a new and direct route to India by the Euphrates Valley and the Persian Gulf, thus to be independent of complications that might arise with Egypt."

So long as the Indian Empire subsists, the connection between India and this country must be kept up; and if that connection were interrupted for many months the doom of our Eastern Empire would be practically sealed. England maintains her position in India by force of arms; and it is a principle both of war and of common sense to take efficient means to keep open the lines of communication between the base and the field of operation.

It is impossible to contemplate without a shudder the consequences which might result if the Government should ever neglect to maintain effectively the means of communication with the East. The present route, via Egypt, might at any time be rendered unavailable by political complications in Europe, and yet our Government have hitherto been content to rely upon one means of communication, notwithstanding that it is in their power to establish not only an alternative, but an infinitely better one, by way of the Euphrates Valley.

But we feel well assured that the great design for connecting Europe with Central Asia by the telegraph and the rail by the valleys of the Euphrates and Indus is at length approaching its accomplishment. The Euphrates and Indus Railways completed would be the grandest pledge that could be given for the peace, the progress, and the prosperity of the world.

DEATH OF BABOO JADUBKRISHNA SING.—We deeply regret to announce the death of Baboo Jadubkrishna Sing, which melancholy event took place on Tuesday, July 23, at three P.M. The deceased was the head of the well-known Singhee family of Jorasanko, Calcutta. He was a promising pupil of the late Hindoo College, and, though naturally of a retiring disposition, he was connected with the chief public institutions of the city. He was one of the vice-presidents of the Asiatic Society, and a member of the committee of the British Indian Association. He was latterly appointed a justice of the peace for the town of Calcutta. A lover of Sanskrit, he used to take great interest in philological inquiries. Of unassuming manners, he possessed an amount of goodness and bon-homme not ordinarily met with. His illness was of a very short duration, scarcely five hours, and he has been carried away in the prime of his life. He was only thirty-five years of age. His death is regretted by a large circle of friends and relations.—Hindoo Patriot.

LINES ON A SUBALTERN'S ROOM.

A small iron sofa without any head,
By day made a couch, by night made a bed,
A chair with three legs propped up by a stick,
An allowance of candle, no tallow, all wick,
A small chest of drawers that pack into a case,
A miniature picture of some pretty face,
A carpet that does not half cover the floor,
A target chalked out on the back of the door,
An old tiger's skin placed by way of a rug,
Whereon sat a mastiff, a greyhound, and pug,
Apparatus for washing, a foot tub and pan,
Part of an army list, half of a fan,
A fawn-coloured glove, a lock of false hair,
Both highly prized gifts of some sweet lady fair,
A case of blunt razors, a shako, and plume,
A fishing-rod, rifle, a shot-belt and broom,
A broken-down candlestick, smelling of brass,
A "Mutiny Act," and a cracked looking-glass,
A mould to cast bullets, the top of a boot,
The half of a pipe, the end of a flute,
Regimental sword belt, a treatise on drill,
Some lighters made out of the last arrived bill,
A musical snuff-box, a bottle of port,
An unstrung guitar, an unfinished report,
An invite to dinner, the card of the priest,
A sketch of the colonel, described as "the beast,"
A print of the Queen, of a favourite mare,
The brush of a fox, the scull of a hare,
Two swords and one scabbard, a box of cigars,
Some snuff and brown sugar in two broken jars,
A letter from home, the troop orderly book,
A nightcap and sabretache hung on a hook,
A map of the country, a hair-comb and spur,
An opera cloak all bedizened with fur,
An old pair of boots, the smock of a cad,
A desk without lock, the roll of the squad,
Hints to young officers, part of a novel,
The half of the tongs, a piece of the shovel,
A pair of dress overalls hung on a chair,
A heap of new snuff-boxes won at the fair,
The sword and lance exercise, half-bound in red,
A chaos of things tossed over the bed,
A huge meerschaum pipe, the rules of the mess,
And his toilet laid out on the coal-box to dress,
Boxes and parcels so heaped on each other,
'T would puzzle a saint to tell one from another.

THE PROPOSED CONTRACT LAW FOR INDIA.

The second instalment of the labours of the Indian Law Commissioners appears in the Gazette as a body of substantive law relating to contract in all its forms. Unlike the Indian Succession Act, which was not extended to non-Christians, this law will be applicable to all India. It does not interfere with such existing Indian Acts as those relating to merchant seamen, railways, and carriers; for avoiding wagers, for binding apprentices, for punishing breach of contract by artificers and labourers, or with any of the emigration and coolie laws. It comprehends, and therefore repeals, the law of partnership passed last year, section 10 of the Bills of Exchange Act of last year, Acts XIII. and XIV. of 1840, and two Acts of Parliament. A careful perusal of the proposed law, in the light of the statement of objects and reasons by its authors, will lead to the conclusion that it is an immense improvement on the existing law of both India and England. The best features of the French, Italian, and German commercial codes have been adopted, so that India promises to enjoy at one bound reforms for which the most enlightened lawyers have long been struggling in England, and which so unwieldy a law-reforming body as Parliament is conceding with painful slowness. Mr. Maine's assertion will be received as entirely disinterested, that, if this Bill is passed, "India will possess a body of contract law which leaves nothing to be desired in point of simplicity and comprehensiveness, in respect of the essential equity of its provisions, and in respect of the perspicuity with which those provisions are set forth." The whole Bill, but especially the chapters relating to the sale of goods, suretyship, agency and partnership, deserve the careful study of all commercial men. The Bill promises to work a silent and healthy revolution in purely native modes of business—a revolution which will adapt them to the enormously increasing trade which they carry on with Europe.

Mr. Maine's opinion on the work of the Law Commission is the more disinterested and reliable that he has thought it right to refuse to ask the Indian Legislature to consider certain sections of the Bill. In taking up this independent position, he deserves the gratitude of all classes. The Law Commission consists of able English judges and very old and antiquated Bengal civilians. The latter have not been in India for a quarter of a century, and they have formed the most exaggerated and ludicrous ideas of the relations of capitalists and peasants from the indigo disturbances of 1860. These disturbances gave a one-sided prominence to the very warm discussions on the necessity for a law to prevent or remedy the breach of agricultural contracts. Indigo has, unfortunately for the grower no less than the buyer of produce, coloured the dispute to such an extent that these old gentlemen at home see nothing but blue. Now indigo was the least of all the interests requiring legislation, and it has become less than ever. Sugar, rice, and fibres demand it much more, and the want is far more felt in Madras than in Bengal. Yet the prejudices and ignorance of the old Indian members of the Law Commission have so far prevailed as to induce the great English lawyers, with whom they are associated, to allow them to foist into a code of substantive law sections relating purely to procedure, and sections not only narrower than the existing law of India on the subject as given in the Civil Procedure Code, but narrower than what Mr. Maine justly terms the "narrowest in the world." The opinion of one who is recognised by so high an authority as Mr. J. S. Mill as the first of living Jurists since Mr. Austin's death is, on this subject, of overwhelming value—"It is not known that in Continental European countries there is any limit to the powers of decreeing the specific performance of contracts, except the discretion of the court. But the law of India on the subject is considerably wider than the Scottish Law, which, again, is wider than the law of England. The law of specific performance in England is, in fact, the narrowest in the world." A lawyer's regard for his profession, an honest man's love of truth and his experience of India as it is and knowledge of the facts as they are—all combine to make Mr. Maine decline to be the tool of old civilians of the school which would shut the "interloper" out of India and bring back the deluge. He will not mix up procedure with substantive law, and he will not sanction a procedure utterly retrogressive and iniquitous. The plain principle is that deliberate contracts must be performed. Anything else is anarchical and ruinous to society.

Mr. Maine and Sir H. Harington, it may be remembered, drew up a series of sections providing a procedure law of contract which they intended to substitute for the existing and almost inoperative provisions of the Civil Procedure Code. These sections were proposed in redemption of Lord Elgin's pledge to close the bitter contract discussions by a law open to none of the objections fairly brought against the projects of Sir C. Beadon and Mr. Ritchie. They confined to the civil court the duty of ordering, at its discretion, the specific performance of a contract—that is, the doing of the very thing promised as opposed to the right to recover damages. Only registered contracts and contracts for periods of less than five years were to be dealt with. In the event of imprisonment the debtor was to be maintained on the civil side of the jail by his creditor. And to provide against every other possibility of oppression specific performance was not to be decreed in any case in which the hardship would be considerable.

But the old Indians induced Lord Halifax to forbid the amendment of the Civil Procedure Code, on the ground that they were busied with the law of contract and would provide a remedy. That remedy is to take from India what it has and give it provisions worse than even England submits to, illustrated by cases which are a perfect anachronism and an insult to every buyer of agricultural produce in the country. Mr. Maine and the Government of India adopt the only dignified course left to them—they leave out the pottering inanity of the antediluvian civilians. Even if they approved of it, which fortunately is not the case, public opinion in India would not allow such a law to be passed.

So the concession of a fair procedure in cases of breach of agricultural contracts must be again postponed after eight years' discussion. Mr. Maine's opinion, that the new substantive law will in practice place the whole subject in so clear a light that we may hereafter obtain a better procedure, is cheerful enough. We can only hope that the postponement will not extend beyond the close of his renewed term of office. In a vast continent, at a stage of progress which makes it only the producer of all kinds of agricultural wealth that the capital and skill of others must apply for the use of man, no question is so important as this of contract. It lies at the root of all transactions between man and man. We expect Mr. Maine to see that its wise and oft promised settlement is not much longer delayed. Whether cotton, or rice, or sugar, or jute be the article, a just law of specific performance will most effectually lead to agricultural improvements and promote the wealth of the agricultural classes.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NEW THEATRE TO BE BUILT IN CALCUTTA.—The greatest drawback to the establishment of an opera in Calcutta has been the difficulty in providing it with a convenient local habitation. The proverbial apathy and indifference of Calcutta audiences to performances of a high class might be overcome, but not so readily the objections of distance and faults of construction. It was felt by the Opera Committee, at the conclusion of the last season, that of the numerous drawbacks and difficulties which Signor Cagli had to encounter, none were so serious as those arising from the distant and inconvenient situation of the theatre at Ballygunge. Arrangements were therefore, as our readers know, entered into, with the permission of the Supreme and Local Governments, for the removal of the theatre to a temporary site on the "maidan." But these have fallen through in consequence of the failure of the negotiations for the removal of the materials of the present building. Under these circumstances certain members of the Opera Committee have set on foot a subscription for the erection of a new and improved opera house on a central and convenient site. This was found in Lindsay-street, near the Small Cause Court. The proposal has met with such success that sufficient funds have already been raised for the erection of the new building, the contract for which has been undertaken by Messrs. Mackintosh, Burn and Co. The new theatre will, it is expected, be completed by the 1st November next. The building will approximate in shape to a horse-shoe, and will provide accommodation for an audience of 520 persons distributed through twenty boxes, stalls, a dress-circle, and pit. The building is to be constructed partly of brick, and partly of timber, and will be covered with a zinc roof. The floor of the stalls, dress-circle, and pit will be stepped, so as to admit of a perfect view of the stage from all parts of the house. The chairs of the stalls will be constructed after the model of those in the English opera houses. There will be two entrances—one on the north and one on the west side; four staircases will lead to the boxes and dress circle, and means of exit will be provided by seven doors. Great care and attention will also be paid to the proper ventilation of the theatre.

EUROPEAN VAGRANCY.—The convergent complaints from all quarters of the rapid growth and extension of the evil of European vagrancy have again attracted the attention of the authorities. The Commissioner of the Bhaugulpore division has had occasion to urge on the Government the desirability of the interference of the Legislature by the enactment of a vagrancy law. The magistrate of Monghyr reported that "the matter has now assumed formidable proportions," especially in the neighbourhood of the railway. "These vagrants are for the most part drunkards; they are taken up by the police, and prosecuted; on their release they fall into the hands of the magistrate. At Monghyr it has become a steady monthly tax on the salaries of the Europeans to pay the train hire of these men." The energy of the Calcutta police has lately driven these men up the country, and some steps are necessary on the part of Government for the protection in the Mofussil of the native population, who are also importuned and threatened for alms and money. The railway officers, though never so much in want of hands, will not employ these reckless prodigals, and in fact many of them will not take employment. The Government of Bengal has called for reports on the whole question from the Commissioners of the Patna, Burdwan, and Presidency Divisions, and from the Commissioner of Police in Calcutta. The metropolis appears to be the depot, as the line stations, notably Jumalpoore, are the favourite outlying posts of these enemies of society. The Magistrate of Monghyr and the Commissioner of Bhaugulpore have deserved well of the public for their action in this matter; and doubtless good effects will result in many instances from the late orders from military head-quarters directing commanding officers of British troops to send forthwith descriptive rolls of men who may have recently deserted from their regiments or batteries to the Magistrate of Monghyr, in view to the detection and apprehension of such offenders as may be found in this vagrant-haunted locality.—Pioneer, Aug. 9.

NYNÉE TAL, Aug. 5.—At last I have something unusual to say about that very commonplace topic the weather. On last Thursday evening, the 1st inst., between nine and ten o'clock, a heavy downpour of rain set in, and continued coming down with unabated vigour until two or three o'clock on the following afternoon. I have never yet beheld such violent rain last for such a very long time. The consequences can be easily surmised. Three houses have fallen, three roads are said to have been entirely washed away, leaving no traces behind them, and no less than twenty-five natives are reported to have lost their lives. Whether this be true or not, it is certain that a number of men who had brought up vegetables from the plains for sale were quietly walking along the Gorgeroad, when a huge landslide suddenly took place in the hill above their heads and instantly crushed the travellers in its ruins. It is not exactly known how many men were thus killed, but it is said that there were six of them. Several houses, which have been more or less injured by the rain, have been vacated, and consequently there are several Europeans looking out for accommodation. This, however, they will be able to obtain easily, as there are so many houses unrented this season. It is said that the household property of one gentleman was actually washed out of his house by the rain, and was carried down the khud into the large bazaar, where the natives of course immediately pounced upon it and appropriated it to their own advantage. This was rather like "pelting a dog with marrow bones." No doubt the bazaar wallahs thought the property legitimate spoil.

MURREE, July 30.—There is an old saying that ill news flies apace, and my ill news will probably be known to many of your readers before this is read by them. The Rev. Mr. Matthews, chaplain of Murree, died of cholera last Friday; Mr. Phelps, of the Punjab Bank, died the same day of the same disease, and was buried at the same time, Friday evening; Mr. Ferguson, of the 77th Regiment, died last Sunday evening, of typhoid or Peshawur fever; and Captain Walker, of the 38th, died about the same time as Mr. Ferguson, on the same day, of cholera. In addition to these deaths by disease, comes one by accident to swell the list. Colonel Garstin, deputy-assistant adjutant-general, of Peshawur, fell from his horse last Saturday evening, when riding on the mail, fractured his skull, and died yesterday at three p.m. I need hardly say that of these deaths that of the Rev. Mr. Matthews is the most deeply and universally felt, as is but natural in this place. As an attentive, kind-hearted, sympathising parish priest he was an ornament and example to his profession. As a preacher he was what is called effective, for he preached in a remarkably easy, simple, and earnest way, without so much as a note to assist his memory. Mr. Matthews was, therefore, both as "a preacher of righteousness" and as a parish priest, the very man for an Indian chaplain. His zeal and energy were too much for his physical powers; and an attack of fever, brought on by exposure to the sun, combined with over exertion and excessive abstemiousness, probably predisposed him to fall a victim to cholera.—Delhi Gazette.

ASSISTANT ADJUTANT GENERAL OF A DIVISION.—Our attention has been drawn to a paragraph in a recent Simla letter in which it is announced that Captain Jerome is to succeed the late Colonel Renny as Assistant Adjutant General of Division. It is only four or five months ago that the commander-in-chief announced officially that he had determined on appointing field officers only in the Adjutant General's department, and here we have the self-imposed rule set aside with a consistency that nepotism or favouritism alone can excuse (if such excuses can be admitted when the public service is concerned), with a coolness most marvellous to behold. We should be glad to know under what peculiar circumstances the commander-in-chief has thought proper to set aside his own rule to suit the case of Captain Jerome. We have no objection in the world to make to Captain Jerome individually; possibly he may be better fitted than any one else, but we do not see the good of making rules to break them.

THE BLOCKADE OF THE NUNCOWRY ISLANDS.—The Marine Department has been requested to send a gunboat, if possible, from Calcutta to assist in the blockade of the Nuncowry Islands. The blockade is to be carried out by the end of November next, and the Government of the Straits Settlements have been requested to state at what port guides to the localities where the recent outrages were committed can be conveniently picked up by the blockading force.

THE RUSSIAN PAPERS ON CENTRAL ASIAN AFFAIRS.—The translations from the official papers of Moscow and St. Petersburg, which we publish this week, must be read in the light of the "brilliant victories" of the Russians, and submission of the Ameer of Bokhara a month later. These victories show how little confidence is to be placed in official announcements in Russia any more than in France when there is a strong motive to colour the intelligence. It will be seen that, in the absence of leaders like Romanovski and Tcherniaeff, a body of Bokarians under Sadyk—the hereditary enemy of Russia on the steppes, being the son of Kenisar Kasimof, the Schamyl of the Khirghiz—nearly cut to pieces some 70 Cossacks sent against them, and for the moment arrested communication between forts 1 and 2, that is between Orenburg and Tashkend, pillaging the auls or settlements of the Russian Kirghizes. The Ameer of Bokhara relied, but it seems in vain, on the assistance of the Khan of Khiva. It is for the interest of the Khan to maintain his tributary relation to Russia, and to see Bokhara at war with the Czar, for thus only will all caravans again pass through his territory. Russia, as we know by telegram, has taken a splendid vengeance under the very walls of Samarkand, and all Bokhara is at her feet, while Persia, her ally, is marching on Meshed and grasping at Herat. The eagles are gathering over the carcass of Central Asia, but as yet the lion only growls sleepily.—Friend of India.

THE "CAMP OF HEALTH" AT ALLAHABAD.—While from other parts of India come tales of mourning and narratives of error in the disposition of camps near the different cantonments that have been visited by sickness now so prevalent, we are happy to be able to point out to our readers an example of a very different state of things. About a mile from this station, on a high bank overlooking a beautiful reach of the Ganges, amidst a grove of trees, lies our "camp of Health"—we would not mention the ugly name by which such camps are commonly known—indeed to apply the term here would be unmerited, since the men of the 107th regiment left sickness behind them when they marched from their barracks in the Chatham Lines; and now the Camp Hospital is a pleasant fiction. During the cooler hours of the day the men may be seen under the shade of the fine trees amusing themselves with cricket, bowls, and quoits, and they look as healthy as they would be in England. Our active Assistant Quarter-master-General visits the camp at all hours, and the officer commanding in camp has clearly made the comfort of his men his study. From tent to tent pathways have been cleared, so that the men may walk dry-shod throughout the camp, and the general arrangements are most creditable to all concerned. Ladies have been attracted to visit the picturesque scene, and faute de mieux others might follow their example without fear of disappointment.

INCREASE OF DESERTION FROM THE ARMY.—The recent increase of cases of desertion of British soldiers, supposed to be due to the opportunities of escape afforded by the railway, attracted the attention of the Deputy-Judge Advocate-General, Allahabad Division, to the irregular action often adopted in such cases by the regular as also by the railway police. It seems that instead of at once committing apprehended deserters to the nearest justice of the peace, it is generally the practice to convey them to the nearest military station, no matter what the distance may be. Thus a deserter from Barrackpore was taken at Mirzapore, and conveyed by the police to Benares, though there were many justices at the former place who could have committed the prisoner. This irregularity is mischievous, as Captain Horne pointed out, because it diminishes the facilities for obtaining evidence with regard to the place, time, and manner of an arrest. Orders have accordingly issued from Government directing police authorities on the line of rail to take persons apprehended on suspicion of desertion before the nearest justice of the peace in accordance with the provisions of the Mutiny Act.

THE PROPOSED ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN FOR CALCUTTA.—We are glad to learn that the projectors of the Zoological Garden are working in right earnest. A mixed committee of the Asiatic and Agricultural Societies lately met for the settlement of the plan. But it is money alone which makes the mare go. The estimate of Rs. 60,000 we confess is very low, but even that amount has not yet been subscribed. It is certainly a disgrace to Calcutta that it has no place of public amusement worthy of name. A Zoological Garden would answer many useful objects. It would promote scientific inquiry, provide a place of rational amusement, and serve the double purposes of a people's park and public garden. We do not know whether the projectors have applied to Government for aid, but the scheme we submit is eminently worthy of State support. In Madras the Government, we believe, liberally assisted the people's park project, and we do not see why it should not extend similar assistance to the project for Calcutta. It should at any rate provide land for the garden.—Hindoo Patriot, Aug. 21.

COLLECTIONS ON ACCOUNT OF THE LICENCE TAX IN CALCUTTA.—During the week ending the 27th July Rs. 16,949-13-5 was collected in Calcutta on account of 806 licences. The total for Calcutta stands as under:—

Licences.	Proceeds.	Average.
6,459	Rs. 2,67,306-9-11	Rs. 41-3-1

There have been refunds, however, to the extent of Rs. 4,599-12-11. The returns up to the end of June show that only Rs. 1,33,094 had been collected in the Mofussil on 13,378 licences, which gives an average of less than Rs. 10 per licence. Up to the 27th July the following districts had not submitted their returns:—Garrow Hills, Western Dooars, Poo-ree, Cachar, Gya and Patna.—Englishman, Aug. 8.

THE NUMBER OF MILITARY OFFICERS IN THE POLICE TO BE REDUCED.—We understand that the Government of India has recently circulated a resolution on the subject of reducing the number of military officers in the police, and of recruiting the force henceforth from the uncovenanted service and from natives. The reduction is not to take immediate effect, nor is any diminution of salaries, we believe, proposed. This decision is owing to the Military Department having refused to spare any more officers for police duties, and is therefore inevitable. We reserve our comments on the resolution for another opportunity.

OPIMUM SALE.—The following are the results of the Government opium sale held at the Exchange on the 9th August:—

	Chests.	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.	Proceeds.
Behar	2,000	1,355	1,315	1,317-14-0	26,95,750
Benares	2,600	2,305	1,305	1,300-11-94	26,01,475

This represents an average of Rs. 1,324-4-10 per chest, or an excess of Rs. 174-4-10 above Mr. Massey's estimate, making for this sale alone an excess over estimate of a little more than Rs. 6,97,000.

BOUNTY TO VOLUNTEERS.—The Commander in-Chief, with the sanction of the Government in India, has directed that all men, who, under present regulations, do not receive full bounty on volunteering to remain in India from regiments about to proceed home, will be entitled to the balance on their re-engagement in India, provided they re-engage into regiments which have not served more than six years in India. This is also to apply to all men who have volunteered during the present year.

THE BENGAL GOVERNMENT has decided upon the ejection of 8,000 villagers from their homes in the gnaw or hamlet of Rishra, to make place for the erection of an engine station of the East Indian Railway.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.—The authorities of the East Indian Railway are anxious to adopt some means by which it will be possible for passengers to book through from any station on the main or Jubbulpore lines to Bombay until such time as the G.I.P. Railway from Jubbulpore onwards is open for traffic, a consummation not likely to be effected until 1868-9. The East Indian Railway propose the organisation of a carrying company, or rather the extension of one of the now existing companies to the Jubbulpore and Nagpore road. The length of this road is about 170 miles, and if the bad parts of it be well metalled, there is no reason why passengers and goods should not be carried over it in a comparatively few hours during the dry season, say from Oct. 1 to the end of June. It is probable that no carrying company would undertake the job unless under a subsidy from the railway companies, as the cost of stock and block would be necessarily heavy and the period over which the contract would extend very short. Add to these facts the large amount of rolling stock which would at the end of the contract be thrown upon the contractors' hands, and we recognise very good reasons why some strong encouragement should be held out by the two railway companies to those who are able and willing to come forward to do the work. Not that in our opinion any such encouragement will be wanting; indeed, from our experience of railways on this side of India, they certainly do not err on the side of illiberality. The advantages that would accrue to the public from the establishment of a system which would enable us to book ourselves and our merchandise through to Bombay are very obvious, and we doubt not that by next cold weather we shall hear that all preliminaries have been completed and that the now projected scheme will be then a fait accompli.

UMRITSUR, AUGUST 6.—I regret much to say that my anticipations regarding the inadvisability of bringing over the families of H.M.'s 106th Regiment to this place have been verified, and that cholera has declared itself amongst the detachment. One case, somewhat mild, occurred on Sunday night, and a second, likely I fear to prove fatal, occurred yesterday. A case, supposed to be cholera, also occurred in the fort on Sunday. The latter was that of a woman, the two others of men. We are again for three days without rain, and the direct rays of the sun when it shines brightly are powerful to a degree. Fever on the increase.

DEATH OF ASSISTANT SURGEON PELL.—We regret to learn from the Pioneer of another death at Murree. Assistant Surgeon Pell, 3rd Battalion Rifle Brigade, was found dead in his bed at that station on the morning of the 31st July. From the appearance of his body, however, there could be no doubt that death had been caused by cholera. The collapse must have been very sudden in the case of the deceased officer. Indeed, the type of cholera at present prevalent in Murree appears to be very fatal, as only one or two recoveries have been reported, and many visitors have left in consequence.

SURGICAL OPERATION.—An operation was performed at Chandney Hospital the other day, by Dr. Baillie, with a somewhat curious result. The case was one of lithotomy, and instead of moving the usual calcareous substance common in such cases, Dr. Baillie, much to his surprise, extracted a slate pencil. Such a phenomenon may prove of interest to our professional readers.

SUICIDE.—Mr. F. H. Parfitt, hair cutter and perfumer, has committed suicide at his residence, 4, Royd-street, Calcutta, by cutting his throat with a razor from ear to ear.

THE MEERUT AND DELHI LINE OF RAILWAY will not, the Delhi Gazette informs us, be opened before October.

BENGAL CIVIL FUND.—The half-yearly meeting of subscribers to the Bengal Civil Fund was held at the Town-hall, on Wednesday, the 31st July, when the proceedings for the past half-year were submitted. The widow of the late Mr. C. Bathoe, and the widow and three children of the late Mr. A. Pigou, were admitted to the benefits of the fund. The grant to Mr. Edmond of a pension was affirmed by the votes of the subscribers, as well as an amendment proposed on Article 21 of the rules. Two subscribers incurred the penalty of exclusion, by omitting to report the birth of children within the appointed time; but in one case a fine of Rs. 100, together with arrears of subscription, bearing interest at 8 per cent., was substituted, and in the other the arrears without the fine. The managers informed the meeting that effect had been given to the conversion of Rs. 895,774 of the balance of the fund, bearing interest at 4 per cent., into capital of a like amount bearing interest at 8 per cent. The Secretary of State has also granted two concessions, viz., the allowing of 5 per cent. interest on the additional capital of the fund, and a uniform rate of exchange of 2 shillings to the rupee. The advantages to the fund of these concessions are very considerable, and it is expected will enable the managers, with consent of the members, to take steps for increasing the benefits or reducing the subscriptions to the fund. This was left for further consideration, the chairman observing that he considered it very desirable members should carefully consider Mr. Monteath's minute on the subject, so as to be prepared to say what course they would prefer to adopt when they were assured on competent professional advice of the extent to which such modifications could be safely carried. The resignation, by Mr. Monteath, of the office of secretary, led to a resolution unanimously adopted, conveying an acknowledgment of the unwearied assiduity and consummate ability displayed by him in conducting the affairs of the fund during the five years of his secretaryship. Mr. Monteath was elected one of the managers, and Mr. A. Mackenzie secretary.

INCREASE IN THE EARNINGS OF THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY.—For the first four weeks of the second half-year of 1867 there has been an increase on the receipts of the East India Railway, as compared with the same period last year, of £51,602. 6s. 5d. This, added to the increase for the half-year ended 30th June last, £123,515. 8s. 8d., gives a total increase in the first thirty weeks of 1867 over the returns for the same period last year of £175,117. 15s. 1d.

APPOINTMENT OF TWO DEPUTY SURVEYORS GENERAL.—We learn that the Secretary of State for India has sanctioned the proposition of the Imperial Government for the appointment of two Deputy Surveyors General on a salary of Rs. 1,000 per mensem. Lieutenant Colonel Gastrell and Colonel Vanrenen have been nominated to the office, and their appointments confirmed by Sir Stafford Northcote.

DEATHS AT DELHI.—The deaths of two hundred and sixty-four Hindoos, one hundred and eighty-seven Mahomedans, and three Christians were registered in the city of Delhi during last month. Of these, four deaths were from small-pox, twenty-four from diarrhoea, two hundred and four from fever, ninety-six from "mason," eighty-five from other diseases, and twenty-one from violence.

MR. A. C. LYALL, C.S., the newly-appointed Commissioner of the Berars, has taken charge of his duties from Major Cadell, who has resigned his appointment. Colonel Stubbs has also taken charge of his duties as Deputy-Commissioner of the Ellichpore district.

THE CHOLERA IN CASHMERE.—The latest accounts from Cashmere report the deaths from cholera at Srinugger alone to average one hundred daily.—Pioneer, Aug. 7.

THE CASE OF MR. PATTERSON SAUNDERS, who was Lord Canning's Cotton Commissioner, came before the Insolvent Court of Calcutta. The record describes him as late a prisoner in the presidency jail, and late of Bera Baree estate in Mahomdee, Oude. His debts amount to Rs. 2,99,131, and under the schedule filed in 1858, Rs. 2,73,201. His assets amount to Rs. 3,250 in land. The insolvent's attorney described him as a gentleman who had been very extensively engaged in tea speculations. He had been arrested at the instance of the Chartered Mercantile Bank, and had remained in jail from the 2nd February until the 6th April. The insolvent was opposed on the ground that he had contracted debts without any reasonable prospect of payment; also that he had received moneys from Mr. Fergusson for a specific purpose to which he had not applied them, but appropriated them to his own use. The insolvent expected to "get up" a tea company in Edinburgh, and from that to pay his debts. He was sworn and discharged.—Friend of India.

TEA CULTIVATION ON THE NEILGHERRIES.—It is said that tea cultivation on the Neilgherries is beginning to be very favourably regarded. Among the successful cultivators, the name of a Parsee gentleman, connected with the well-known firm of Messrs. Framjee Nusserwanjee and Co., of Ootacamund, is mentioned.

VILLAGES OF REFUGE.—We learn that a committee have been sitting in Simla to consider the best system to be adopted for providing villages of refuge along our north-west frontier, into which the natives of our territory could retreat in the event of a raid being made by any hostile tribe. The result has not yet been made public.—Pioneer, Aug. 5.

ACCIDENT TO THE AGRA PONTOON BRIDGE.—It appears that during the latter part of the night before last a boat, which had broken from its moorings somewhere up the river, came down with the current and struck against the bridge, and is said to have carried away fourteen pontoons along with it.—Delhi Gazette, Aug. 8.

THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR has been pleased to invest all collectors of districts in these provinces with the powers of a commissioner to hear appeals from any of their subordinates who have been invested with the powers of a collector under the Licence-tax Act.—Pioneer, Aug. 14.

PROPOSED CENSUS TO BE TAKEN OF THE PUNJAB.—A proposal has been submitted to the Viceroy for taking a census of the population in the provinces under the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, at the close of the current year.—Englishman, Aug. 14.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE EXTRAVAGANCE OF THE RAJAH OF MYSORE.—The Rajah of Mysore seems to have developed in his old age quite a passion for pageants and a lavish expenditure of money. His birthday was only the other day celebrated with extraordinary and unusual magnificence, at a cost variously estimated at from Rs. 70,000 to Rs. 100,000. The adoption of an heir in the teeth of the opposition of the Supreme Government, and the consequent ceremonies, was also marked by a waste of money, which must make the hangers-on of the Mysore Court and the beggars of Seringapatam the most fortunate individuals of their class in India. Yet more recently the Rajah, having been raised to the Knighthip of the Star of India, saw another opportunity for extravagance, or rather his attendants saw another chance of sharing in the profits of a great fete. His Highness applied for a grant of 30,000*l.* to celebrate the bestowal of the honour vouchsafed him by her Majesty with becoming splendour and magnificence. Such a request can deceive no one. The Rajah is an exceedingly old man, who has never distinguished himself by his talents, and who never won for himself the fame of princely liberality until within the last few years; yet Mr. Saunders, the officiating commissioner, seems not to have viewed the proposal with suspicion; in fact he accorded it his support to a certain extent, and after representing the pecuniary position of the Rajah in a somewhat unfavourable light, recommended that a general grant should be made to his Highness of £15,000 or £20,000, to recovered from the accruing interest of the Mysore Trust Fund. No doubt it is advisable to encourage native chiefs to set store by the honours granted them from the Crown, but this can scarcely be accomplished by permitting the bestowal to be the cause or excuse of profuse expenditure on the part of a prince in his dotage. We trust Sir John Lawrence will not yield too ready a sanction to a proposal involving so large an expenditure on so transparent an excuse.

SHOCK OF AN EARTHQUAKE IN SOUTH ARCOT.

—The Tahsildar of Villapuram has reported as follows to the collector of South Arcot:—"Having never experienced an earthquake before, I could not testify to the exact nature of the shock from past knowledge. The fact of having felt a shock is however certain, and the impression it made on me is too strong and deep to leave any doubt as to the occurrence of a phenomenon occasioned by some agencies at work beneath the surface of the earth. The following circumstances have led me to conclude that the shock was caused by an earthquake, though not strong enough to be perceived by extremely superficial observers. The phenomenon occurred at 5 P.M. on the 3rd instant, when I was in the Cutcherry-house with my subordinates engaged in receiving petitions. On a sudden I felt as if I was shaken, and the same was experienced by the rest of the attendants, though they seem to have taken no notice of it, their attention having been probably engaged otherwise. A rattling noise was heard among the tiles of the building (Cutcherry-house), and from the motion of the sound among the tiles, and the direction of the shock, I could at once perceive that the subterranean agency, whether it was a stream of melted minerals or anything else, was moving from the south to the north. The shock did not last longer than one second; so did the sound in the tiles of the roof. The shock was felt at the same time throughout the town, and from the reports I have since called for I learn that it manifested itself on all sides of the Kasbah, except the south. Its influence was felt as far as the village of Parani on the north (thirteen miles), Valavanur on the east (six miles), and Sennacannam on the west (eleven miles). The phenomenon seems to have occurred also at certain villages in the Tindevanum taluq, as I could gather from the ryots of Veedur of my taluq, who had been to those villages. In the town itself some females, who were drawing water from a well in the Bazaar-street, felt suddenly some force shaking them and tending to throw them down, and they were observed running in different directions in confusion. The officials who were with me in the Cutcherry did not report to me of themselves, until they were asked by me. It is rather surprising that the district moonshi, who was on the spot, did not himself feel the shock, although all that were with him felt it and immediately reported it to him. It is to be regretted that no one of the village officers thought it necessary to report the occurrence to me of his own accord and without a requisition from me, but when so many people both in the town and the surrounding villages experienced the unusual shock, it leaves little doubt of the earthquake having occurred."—Madras Times, Aug. 15.

HYDERABAD ASSIGNED DISTRICTS.—We learn with pleasure that material improvements are being made in the Oomrawutty district. A new square is proposed to be erected outside the present city walls of Oomrawutty with clock and clock tower, the townspeople having subscribed Rs. 1,800 for the clock which has been ordered from Dent and Co. of London. A scheme is also under consideration for supplying, what is at present a great want in Oomrawutty, good water to the townspeople. With a new square, town-hall, and library, Government Tehseel Cutcherry, and police buildings, and the branch railway from Budnaira—the deputy commissioner may well observe that the town of Oomrawutty would be all that could be desired. Fancy a town-hall in Oomrawutty—certainly a great cotton mart—while the presidency town of Madras is without such an edifice, notwithstanding the great demand there has been for it for years past.—Athenæum.

NATIVE ENTERPRISE.—We fear that if the development of the resources of India were to depend chiefly upon native enterprise, the unfolding of the material prosperity of the country would then be reserved for a future so very remote as to be almost beyond the range of human speculation. One had supposed that the G.I.P. Railway would have presented an attractive field of investment to the wealthy native capitalists of the Western Presidency as well as to those of Central India. But from returns now before us we perceive that the native shareholders in the G. I. P. Railway Company amount to just one per cent. That is to say, only one affluent native for every hundred English shareholders has been induced to embark in an undertaking which already pays, and offers a sure prospect of considerably greater profits accruing at no distant date. Had the Great Indian been as risky as some other lines are, probably this very small proportion of 1 per cent. would have sunk to 1 per thousand. Of a verity Englishmen are the only real "developers" in the country.—Central India Times, August 10.

UNNATURAL DEATHS.—It appears from returns of unnatural deaths throughout the Presidency for the year 1866, furnished by the Inspector-General of Police, that the total increase in the number of persons who met death by the criminal acts of others which took place in 1865 (370) was maintained in 1866 (371); but a larger number of cases were found homicides (104 against 77 in 1865). There were 267 murders, against 293 in 1865. Fewer murders were committed in Ganjam (37 in 1866 against 51 in 1865), Vizagapatam (13 against 19), Kistna (7 against 15), Kurnool (11 against 19), and Canara (13 against 19); on the other hand, 42 were committed in Bellary, against 26 in 1865, and in North Arcot, 17, against 13. In other districts the increase was important. Under suicides 594 males, 794 females—(1,388) the increase of last year (1,242) was further exceeded by 11.7 per cent., as also the average of five years (1,183). This increase of self-destruction was natural under the prevalent distress. Nine hundred and eighteen (266 males and 652 females) drowned themselves; and 355 (257 males and 98 females) hanged themselves. Suicides by these and other means, except poison, are now fairly ascertained and reported. Of suicides by poison it may be averred that we know very little. It is a secret offence, committed in privacy, and carefully concealed by surviving relations. A further increase in the number of accidental deaths is mainly to be attributed to improved information and regularity on the part of the police. Seventeen thousand three hundred and seven persons are returned as found dead and died from want, &c.; 15,094 deaths of this class, reported for Ganjam, may fairly represent the loss of life during the famine; but I do not consider the returns for Bellary (1,030) accurate, still less those of other districts. Practically, it is exceedingly difficult to ascertain these facts. Numbers die out of sight of the police; infant mortality, which is always enormous at these times, is scarcely heard of or noted; and reports are confined in the main to deaths which occur in the bazaars or public roads, when the police are called on to assist in the interment of the corpse on account of poverty or other reasons.

CHINCHONA CULTIVATION AT WYNAAD.—The collector of Malabar having intimated a desire to distribute a further supply of young chinchona plants in Wynaad, Government have approved Mr. Ballard's proposal, and have directed the acting superintendent of the chinchona plantations to make the necessary arrangements to meet the collector's requisition for 500 well-established plants of the kinds most likely to thrive in the Wynaad. Mr. Ballard has also been desired to report in due course the results of the experiment from the first. The collector of Malabar reports that the first supply of plants when sent were very small, quite large enough for a skilled planter to put out with success, but certainly not robust enough to have much chance unless put out and tended with greater care than could be expected from all, or even most, of the miscellaneous recipients.—Athenæum and Daily News.

BANK OF BOMBAY.

The adjourned general meeting of the proprietors of the Bank of Bombay—the last but one that will ever assemble—was held on Aug. 12th, for the purpose of adopting the yearly report, which had been submitted by the directors at a meeting held ten days previously. The report having been adopted, a special meeting was formed to consider the question of the reconstruction of the bank. The business of this meeting was introduced by the chairman (J. L. Lushington, Esq.), who stated that the Bank of Bengal had intimated to them by telegraph that, in the absence of any prospect of the incorporation of the banks being carried, the Bank of Bengal withdrew from further negotiations. Mr. Chapman, one of the representatives of Government at the Board, availed himself of the opportunity of giving as full a history of the amalgamation controversy as his brother directors would allow; but what his object was in so doing does not clearly appear. Several of the directors had already expressed themselves strongly in favour of reconstruction, and at this meeting others who had vehemently opposed the scheme stated that they too were ready to aid the new bank to the utmost of their power. The prospectus of this bank has been before Government for a considerable time, and now that all the shares have been subscribed for, and the practicability of the scheme placed beyond all question, an early reply may be expected, approving of the terms of the prospectus. The motions which were brought before the meeting, seconded, and carried unanimously, were—

"That in the opinion of the meeting it is desirable that the present Bank of Bombay should be reconstructed by the formation of a new bank with fresh capital."

"That the scheme for such reconstruction, set forth in the prospectus of the new Bank of Bombay, published for the first time on the 19th day of July last, and now read, in the opinion of this meeting, has been framed in the interest of the proprietors of the present bank; that the terms mentioned therein for the purchase of the goodwill and business of the present bank are fair and reasonable; and that the same be, and they are hereby approved, the option being reserved to the shareholders of the present bank to take up their proportion of the reserved issue of shares referred to in the said prospectus, or in lieu thereof to take their respective shares of the assets of the old bank."

"That the directors be requested to convene a special general meeting of the proprietors of the bank for the 20th day of November next, for the following purposes:—To pass such resolutions as may appear necessary for winding up the bank. To appoint liquidators, and fix their rate of remuneration. To authorise the said liquidators to hand over to the new bank of Bombay the business premises of the present bank (to be so taken over at a valuation), and also such of the assets of the present bank as may be necessary to cover any and all accounts taken over by the new bank, with the consent of the persons interested therein; and also to hand over to the said new bank such portions of the assets of the present bank, when realised, in exchange for such of the reserved issue of shares in the said new bank as may be taken up by the shareholders of the present bank in manner provided by the said prospectus, and to pay to dissatisfied shareholders their proportion of the said assets."

It was also intimated to the meeting that a petition to H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor lay on the table for signatures, praying that a full and impartial inquiry may be made into the causes of the loss of above three-fourths of the bank's capital, and that his Excellency would issue a commission for that purpose. This petition has received many influential signatures.—Times of India.

PROSPECTS OF THE COTTON CROP IN THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.

Mr. H. Rivett-Carnac, Cotton Commissioner, Central Provinces and the Berars, has forwarded the following, dated Nagpore, August 5th, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces:—

As I doubt not that the Chief Commissioner has shared in the anxiety that has been felt regarding the effect on the crops of the recent very heavy rains, I think that Mr. Morris may wish to receive a brief account of the inquiries I have made regarding the present prospects of the cotton crop. At Nagpore itself the rain, as the Chief Commissioner is well aware, has been unusually heavy. The monsoon broke on the 16th June when I was in camp in Berar, and within the next twelve days nearly 14 inches of rain fell, 4½ inches of rain falling on the 26th June. The fall of rain during July was also heavy, amounting to 12·70 inches, making a total of 26·70 inches in six weeks. Such heavy rain during June and July is unusual in this part of the country; the average for the same period during the ten previous years being only 19·36 inches; and the average annual rain-fall for ten previous years being but 39·76. I am, however, glad to say that this heavy rain has not been general. In the neighbourhood of Hingunghat there has been much rain, and, as will be seen in a further paragraph, some slight damage has, I fear, been done to the cotton crop. But this unusual weather appears to have been confined to the neighbourhood of Nagpore and Hingunghat. In the Huzoor and Arvee Tehseels of the Wurdah district, where so much good cotton is grown, the rainfall has not been so excessive. The season in Chanda has been very favourable to the crops. In Berar, from which I have just returned, the rain has been all that could be wished, and the cotton crop promises exceedingly well, and looks most healthy. From Kandeish I hear equally good accounts. Mr. Lionel Ashburner, C.S., writing on the 17th, says, "We are having splendid weather for the cotton crop. If the after rains do not fail us, we shall have such a crop as has not often been seen." In fact, Nagpore and Hingunghat appear to have attracted the greater part of the rain. I have several times recently left fine weather in Berar, and have passed in the train through the Wurdah district, where the sun was shining brightly, and the people were busy in their fields, to arrive in Nagpore and find it still raining heavily and continuously.

Fortunately there is not very much cotton sown in the immediate neighbourhood of Nagpore. The returns from the other Tehseels of the district, where cotton is cultivated in greater quantities, show that there the rain has been more merciful, and several landholders I have seen tell me the crop is looking well. At Nagpore itself the experimental fields and seed gardens that have been sown by the Agri-Horticultural Society by Lieutenant Macdougall and by myself luckily escaped the first heavy rain, and the plant is coming up well and looks healthy. In one field, however, which was sown by Lieutenant Macdougall before the first heavy rain, the seed was completely washed out and destroyed, and I fear this may have happened in other cases in which the seed was put in too soon.

The Tehseeldar of Wurdah, and many landholders whom I saw recently when passing through the Wurdah district, and others who have been to visit me here, all assured me that in their parts of the district the crops have not suffered; and certainly from what I could see from passing in the train they appeared to be doing well. But I fear that the crop in the immediate neighbourhood of Hingunghat has suffered, and this is the opinion of Mr. James Melville, of Messrs. Warwick and Co., who is now at Hingunghat. Writing on the 22nd July he said:—"The chances of next season's out-turn have been sadly lessened, I fear, by the unfavourable weather we have had, but much may yet be done if we had a week of sunshine for sowings." Since this was written Hingunghat has had a little fine weather, and I hope the damage may be remedied. Still, even if the neighbourhood of Hingunghat suffer, the effect will be very partial, for in other parts of the district in which cotton bearing the name of "Hingunghat" is grown the season has been excellent.

From Chanda, and the opposite side of the Wurdah, where the cotton is most excellent, the accounts are favourable. During the third week in July the rain near Chanda was very heavy; and Captain Lucie Smith mentions in the weekly meteorological register that on "the 19th and 20th July the waters of the Erai, being driven back by the unusual height of the Wurdah river, spread over the country near Chanda, in an immense lake. The eastern and southern portions of the city were flooded, the water in one place reaching within three feet of the top of the walls." Wheat is chiefly cultivated on the rich lands adjoining Chanda, but cotton is found there, and I fear some may have suffered, but the quantity would not have been great.

From the Nerbubda and Chuttergurh country the accounts are favourable, and thus then, unless some contretemps should happen later in the season, an excellent cotton crop may be expected.—Times of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANOTHER SCANDAL.—A correspondent writing to us from Hydrabad makes known to us the very disagreeable fact that a couple of officers so far forgot their position as to insult a lady at a late theatrical performance given by the military in that station. For the present we shall refrain to mention names, for we believe that the husband of the lady has filed a suit against the offenders, and in all probability we shall know the result of the case in a very short time. Redress, which any sensible magistrate should be ever ready to afford, was sought at the hands of the Collector, Major Philips, but he denied it on the score of non-jurisdiction. An appeal was made to Mr. Coghlan, the Judicial Commissioner, who very properly directed Major Philips to entertain the charge against the two officers. The station of Hydrabad is a small one, and we do not see what utility there is in vesting the cantonment magistrate with magisterial powers.—Sindian, Aug. 7.

A DISGRACEFUL ROW.—About eight o'clock last evening a disturbance, which threatened to become serious, occurred in Hornby-row. It seems that three European gentlemen had been dining together on the first floor of a house in Hornby-row. One account of the origin of the row is that these gentlemen had been annoyed by the impudence of a Parsee lad on the pavement below; another, that the gentlemen had been insulting Parsee ladies, and that the lad only remonstrated with them. However, it appears that the European gentlemen having gone down and given the Parsee a thrashing, a general row ensued, and about thirty Parsees pursued the Europeans up stairs and set upon them in a very savage manner, wounding at least one of the Europeans badly about the face and head. In a very short time a crowd of upwards of 300 had assembled, and but for the timely arrival of the police serious results might have ensued. We understand that only one of the Parsees who committed the assault has been identified, and he was at once taken to the Fort Police-office.—Bombay Gazette, Aug. 12.

FINANCIAL ASSOCIATION OF INDIA AND CHINA.—An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders in this association was held on the 20th of August, J. A. Forbes, Esq., in the chair. The meeting was convened by the liquidator, Mr. John Smith, for the purpose of ascertaining the opinion of the shareholders as to the enforcement of the second call of Rs. 30 per share (made on the 28th of June, before the company was put under liquidation) on such shares as had been forfeited from the non-payment of the call on them. Under the 24th article of association there was power to enforce the call, notwithstanding the forfeiture. The liquidator stated the case with regard to these shares, and, under the circumstances, expressed the opinion that it would not be advisable to enforce payment. After some discussion it was resolved, on the motion of Mr. Greig (agent for the liquidators of the Asiatic Banking Corporation), seconded by Mr. Hurrell, solicitor, that the call should not be enforced in regard to those shares which had been forfeited on account of the non-payment thereof, except in the case of insolvent estates on which claims had already been made and admitted.

PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.—The Report of the Department of Public Instruction in the Bombay Presidency for the year 1866-67 has been issued. The expenditure of Imperial Funds shows an increase upon the expenditure of the previous year at the rate of Rs. 1,29,944.10.6, and a decrease of Rs. 1,87,909.11.1 in the case of Local Funds; the increase being chiefly caused by additional grants to private schools and buildings and additional expenditure in the book department. The tables which usually accompany such reports, and by which alone they can be verified, have for some reason been omitted from the report before us.

COTTON EXPORTED FROM BOMBAY.—From a statement issued by the Commissioner of Customs we learn that 64,313,956 lbs. of cotton, valued at Rs. 24,887,878, were shipped from the port of Bombay during the month of June last. Of this 6,335,216 lbs. were shipped via Suez.

DEPRECIATION IN THE VALUE OF PROPERTY.—The house built by Mr. R. J. Jejeebhoy, near Kirkee, known as "Jamshed Mahal," has been purchased by A. D. Sassoon, Esq., C.S.I., for £15,000. The house cost the builder close upon £80,000.

MR. JOHN STUART, secretary and treasurer of the Bank of Bombay, has tendered his resignation, but he will probably retain his appointment until the bank goes into liquidation.

MINERAL WEALTH OF JAPAN.—Mr. Gower, the British Consul at Hakodadi, refers in his report of this year to the minerals which abound in the island of Yesso, and states that he has visited some of the rich mines which have been abandoned through mere ignorance of the first engineering principles, and thorough disregard for economy of time and labour. Near Ono, a village twelve miles from Hakodadi, there is a good lead mine, situated in a valley well supplied with the necessary wood for arming the galleries, and plenty of water to work machinery, where operations were actually ordered to cease when the vein of ore found was over three feet wide. Further on, some forty miles, in the neighbourhood of Ulop, and in almost as favourable a position, there is another neglected lead mine, which contains about 2½ per cent. of silver; but here also the veins have been followed from the surface, where they are comparatively thin, instead of cross-cutting them lower down with well-directed galleries, and thus meeting them in their thickness. Many spots where this mineral is found are left unnoticed. Copper and iron are found in different forms. On the east coast the Consul has gone over miles and miles of iron sand, which is said to contain over 60 per cent. of pure metal. Gold is found in small quantities in the vicinity of Ulop. There are also springs of asphaltum, with every indication of the probable existence of petroleum not far below the surface. Coal is plentiful. To use the expression of a native officer, cliffs of pure coal form part of the east coast near Kusuri, where the waves wash it into the sea. Russian men-of-war are allowed to help themselves freely to coal, which the Japanese leave waste near their frontier at Karscinnai. Again, at Iwanai, close to a fair anchorage in the Japan sea, the Consul visited a rich mine of excellent soft coal, which burns with a clear fire, gives great heat, and is almost free from ashes; the proportions being 55 per cent. pure coke, 35 per cent. bituminous matter giving gases, and 10 per cent. ashes. An engineer employed in saw mills belonging to a British firm at Hakodadi describes the coal, in a written report, "as good as any English coal he has ever used." The Ainos, or aborigines of Yesso, are so restricted in privileges and socially confined by their despotic rulers, that this interesting race may be considered as slowly disappearing and gradually being replaced by natives of the southern islands.

PRIZE CLAIMS.

Aug. 7.—No. 782.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 733, dated July 17, the following letter from the Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for India is published for general information:—

No. 173.

To H.E. the Rt. Hon. the Governor general of India in Council.

India Office, London, June 24, 1867.

Sir,—I have received and considered in Council the military letter from your Government dated April 8, 1867, No. 88, transmitting for the decision of her Majesty's Government a communication from the General Prize Committee at Calcutta regarding the claims of Colonel Maxwell's column in the Doab, and Brigadier Smith's force at Gwalior, to share in the prize money taken by the Central India field force.

2. I concur in the opinion arrived at by the General Prize Committee in the case of the claim of Colonel Maxwell's column.

3. The property captured by the Central India field force at Jhansi, Calpee, and Gwalior having been incorporated by the Royal Warrant into one general fund, to be distributed to the commander, officers, and men engaged in the operations, that portion of Colonel Maxwell's column, and that portion only, which crossed the Jumna and took part in the reduction of Calpee must be held to have established a right to share in the united prize fund.

4. For the same reasons I am of opinion that the brigade of General Smith, which was despatched from the Rajpootana field force, under the command of Major general Roberts, to the assistance of Sir Hugh Rose, and not only co-operated with his division, but took a very active part in the capture of Gwalior, must also be held to be entitled to share in the Central India prize money, which includes the property captured at Gwalior.

5. This decision has been communicated to the lords cmsrs. of H.M.'s treasury as required by the royal warrant authorising the distribution of the prize money.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

With advertence to the above, all claimants who have not yet submitted their claims should send them in at once.

STAFF.

Aug. 8.—No. 573.—The following circular memorandum, No. 44, dated Head Qrs., Simla, July 22, is published for information:—

NATIVE LANGUAGES.

The C. in C. is desirous of urging upon the field officers of H.M.'s British regts. serving in India, whether regtl., brevet, or local, the advantages that may be derived from passing in the higher standard in Hindustani; as in the absence of such qualification, H.E., however impressed with the fitness of candidates in all other respects, is precluded by the regtlms. from conferring on them appts. in the depts. noted (adjt. gen.'s. dept., qrmr. gen.'s. dept., milly. storekeeper), to which their rank and merit may render them eligible.

2. The C. in C. would beg field officers to recollect, that putting aside the advantages of possible staff employment, their own efficiency is greatly increased for regtl. and higher command, by acquaintance with the customs and language of the country, this being more especially felt in times of active service.

3. The C. in C. takes this opportunity of urging upon comdg. officers the duty of impressing upon the younger officers under their comd. the expediency of qualifying themselves by passing in the languages or other tests required for staff appts.

Court Martial.

PAYMASTER J. CHAMBRE, OF H.M.'S 36th FOOT.

A general Court-martial assembled at Shajehanpore, on Wednesday, July 10, 1867, when Paymaster James Chambre, of the 36th regt. of foot, was arraigned on the following charges:—

1st. With having, at various places between Calcutta and Shajehanpore, between the 1st Dec., 1863, and the 3rd November, 1866, fraudulently misapplied the sum of Rs. 9,514-11-6 or thereabouts, public money for the use of her Majesty's army, received by him as paymaster of the 36th regt. of foot; the said sum of Rs. 9,514-11-6 being the balance shown in the specification attached to this charge, marked A.

2nd. With scandalous conduct, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, in having, between the same places and dates as mentioned in the first charge, fraudulently misapplied the sum of Rs. 4,029-8-10 or thereabouts, received by him, as paymaster, for safe custody, from officers and others of the 36th regiment and station of Shajehanpore.

The Court found the prisoner guilty of the first charge, with the exception of the word fraudulently, and guilty of the second charge, and sentenced him to be cashiered.

Remarks by H.E. the C. in C. in India.

It is with the greatest regret that the C. in C. has been compelled to bring another paymaster to justice for defalcation in his accounts. According to the prisoner's admissions he discovered a deficiency in his public accounts shortly after his arrival in this country; this, as he alleges, was mainly owing to his inexperience. The prisoner then failed to take the course which would have extricated him from difficulty. Instead of at once reporting the deficiency, with a view to investigation and adjustment, it appears, according to the information afforded by him to the court, that he then commenced, and has since pursued, what may be called a system of monthly misappropriation; that is to say, in partly applying the moneys received for the disbursement of one month, to meet the demands of the preceding one, which should have been paid from the moneys properly belonging to the latter. Such a course could only result in the ruin which appears in these proceedings. But further, it must be borne in mind that such misappropriation of public money, although, as thought by the court in this case, it may take place without fraudulent intention, is directly opposed to the certificate signed by the paymaster in the monthly discharge of his duties, as shown in the documentary evidence appended to the record.

W. R. MANSFIELD, General,
Commander-in-Chief in India.

Simla, 5th August, 1867.

MISCELLANEOUS.

REFORMS IN THE INDIAN ARMY.—In a late statistical compilation upon Indian subjects (by Mr. Waterfield, of the India-office) the section relating to the army states that a reduction in the rank and file has been authorised in each regiment of British cavalry and infantry on the Indian establishment, to the extent of fifty-six men in the former and sixty men in the latter branch. In consequence of the increased prices of food the native troops throughout India have been given full pay upon all occasions, the deduction of batta, or allowance, while on leave, being discontinued. This system has been always in force in the Madras army. A system of minor punishments has been introduced into the native army by which commanding officers are enabled to exercise certain definite powers for the suppression of crime and the maintenance of discipline. The system of obtaining meat for the soldiers' rations by direct commissariat agency rather than by contract has been tried at some stations with success, and orders have been given for its extension as far as is consistent with safety. The rations, it seems, are improved, and the saving is estimated at £36,000 per annum. Arrangements have been made by which about seventeen per cent. of the British army in India will be stationed in the hills, each regiment taking its turn of the cool climate. Gymnasias are being established at various stations, and soldiers are employed in such works as whitewashing and repairing their barracks, besides being encouraged to learn trades in the regimental workshops, which are still carried on with success. The grievances of the officers of the Indian army have been dealt with. The military funds have been made over to the India-office. The medical department in India has been reorganised. It was found impossible to amalgamate the staff of the British and Indian services, but the establishment has been revised in a manner calculated to secure efficiency in both forces. The report of the commission on the future organisation and staff salaries of the department did not prove satisfactory, and the Government have been requested to revise it—salaries allotted for civil duties being in all cases consolidated, and irrespective of the army rank held by the incumbent. Three new corps of volunteers were enrolled in the Bengal Presidency during the year 1865-66, viz., the Orissa volunteer infantry in Cuttack, the Assam volunteer cavalry at Debrooghur, and a company of infantry volunteers at Golaghaut. Each of the corps number from sixty to seventy gentlemen in its ranks.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—(CHATHAM, Sept. 19).—A detachment of sappers and miners of the Royal Engineers has been placed under orders to proceed from head-quarters to Abyssinia, for service with the troops about being despatched to that country. The Royal Engineers will be under the command of Lieutenants Puzey and Morgan, and will comprise parties of photographers, surveyors, and non-commissioned officers and men of the Royal Engineer Train for pontoon service. The detachment selected for this duty is now undergoing a course of instruction in military signalling at head-quarters, Brompton Barracks. A notification has been received at the head-quarters of the Royal Engineer establishment, that volunteers are required from the corps of Royal Engineers, to be attached to three depot companies of Royal Engineers about to be formed in India. The volunteers will not be required to leave England until the commencement of the approaching year.

manufacturer regarding injury supposed to be inflicted on his trade by the fact of the Indian authorities using Government made articles (Howard's iron ploughs and chaff cutting machines) instead of importing them from England. "The question, however (observes our contemporary), is solely as to which is the most economical system, and in the absence of proof to the contrary the inference must be that the Government find themselves best served by the course they have adopted." It is stated that the manufacture of agricultural machinery is regularly carried on at the workshops of the Civil Engineering College of Roorkee, and other places.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 18th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £99,500; and to Madras, £500. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11½d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 21 per cent., those above will be allotted in full. No tenders for bills on Bombay were invited. The result shows an increased demand for remittances on the two presidencies. The minimum is 1 per cent. less than it was on the last occasion, when the advance was too high to admit of offers being made; but it is still 1 per cent. above that on the 21st ultimo.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 12.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Nyanza, Captain Weeks, sailed hence this afternoon, with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, &c. She took out sixty-seven passengers and a general cargo, including bar gold, £10,000; bar silver, £10,830; and silver coin, £750.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 17.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Tanjore, with the heavy portion of the above mails, has arrived. She brings forty-nine passengers, £7,174 in specie, and a general cargo, including 1,214 bales of raw silk, value £118,000 sterling. She experienced fine weather during the passage. On the 7th instant, off Malta, she spoke the Russian barque Thor; on the 10th, off Algiers, the steamships Hartlepool and Arcadia, and barque Coral Island, of Scarborough; on the 12th, off Cape St. Vincent, steamship Alabama and steamship Lindsay; on the 13th, off Lisbon, steamship Oneida; and on the 14th, off Villano, the steamship Nyanza.

ACCIDENT TO THE P. AND O. STEAMSHIP "SUZAT."—(SUEZ, Sept. 16.)—The P. and O. Company's steamship Suzat, having on board the mails and passengers for India, China, and Australia, which left Suez on the 4th instant, and grounded on a reef about ninety miles from that port, at 2 A.M. on the 5th, came off the reef on Saturday evening last, and reached Suez, in tow of the Madras, yesterday midnight. The leakage was kept under by the bilge pumps, and it is not supposed that the ship is seriously injured. About 1,000 bales of cargo for India and China were thrown overboard; all "accelerated" cargo saved and on board Madras. The company's steam-tug and lighters remain by the reef. The mails and passengers ex Suzat left Suez for Calcutta, &c., in the Nubia, at 6 P.M. on the 11th instant.

THE CHINA TEA RACE.—The Taeiping arrived in the London Docks on Saturday at 2 P.M., and is again the winner of the China clipper race. She left Foochow at noon on the 4th of June, thus completing the voyage in 102 days.

ORIENTAL MANUSCRIPTS

(CHIEFLY PERSIAN),

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

* * In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

221. RUK'ATI JAMI.—"The Letters of Jami," the celebrated poet, whose works we have already described under No. 41 and elsewhere. The letters are all addressed to the poet's learned friends and contemporaries, and they treat chiefly on literary and moral subjects, more especially on the Sufi doctrines. The MS. is in a fair state of preservation, occasionally a little worm-eaten on the outward margin, but the text left untouched; it is written in a fair Ta'lik character, and on good straw-coloured Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 177, ll. 15. £1. 1s.

222. GULISTANI SA'DI.—"The Gulistan of Sa'di." This is a very fine copy of a highly-popular work, which we have already described in more places than one. The present copy is written in a beautiful Shafi'a hand, on very fine glazed Indian paper, with a rich 'Anwan and elegantly ruled margins. It is well bound, and interleaved throughout with fine English writing paper. 8vo., pp. 184, ll. 14. £1. 11s. 6d.

223. NIGARISTANI WAKI.—"The Gallery of Pictures." We have already fully described the nature and contents of this work under No. 119. Suffice it here to say that the present copy is in the highest state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine glazed Indian paper of various tints. Transcribed in A.D. 1621. 8vo., pp. 660, ll. 17. £2. 12s. 6d.

225. TAZKIRATU-L-SAFADI.—"Memoirs by Safadi." This volume contains the thirteenth and fourteenth portions of Safadi's interesting collection of memoirs. We have already described the first livraison under No. 215. This MS. is written in a similar Naskhi hand to that of No. 215, on very fine and strong straw-coloured Indian paper. It begins with a very rich 'Anwan, and the rubrics are all written in red. The margins are neatly ruled, and the text pointed in all essentials. 4to., pp. 440, ll. 17. £4. 4s.

226. MAJMA'U-L-INSHA.—"A Collection of Letters compiled by MUHAMMAD AMIN during the reign of Muhammad Shah." The work is divided into twenty-nine sections, each section containing letters on some particular subject. Most of the letters are real and genuine, commencing with royal firmans and ending with domestic inquiries after health, etc. The work is in perfect preservation, well bound, written in a fair Nasta'lik character, on fine glazed Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 624, ll. 17. £1. 11s. 6d.

227. AL KUR'AN.—"The Kur'an, or Musalman Standard of Law and Religion." This work is so well known from the translation of it by Sale and others that we need not say anything here respecting its contents. This MS. is beautifully written in the Naskhi character, fully pointed, on fine glazed Indian paper. It is all in a state of perfect preservation, strongly and neatly bound in Morocco. Transcribed in A.D. 1686. 8vo., pp. 992, ll. 10. £3. 3s.

228. TUTI NAMA.—"Tales of a Parrot," by NAKHSHABI. This is a fine old copy of a very popular work which we have already described under No. 87. The MS. is in a complete state of preservation. It is neatly and strongly bound in the original Oriental boards; a few pages at the end are supplied in a more modern hand. It is written in a very fine Ta'lik character, on good Indian straw-coloured paper, with margins neatly ruled. 8vo., pp. 550, ll. 15, £1. 1s.

229. HALLU-L-MUSHKILAT.—"Solution of the Difficulties;" being an ample commentary on the Arabic Grammar entitled al-Kafiyat, by IBNU-L-HAJIB. It is a fine old copy in excellent condition, with numerous marginal and interlineary notes, written on fine glazed straw-coloured paper, in a fair Ta'lik character. 8vo., pp. 378, ll. 17. £1. 11s. 6d.

230. AL KUR'AN.—"The Kur'an," well written on glazed Turkish paper, in the Naskhi character, and fully pointed as the work always is. This copy unfortunately is defective, wanting some chapters at the beginning and a page or so at the end. Small 4to. pp. 816, ll. 15. 10s. 6d.

231. INSHA'E HARKARN.—"Specimens or Forms of Letters," by HARKARN. A collection of letters on various subjects, similar to the work which we have described under No. 226. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, neatly bound, written on fine glazed Indian paper in a beautiful Shikasta hand. Small 8vo. pp. 162, ll. 10. 15s.

232. SHARHI BOSTAN.—A Translation and Commentary, in Turkish, of the Bostan of Sa'di. The Persian text is given in full, then a translation of the same into Turkish. It is apparently a Turkish version of a similar work by SABURI, an Arabian author, who flourished some fifty years earlier than the Turkish commentator. This MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fair Ta'lik character, on fine glazed Levant paper. Transcribed in A.D. 1507. 4to., pp. 340, ll. 27. 15s.

234. SRI BHAGAVAT.—"Sri Bhagavat Parana." This MS., like what we have already described under No. 218, gives a full and copious account of the birth and youthful career of Krishna. The MS. has been slightly exposed to damp, but the text is still quite legible throughout. It is written in the Nasta'lik character, and seems to be a Persian version of the tenth book of the Bhagavat, though not identical with No. 218 above mentioned. 8vo., pp. 601, ll. 13. 15s.

235. GULISTANI SA'DI.—"The Gulistan of Sa'di." This is a very serviceable copy of a highly-popular work which we have already over and over again described. This MS. is in excellent preservation, written on strong glazed Levant paper. Small 4to., pp. 214, ll. 13. 12s.

236. TUTI NAMA.—"The Tales of a Parrot." This is a very fine copy of a highly-esteemed and popular work which we have already described under No. 228 and elsewhere. This MS. is in the most perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine straw-coloured paper. From its appearance it cannot be less than 300 years old. A few leaves at the end are written in a less elegant and more modern hand, so as to render the work complete. Small 4to. pp. 478, ll. 16. £1. 5s.

237. JGG BASHIST.—A philosophical work, translated from the Sanskrit, which we have already described under No. 181. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fair Nasta'lik character, on common Indian paper. Small 8vo., pp. 300, ll. 16. 15s.

238. KITABU-L-DAWAT.—"A Book of Muhammadan Prayers," in Arabic, by NIZAMU-L-DIN AL HUSAINI AL HASANI. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Naskhi hand, on fine straw-coloured glazed Indian paper, with margins richly ruled. Small 4to., pp. 96, ll. 14. 5s.

239. AKHLAKI JALALI.—A celebrated work on Ethics, by JALALU-L-DIN, of Ardawan, who lived about A.D. 1640. It is written in the same style as the works on Ethics by NASIRU-L-DIN of Tus, and HUSAIN VA'IZ. The MS. is in the most perfect state of preservation, written in a fair Ta'lik character, on fine straw-coloured and glazed Indian paper, with ruled margins. Small 4to., pp. 388, ll. 18. 15s.

240. GULZARI HAL.—"A Romance in Persian," translated from the Sanskrit. It is in a perfect state of preservation, and evidently written by the transcriber of No. 237. It is in the same Nasta'lik character, and on precisely the same quality of paper. Small 4to., pp. 240, ll. 14. 10s.

241. MUKHTASAR FI-L-SARF.—"A Brief Treatise on Arabic Grammar," written in a fine Naskhi hand, such as is common in Turkey; on good Levant paper, with ruled margins. Small folio, pp. 48, ll. 13. 2s. 6d.

242. AL KUR'AN.—"The Kur'an." A most beautiful specimen of the Naskhi character, small and very neatly written, on fine silk paper, with illuminated title pages and richly ruled margins. It has the text fully pointed, together with all the characteristic symbolical marks and rubrics written in red. Small 8vo. pp. 1000, ll. 12. £9. 9s.

246. HADIKA'E HAKIM SANA'E.—"The Garden of Hakim Sana'i," otherwise entitled "Hadikatu-l-Hakikat," or the "Garden of Truth." This is a beautifully written copy of a work highly esteemed among those of the Sufi sect. We have already given a brief account of it under No. 28. Suffice it to say with regard to the present copy that it is written in a very fine and small Ta'lik character, on excellent straw-coloured glazed Indian paper. It commences with a rich 'Anwan, and the margins are tastefully ruled throughout. The rubrics are all written in red ink. A few pages at the end are very partially worm-eaten, but nothing to detract from the real merits of the work. Small 8vo. pp. 450. Each page contains twenty-four baits or couplets. £2. 12s. 6d.

247. PANCHA RATNA.—"The Five Precious Gems," being five favourite episodes from the Mahabharata, commencing with the Bhagavad-Gita. The work is in the most thorough state of preservation, written in the most beautiful Devi Nagari character, on very fine glazed Indian paper, with margins very neatly ruled. The MS. contains several admirably executed paintings illustrative of the Hindu Mythology. Small oblong 8vo. very neatly bound, pp. 410, ll. 7. £3. 8s.

248. KASIDA'E SA'DU-L-DIN.—"An Idyll," by MUHAMMAD SA'DU-L-DIN, in eulogy of Colonel Ballie when he was British Resident at Oude. It is a most beautiful specimen of Ta'lik penmanship, written on fine paper, mounted on pasteboard. The spaces between the lines covered with liquid gold. It consists of fourteen folio pages, each page containing four couplets. Written in A.D. 1809. £1. 11s. 6d.

249. MADH NAMA'E HAKIM.—"A Poem," in praise of the late David Smith, Esq., Judge and Magistrate of the District of Hoogley, in Bengal. The writer was 'ABDU-L-WAHID KHAN, one of the Judges Wakils; like the preceding poem it is, as we may expect, highly eulogistic. It is written in a large and very distinct Ta'lik character, about the year 1832 of our era, on very fine European paper, with spacious margin. Folio, pp. 55, ll. 10. £1. 11s. 6d.

250. NASA'IHI ABUZURJMIHR.—"The Counsels of Abuzurjmihir," who was Grand Wazir to the celebrated Naushirwan in the sixth century of our era. They consist of a number of questions propounded by Naushirwan and answered by the Wazir, all of them inculcating some moral maxim, very like the Proverbs of Solomon. The MS. is in a fine state of preservation, written in a fair Ta'lik character, on fine Indian paper. 8vo. pp. 16, ll. 15, 10s. 6d.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

UNERRING PRECISION.—When the health is breaking down from the continuance of some weakening discharge, when the ulcers refuse to heal, and extending mischief is threatened, then is the time to try the potency of Holloway's healing Ointment and purifying Pills. No treatment for giving ease and safely leading to a cure can be compared to this. The Ointment cleans and cools the foulest and most angry sores, diminishes the inflammation, reduces the swelling, prevents the growth of proud flesh, and spares both pain and danger.
Hundreds testify from their own personal experience to the unvarying success attending the use of Holloway's medicament in cases of ulcerated legs, enlarged veins, scurvy skin, and swelled ankles.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 24th of August and Madras to the 27th of that month.

Calcutta was still in its "silly season," but prospects were pleasant, owing to the expected arrival of the Viceroy and the Department, who, finding Simla too unhealthy to hold them, were returning to the capital before the usual time. The Council, which had been sitting in the Hills, was adjourned, pending its arrival at head quarters, and preparations were generally being made for the start. This body, by the way, had been transacting some rather important business during its rustication, which was thought at Calcutta not quite constitutional, considering the necessary absence of the additional and independent members.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal was still on his tour in the tea districts, and was not expected in Calcutta until the end of the month.

The latest reports from Orissa were extremely favourable. The demand for rice at the Government rice depots was increasing, but as these indents are paid for, although at a fixed and moderate rate, yet they serve to indicate the influx of money into the country. The large number of labourers employed by the Department of Public Works and the Irrigation Company has helped to throw a considerable sum of money into the province, and Government seems to be desirous of adding to it by stationing a regiment at Cuttack. The crops throughout the country are very favourable, and the rain abundant, so that the prospect of a long season of plenty is not unlikely.

There were "great expectations" concerning a great Durbar to be held at Lucknow on the 12th of November next—the object being the reception of the Talookdars by the Viceroy. His Excellency proposes to make a State entry into the city on elephants on Saturday, the 9th November. As at Agra, a levée will be held on the subsequent Monday, and the durbar on Tuesday. The foundation-stone of Canning College will be laid on Wednesday. There will be a review, and the Talookdars will give a fete to the viceroy on Thursday. On Monday his Excellency will leave for Calcutta, arriving there on Tuesday, the 19th.

There will be several minor entertainments. Such is the plan as at present fixed, but it is subject to possible alteration. The Durbar, being local, will not be on the same scale of magnificence as the Imperial gathering at Agra last November, but it will be thoroughly Oriental in its character, and be perfect within the limits fixed. The settlement of the Oude controversies according to the wishes of the Talookdars, to which Sir John Lawrence has pledged the Government, preserving, at the same time, the just rights of other classes and of the State, will give a peculiar interest to this ceremonial, and contribute to the increased contentment of the great landlords and to the prosperity of their tenantry.

The Friend of India mentions an impression which is general and very natural, that the journey of the Shah of Persia to Meshed has more to do with the advance of Russia and with intrigues towards Herat than with the chastisement of the Turkomans. Mr. Alison, our Minister at Teheran, has, however, assured the Government of India that this is not the case. The Shah, it is believed, still remembers his punishment in 1856-57. But his understanding with Russia is so intimate, the garrison of Herat has been so reduced by the despatch of four thousand men to assist Shere Ali in his struggle for Cabul, and our policy of neutrality has been of late so consistent, that the Shah probably wishes to be ready for whatever may turn up. Our unusually interesting correspondence, coming up to 30th July, represents the Shah as plotting for Herat. But, at the same time, it may be natural that communications should pass between the Shah at Meshed and Yakoob Khan at Herat; for, as one consequence of the denudation of the Herat garrison for the support of the Ameer, the Turkomans in the neighbourhood of Herat have unquestionably during the last few years carried their incursions into Persian territory to an unusual excess.

It is stated that the negotiations for the new treaty with the King of Burmah are advancing satisfactorily, but no date can yet be fixed for the departure of Colonel Fytche for Mandalay. Alluding to this subject, the Indian Daily News says:—"The French have annexed Cambodia, and Colonel Fytche will probably meet at Mandalay a French expedition from Saigon. It is likely this will suggest the question that has been indefinitely postponed as to the nature of our future relations with Burmah. We must either help the old King to govern or take his country from him. The people would welcome the change—which, if not effected by us, will certainly be attempted by the French Government, that has now acquired a firm footing in South-Western Asia. Both Russia and France will soon be our intimate Asiatic neighbours, and Asia, it is not unlikely, will once again be the theatre of great and eventful battles."

Cholera has disappeared in such stations as Simla and Lahore, but continues to break out virulently in stations hitherto free from the scourge. There seems to be no doubt that the Hurdwar fair spread it widely over the country, and that it will not die away very easily.

The Madras papers are principally prolific in long leading articles. Of local news there is little to record. The Governor had returned to the Presidency, and contemplated an early visit to Ootacamund. The High and Small Cause Courts had been closed for the annual vacation, and would not be opened again until the third week in October, the judges and members of the bar joining in the meanwhile in the general fitting to the Hills and Bangalore.

On the night of the 23rd ult. Madras was visited by a heavy thunder storm, and rain fell for more than five hours. The steeple of St. Andrew's Kirk and one of the sheds in the Custom-house were struck by lightning, causing, however, very little damage.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which may be expected in London on Thursday next.

A TELEGRAM has been received at the India-office, stating that the troop ship Jumna had arrived at Calcutta on the 21st of September with damaged machinery. It has been supposed that the troops on board were some of those intended for the Abyssinian expedition, but this is an evident mistake, as the expedition had not been determined on when the ship sailed.

We are glad to see that a day has been at last fixed for the first distribution of the Banda and Kirwee prize money, which is to commence on the 24th of October next. The official particulars will be found in another column.

THE MUNICIPAL BILL.—People in Madras are once more beginning to think of the New Municipal Bill. No reply has yet been given to the petition forwarded to the Supreme Government, but as Simla is a long way off, and the rays of India's star are long in reaching this remote corner of the empire, we have not yet begun to wonder much at it.—Madras Times.

Palliser, Lieut. Pearson, Mrs. J. B. Eagle and infant, Mrs. Gordon. From MADRAS.—Mrs. Harding and two children, Lieut. Whitley, Mr. Hodgson, Ensign Cunningham.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

MONDAY, September 30, 1867.

LAND AND LABOUR IN INDIA.

We have borrowed the title of our article from a book by Professor Lees, of Calcutta, which has been lately published in this country by Messrs. Williams and Norgate; and we take the opportunity of recommending the work to all who are sufficiently interested in the subject to care to see it treated in an original and suggestive manner, and with a remarkable freedom from personality or party bias. Interest in the subject is indeed essential to the enjoyment of all writings on such questions; but we may fairly presume that there will be but few, among our readers at all events, who do not care somewhat for a matter on which the common benefits of England and India so very much depend.

Indian politics have been said to contain no distinctly marked parties; but from our present point of view this is by no means to be accepted as a truth. There is a party, and a very noisy if not a very large one, whose view on the Land too often is that they ought to have facilities for getting hold of the most suitable, and on Labour that the public ought to be able to command it whenever they please, without in either case being bound by the ordinary rules and laws that govern the transactions between man and man. On the other hand, there is a party, and fortunately for the people of India it is by no means a weak one, that considers the honour of Great Britain concerned in seeing that no injustice is done in her name, and the errors of this party are all that need correction to give the most cheering guarantees to the statesman and the philanthropist.

The first-named class of self-elected captains of industry are in the habit of assuming the name of Developers of the Resources of the Country; perhaps the French word "Exploiteurs" would more accurately define their position. But as the Baron of Bradwardine said in regard to the question of "Prince" or "Pretender," a good travelling name is a great thing, and we see no reason why the party referred to should not be popularly known (for a travelling name) as the "Developers." We have no intention to condemn them indiscriminately. Their influence in the future, for good or evil, is not a thing to settle in a hasty phrase. There are men no doubt amongst them possessed of capital, integrity, and knowledge; and such men are, perhaps, whatever be their personal views, among the truest benefactors of the people of India. On the other hand, we do not mean to espouse with reckless eulogy the cause of the party which represents the old India-house views, and whom for convenience sake we may be allowed to call "the Old Indians." Such occurrences as the havoc in Orissa plainly show the side upon which their principles go too far and their action falls short.

It is because we think we see traces of the formation of a third party which, while insisting on the existence of those sound conditions for want of which European land-holding in India has almost come to an end, yet will not tolerate the rigid administrative pedantry of the older Philistines, that we, in spite of minor blemishes, approve of the labours of Professor Lees. Himself in Government employ, yet, as we believe, connected with agricultural speculations, he is in some respects well suited to stand forth as a representative man; and without bating a jot of the true basis of economic science, to draw attention to the principles of prudence and of humanity which underlie the roots of its vague and varying applications. The Indigo ruin was caused, as men far more prejudiced than the Professor are now forced to admit, not by any precipitate order of Sir J. P. Grant, but by the vicious system of the planters which called forth Sir J. P. Grant's orders. On the other hand, the collapse (only we trust temporary) of the Assam tea interests seems to have been in a great measure due to administrative meddling, either going too far or not going far enough, according to opinion, on the part of the late Lieut.-Governor of Bengal.

If this be so, you have clear signs of the old complaint, "faults on both sides," and a fair illustration of the necessity which exists for the formation of a moderate party which, while encouraging all legitimate enterprise on the part of the developers, shall maintain that reasonable and just protection for the natives which was perhaps sometimes overdone by the old Indians.

INDIA AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION. No. I.

"OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS" have nearly exhausted the French Exhibition in the daily papers. For the last six months they have been ransacking its contents for literary material, and during that time have dealt with almost every department except that of India. Not that they have neglected the East generally. They have written letters about the collections from China and Japan, having been particularly appreciative of such picturesque matters as the representations of the Tea Houses of those countries, where real native ladies dispense the grateful herb to cheered—and perhaps inebriated—visitors. They have told their readers about everything they have seen in connection with Turkey, Egypt, Algeria, and Morocco, having especially devoted their attention to a small place like Tunis, on account of the conspicuous manner in which it is represented in the Champs de Mars. We allude to a café where you may drink apocryphal native champagne, coffee beyond the ken of man, and brandy, which is simply the worst in the world, while listening to the strains of a band of musicians who maintain a distracting din from morning to night, and are not even quite what they pretend to be, for they include an English girl who, in a gushing costume mainly composed of turban and trowsers, sings English songs from the music-halls. Of all these—not to mention other—Oriental characteristics “Our own Correspondents” have discoursed in pleasant tone; but of India they have had nothing to say, except in one instance, and that has been made manifest only during the last few days.

Considering the habitual disregard with which we are in the habit of treating our most important foreign dependency—that an Indian debate in the House is a signal for flight on the part of the members—that an Indian book is usually voted a bore, except when it is saved by a dash of scandal—and that “Indians” in society are best appreciated when they say nothing about India—the neglect of our Eastern Empire at the Exhibition seems the most natural thing in the world. But there is a particular reason in the present case why the Indian department should have been passed over. It is so small and insignificant that visitors might wander for days among the collections without being aware that it has any existence. The fact is not the fault of India. The local Government did its best to give the country a prominent place, and the Commissioners of the several Presidencies—Mr. Dowlans for Calcutta, Dr. Birdwood for Bombay, and Major Michael for Madras—exerted themselves with all local enthusiasm to carry out the end in view. We have also Dr. Forbes Watson, the reporter for the India Office, who has fulfilled his functions with an activity worthy of his position and abilities. But what could all these gentlemen do to make India prominent, when the governing authorities persisted in keeping her in the background? If any country deserved the honour of a complete section of the building, worthy of a “Court,” surely it was one which is as large as Europe, which has nearly two hundred millions of inhabitants, which is equally remarkable for its productiveness, its manufactures, and its arts. But instead of having assigned to her an area such as has been freely accorded even to minor European States, India has been put off with a section inadequate for the display of a tenth part of the articles intended for exhibition. Her raw products in particular, notwithstanding that they are the real representatives of her resources, have been thrust almost entirely aside. As an instance we need point to the case of cotton alone. There was enough cotton sent from India to form a “trophy” as significant as that which Australia erected to represent her gold. But there was no room for it when it came, so it was treated as an article of commerce, and ruthlessly sold. The only idea given of the capabilities of the second cotton growing country in the world is a museum collection of minute specimens—all properly classified and recorded—but with nothing to strike the eye or that is likely to be seen by any persons not actually in search of it. The other staples are similarly treated, with the single exception of tea, which is exhibited on a proper scale, and makes a proper impression upon visitors.

In manufactures and arts there is a better field for display; but even in these departments we find far more material than can be made use of, a large number of articles being still locked up, or produced from time to time to supply the place of others that are sold. The cases in which are contained the arms, the jewellery, the hardware, the silks, the muslins, the ornamental objects, and the miscellaneous pretty things which have been sent in such profusion, are insufficient to do them justice. The articles are sadly crowded together, and if they make the most splendid show in the building, as they certainly do, it is on their own merits alone. It is a great pity, for the sake of the figure which she might have made in the Exhibition, that India is not an independent country. In that case she would have held an independent place, and attracted the first attention. But, included as she necessarily is, in the English department, she has not even the same advantage as a colony, which is sure to have powerful and pushing friends—whereas India must take what she can get, and may not remonstrate. All she has been able to get is a small triangular space, utterly inadequate to her wants; and even this has been so encroached upon by her neighbours as to be divided, and rendered far less effective than was necessary under the original conditions.

BENGAL.

MILITARY FURLOUGH REGULATIONS.

BOSWELL.—“I talked to the officers whom we had left to-day, how much service they had seen, and how little they got for it, even of fame.”

JOHNSON.—“Sir, a soldier gets as little as any man can get.”

Some of our readers may have fallen in with the thrilling and highly illustrated narrative of a wicked princess, decked in pearls and diamonds, residing in a romantic castle overlooking the Rhine, as castles in that part of the world invariably do, who caused such of her children as were born with long noses to be precipitated from the battlements. At a great conclave of ladies, profoundly versed in the laws of physiology, attended by their respective nurses, it had been determined that if infants would have long noses in opposition to the clearly expressed wish of their parents they must be prepared to accept the penalty. Hence, the aforesaid princess simply exercised a discretion vested in her as the mother of a family, and the story, which terminates somewhat abruptly, adds that the fortifications being lofty, the rocks below sharp as needles, and the babies delicate, no complaints were ever heard. However little the children themselves may have approved of the system in its abstract aspect, there could be no question about its practical success. If nature declined to adapt its laws to the tastes of these exigentes mammas, and infantile nasal protruberances of undue proportions continued as plentiful as ever, the difficulty was effectually dissipated by a fall of eight-and-seventy feet. This story reminds us very keenly of the treatment vouchsafed by Government, under certain time-honoured regulations, to such Indian officers as have the misfortune to fall sick in the performance of their duty, and are compelled to proceed home upon furlough. Instantly they are thrown over the battlements. Their fate is scarcely less melancholy, certainly not more deserved, than that of the German babes in the fable. It is not their fault that indisposition, like noses, will come, nevertheless they are punished because some nerves or gastric juices rebel under ninety-five degrees of Fahrenheit. Spartans who dared to grow too fat were soundly whipped; just as Indian officers presuming to become indisposed are otherwise punished.

The late East India Company was pleased to ignore the mortal nature of its servants. It would have exacted centuries of uninterrupted labour and devotion, had it been possible. The Court of Directors had bought their pound of human flesh, and were not disposed to forego the smallest fraction. An officer with a weak head or liver was a wickedness never contemplated by merchants, who purchased men as cows and horses are purchased. The contract never calculated upon derangement of the mesentery. Shylock had stipulated, not for so many years of toil under a burning sun as might be possible to the endurance of the individual, but for a specified period, and the bond laid down the nature of that period with nicety. “A righteous man,” says the Proverbs, regardeth the life of his beast,” but this religion had never reached as far as Leadenhall-street. As the agreement refused to recognise the contingency of failing health and strength, those vices were properly punished. Whether struck down by the enemy's shot, or physically crushed by over-devotion to the public service, there must be no mention among officers of leaving India, nay, latterly, of quitting their posts. Those who exposed themselves most fearlessly to promote the glory of their native land and the interests of their masters, received and to-day receive, under that olden and vicious dispensation, precisely the same modicum of consideration as was shown to the most apathetic and worthless. True, in the event of extreme sickness they might insist upon returning to England (the India House was fortunately powerless to compel its medical servants to commit murder), but for every day so spent twenty-four hours would thereafter be required of them in this country. Quantity and not quality of work was thus made the sole criterion and passport to pension. Not so much done, so much endured, but rather thirty or forty years spent in India, doing anything anyhow. If the Court of Directors so far enacted the Good Samaritan in this matter as to permit their invalid officers to proceed home, it was, in the language of Sydney Smith, without the oil and twopence, the full charge of such leave, both as to time and money, being made to fall upon the sick. Not only was their pay reduced one-half by a munificent Government, but they must make good every moment spent in the absurd attempt to recover health. More sensible men remained in India and—died. The India House washed its hands of bad constitutions, reckoning at nought the mental and physical advantages derived by Indian officers from an occasional return to their native land, the improved tone of the army, and the increased intelligence and energy which resulted as a natural consequence. Nay, before long, the views held to the east of 'Temple-bar spread to India itself, and it became fashionable to sneer at officers as "Company's bad bargains," because they had had the misfortune to outgrow in Devonshire brandy-pawnee, hookahs, and other habits peculiar to the good old days. Wasting time at home grew into a favourite and severe expression of condemnation. On the other hand, to have served over an unbroken period of thirty or forty years in India came to imply ability and brilliant parts; such an one was esteemed deserving of advancement, and adamant heads and unimpaired livers assumed the place of genius. But there was no consideration for any other class. Like weakly children among savage tribes, or the long-nosed babes in the German story-book, Indian officers of delicate constitutions were ruthlessly sacrificed. Not allowed to count as service the periods of leave taken under compulsion, their doom was even more painful than that of the wandering Jew—growing older and older without approaching the period when their probation would cease, toiling for pensions denied to them by the letter of their contract, what hopes or prospects were permitted to them? Columbus hung up in his house the fetters in which he was carried home from the country his genius had given to Spain, as a perpetual memorial of ingratitude, and Indian officers treat after the same fashion the furlough rules under which they have so long suffered.

We believe it to be no exaggeration to affirm that in no army in the world, however harsh and parsimonious its regulations, are officers treated like those of India. Serving in an admittedly bad climate, more often in the field than any other military force, the commonest considerations of humanity are refused to them. They may sink under disease acquired when fighting the enemies of their Queen and country, or in the discharge of other duties, but save for two months in each year, all leave, except that taken at their own private cost, to be made good thereafter, is peremptorily denied. All the old Indian Government sought was to extract its pound of flesh; devotion and fidelity in its servants counted for nothing, had they not been purchased, flesh and blood, for a term of years? and unfortunately those slave-driver principles are perpetuated to-day under the apparent sanction of her Majesty. Very different is the treatment accorded to officers of the royal service, and we feel assured that the subject has only to be brought before the home authorities to lead to a reconsideration of rules which would be unjust if applied to beasts of burden, and are simply iniquitous when enforced against British officers serving their country in a remote dependency of the Crown.—Friend of India.

THE COMING CONFLICT IN AFGHANISTAN.

CABUL, July 19.

A messenger of Ameer Shere Ali Khan has been caught in Kohistan, and sent in. A messenger of the Wullees, who left Toorkistan only ten days ago, has also arrived. Both report the Ameer to be constantly employed in inspections and preparations, while Fyz Mahomed Khan is busily engaged in providing and distributing pay to the troops, but there is a want of money, only six months' pay in cash, and grain is being given out of pay of current year. The revenues of Toorkistan will not suffice for payment of the balance. In the Ameer's camp it was confidently asserted that the advance was delayed merely till the arrival of Futteh Mahomed Khan. The Ameer's advanced guard was at a place four or five miles on the Cabul side of Muzar Shurreef. The Wullees, in private conversation, states that, whereas he has revenues at his disposal amounting to 40 or 50 lakhs, and still finds it difficult to make both ends meet in preparing for the coming encounter, how can the Ameer, with less than half that sum available and with more numerous troops to satisfy, expect to meet the demand on him? In that view of the case it appeared to the Wullees that the first move forward would be made from the Cabul side, after arrival of Azim Khan; the more so, that the recent discomfiture of Ursula Khan Jubbar Kheyl would have disappointed the Ameer in his expectation that disaffection and risings in the Kohistan would occur to embarrass the Cabul Government at this juncture. It seemed to the Wullees that, until the Ameer could invite all the "Ooloosdars" of Cabul to resist the Cabul Government, and until the latter became too weak to coerce any internal insurrection, the Ameer would be powerless to overthrow him.

A messenger of Mirza Mahomed Toahir Khan has reached the Wullees from Chitral, and reported that Meer Mahomed Shah and other relations of Meer Zuman Shah (deceased) late Meean of Budukshan, had been given charge of Budukshan by Fyz Mahomed Khan under condition of supplying a cavalry contingent. Also that Meer Mahomed Shah had written to Meer Aman Shah (alias "Amanool Moolk") reminding him that from of old he was a tributary of Budukshan, and that it behoved him to eject Mirza Mahomed Toahir Khan, and send him to Cabul, and to send Meer Jahandar Shah, recently Governor of Budukshan, and driven by Sirdar Fyz Mahomed Khan to take refuge in Chitral, or to deport him to British territory or Cashmere, and not to allow him to reach Cabul. Failing in this there would be war between them. Meer Aman Shah replied that he did not dispute his owing allegiance to Budukshan, but that to arrest and send in Meer Jahandar Shah would be much to his discredit; he would, however, shortly deport him in the direction he might select. Owing to this correspondence Meer Jehandar Shah's fortunes had declined; he had not decided what direction to take, he was distressed as to means. The messenger mentioned that on his road from Chitral he had come across numerous adherents of the Ameer (including Hussun Khan, brother of Aslum Khan and himself very recently a refugee) on their way to join the Ameer, and that Jullalooddeen Khan, alarmed by reports of cholera, was waiting in Bajour till he received instructions from the Ameer. The Wullees contemplates the despatch by double marches, for the occupation of Bamean, of Abdool Ruhman Khan with six regiments, 1,000 Sowars and four mule guns, and preparations for their departure are being hurried on. The Wullees has confiscated the entire property of the late General Sheikh Meer Khan lately executed by order of Ameer. The unfortunate general was killed by one side and his property has been confiscated by the other. The full equipment of a regiment 800 strong, including muskets, band instruments, uniform and tent equipage were thus taken possession of. The Wullees has bestowed Jelalabad, Lughman, Ghilzie and Lohgurd on Sirdar Abdool Ruhman Khan in jagheer.

The advanced guard of Azim Khan has left Candahar, but the Sirdar himself writes that his want of confidence in Meer Afzul Khan necessitates his delaying his departure till he has arranged matters, and guarded against treachery by the Sirdar.

Nasir Khan Ghorbundee writes to the Wullees that he hears from spies that the Toorkistan army has marched from Tukhtapool to Koramar.—Friend of India.

THE CHOLERA IN CASHMERE.

(From an Eye-witness.)

CASHMERE, August 7.

Several different accounts of the cholera in Cashmere have appeared lately in the papers, one in the Delhi Gazette of the 11th July, first calling attention to the subject. The statements have been much commented upon by the press and many of the public. Many very curious assertions and contradictions have been made, so for the information of all interested in the matter I beg to make public the following remarks. If any one cares to gainsay my statements, I hope he will be kind enough to append his name to his reply and say how long he remained in Serinuggur during the cholera and how often he visited the city.

1. I assert that the cholera reports forwarded to Government from Serinuggur are gross exaggerations.
2. That no hospitals have been built for the sick of Serinuggur (for cholera patients).
3. That the Cashmere Government forbade the admission of cholera patients into the Rajah's dispensaries.
4. That there have been no admissions into hospitals of cholera patients, as affirmed in the reports sent to Government, as printed lately in the Indian Public Opinion, except in the case of the sepoys.
5. That I have seen men die within a few yards of the Rajah's dispensaries without receiving any medicine or visits from Native doctors, though sent for.
6. That deaths from other causes are stated to be from cholera. One Cashmere was twice reported to the Resident by the Diwan as having cholera, a European M.D. certifying that the man did not suffer from that disease.
7. That Dr. Elmslie twice offered to co-operate with the local Government in trying to arrest the spread of the disease, and to give medical assistance to the patients; those offers, though written to the Diwan, and through the Resident, were not replied to.
8. That the Cashmere Government actually asked the Resident to forbid Dr. Elmslie visiting cholera patients in the city.
9. That when the Resident declined forbidding this humane work, the Rajah sent a message saying Dr. Elmslie was at liberty to go to the city to see the sick, this message being sent six weeks after Dr. Elmslie's offer to co-operate with the Local Government.
10. That no sanitary measures have been carried out since the departure of the resident to Gulmurg.
11. That the statement in the Mofussilite that the streets are kept clean by order of the Rajah is not true.
12. That after the visitors and the resident left for Gulmurg the cordon of sentries was still kept up, the object clearly being to prevent sick people coming to, or sending to, the Medical Mission.
13. That that mission was closed at the request of the Resident at the suggestion of the Diwan.
14. That in the course of many visits to the Rajah's dispensaries I have not seen any applicants for medicine for cholera patients.
15. That the only medicines of the Rajah's I have seen have been placards in Hindee to put over the doors, the same placards being sold, few buying them; now they are given away.
16. That the Mahalludars have acknowledged receiving orders not to show cholera patients to the doctor (Elmalie). 17. That some of the native doctors here acknowledge that they know nothing of their profession, but have been ordered to act as doctors while the cholera lasts. 18. That "arrack" is said to be given away by the local Government. 19. That Dr. Elmalie, who visits the city daily, is always gladly received by all classes of the people who are suffering from cholera. 20. That no case of Asiatic cholera has occurred among the European visitors up to this date.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OUR RELATIONS WITH CASHMERE.—The first result of the presence of Dr. Cayley, our agent at Leh, has been the temporary suspension of the exactions of the Cashmere officials on the route between Lahoul and Khoten, though not of their oppression of the petty zemindars. As usual Cashmere now promises everything in the way of reform. The most notorious of the officials has been removed and the duties on many articles from Koolloo have been reduced—spices from Rs. 1-4 to 10 annas per maund, and cotton goods from Rs. 2-3 to 10 annas. In order to get the high import duties on merchandise from Yarkund reduced, no duty is now imposed on horses or shawl wool exported by Koolloo and Yantzig. But oppression is only in abeyance, and will be revived the moment Dr. Cayley leaves. For this reason, as well as to give increased confidence to the traders, it should be announced that the appointment of a British agent at Leh is permanent. Up to the end of July traders were pouring into Leh from Rampore and Koolloo, and among them many who never tried the route before. The trade, however, is not likely to be so great as in former years, though it will steadily increase if the British agent remains. Since the expulsion of the Chinese from Little Tibet there has been no demand for opium, and large stocks have been left in the hands of the dealers. Affairs, moreover, are still unsettled in Yarkund and Khoten, and it will take some time to convince the traders that they are always certain of justice in Ladak. Tarachand, the Negee of Lahoul, has, we believe, been of great assistance to our agent, who has been subjected to a system of espionage and intimidation by the Cashmere officials. The envoys from Budukshan and Khokand have passed through Leh, on their return to their own country. The latter, related to the Beg of Yarkund, assures our Government that traders of all kinds, and especially Europeans, will be welcomed there. Dr. Cayley should be sent. Thus far the experiment we have advocated so long has succeeded, and the appointment requires only to be made permanent. When we remember how Lord Dalhousie, Lord Canning, and even Lord Elgin longed for such an entrance into Eastern Turkistan as the Chinese refused and the Mussulmans now entreat us to avail ourselves of, it seems marvellous that there should be so much indifference to the opening. Lord Cranborne had just views on the subject, and it is to be hoped that the present Secretary of State will follow up his policy, as expressed in a despatch written shortly before he left office.—Friend of India.

THE KING OF OUDE TO BE CALLED TO ORDER.—The Friend of India says:—Oude, as it is, will be seen next November; Oude, as it was, and as, but for us, it might have been still, is to be found in the ex-King's palace at Garden Reach. Into such a depth of confusion and abominable filthiness have his affairs fallen, that the Government of India has at last been compelled to interfere. He has been allowed six months to set his house in order. We fear no warnings will teach him to do so. In that case a commission is to be appointed to investigate his debts. The amount adjudged by that tribunal will be paid in the first instance by Government, and be recovered by deductions from his royal stipend. That stipend is no less than £120,000 a-year, in addition to the house and grounds which were purchased for him. Twice the amount paid by the Lords of the Treasury yearly into Queen Victoria's privy purse have we allowed to Wajid Ali Shah, the last and titular king of Oude, since 1859. In 1856 Lord Dalhousie gave him three days to consent to a treaty under which he and his heirs would have borne the royal title, and exercised exclusive jurisdiction in the palace at Lucknow and the parks of Beebeepore and Dilkosha, while he received £30,000 a-year as a civil list in addition to his personal allowance of £120,000. He refused, and will therefore be the last king, while his heirs, for whom as well as his collateral relatives separate provision is made, will receive a much smaller pension than he now enjoys. If we would learn how a prince, who has survived the sensualities of twenty years of Asiatic kingship and wealth, and has never left the house at Garden Reach since he entered it, has managed to spend twice Queen Victoria's allowance every year, and to become indebted for nearly as much more, we shall find it written in the pages of Tacitus, and in the Satires of Juvenal.

SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD AND THE JERVIS CASE.—The Indian Daily News says:—A telegram received here the other day, reporting the discussion in Parliament regarding the Jervis case, has afforded a grim satisfaction to those who conjectured that the Commander-in-Chief would receive a reprimand. The question now asked is whether Sir William Mansfield will resign. But it is not likely he will. The Commander-in-Chief is far too cautious, and we may say self-conceited, to attempt such a step. He believes, no doubt, that both his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge and the Minister of War have sinned, and he forgives them, "for they know not what they do." But he will not resign. He has lately had an unpleasant duty to perform with regard to the paymaster of another regiment, the 36th. Captain Chambre was tried before a court-martial on a charge of defalcation, and sentenced to be cashiered, and, in confirming the sentence, Sir William Mansfield expresses his regret that he should again be called to perform such an unpleasant duty.

THE STATE OF CUTTACK AND POOREE.—The Officiating Commissioner of Cuttack Division reports under date the 31st July, 1867:—"I am in receipt of reports, dated 14th and 22nd July, regarding the Pooree district and Khoordah on Ganjam frontier. Prices of grain have fallen to 19 seers in Baupore, and to 12 and 13 seers in Khoordah; in Pooree the price averages 10 to 13 Calcutta seers. Food is generally cheaper and more easily procurable; the cessation of complaints of scarcity has been very marked. There is considerable import from Ganjam, as well as increased willingness of local grain-holders to part with their stocks. The general prospect of crops is most re-assuring; rain has fallen in sufficient quantity, and a good deal of land on the coast tracts, that suffered most severely from famine, is now being planted. A general demand for agricultural labour is fast absorbing the pauperized population, and drawing them away from relief centres. The improvement has been gradual, and is, I trust, permanent. In Cuttack less progress has been made. The people on the coast line are still in a depressed state, and require constant attention and assistance; large advances have been made, and seed supplied as far as possible; a very considerable breadth of country has been sown, but the people will require to be supported until the harvest. The season has been particularly favourable, and the rice crops look and promise well in the higher lands of Cuttack and Pooree. Early Beallie rice is now beginning to be cut. Extensive sales are in demand from most of the Cuttack Rice Golahs, and supplies continue to be imported via False Point and Damrah ports. Should the country be spared a heavy and prolonged flood, famine and distress may be expected to disappear in a few weeks."

RUNNING AMOK.—A letter from Mooltan in the Mofussilite gives a sensational account of some murders perpetrated by a fanatic cook. The wretch went armed with a tulwar into the commissioner's verandah and cut down a punkah coolie, and mounting his horse galloped off to the town before even warning could be given. On the way he cut down twelve native men, three of whom have since died, and was finally captured in a small musjid which he attempted to hold against his pursuers. He is said to have performed a similar exploit last year, though with less fatal results. We need the Dutch law in Java—he who runs amok must be cut down at once.

THE TERMINAL ENGINE STATION AT CALCUTTA.—The Committee appointed to select a site for the proposed Terminal Engine Station of the East Indian Railway having reported that the vicinity of Rishra, near Serampore, appeared the most advantageous locality, the Government of Bengal has approved of the site, and has nominated Mr. Lockwood, C.S., to the duty of taking up the required land. Mr. Lockwood has placed himself in communication with the Chief Engineer of the East India Railway Company, in order to expedite the acquisition of the land, the survey of which is now being made, prior to the preparation of the usual plans.—Indian Daily News.

A BOON TO THE NATIVES.—The Government of India has conceded, and wisely, a boon to the natives who seek an official career in the provinces known as non-regulation. They are henceforth to be admitted to the grade of assistant-commissioner, and to the office of Small Cause Court judge. In Bengal and the North-West Provinces a few have long discharged the duties of the latter with very great credit, and such appointments, even more than the native bar, should prove a training-school for the High Court bench. The grade of assistant commissioner corresponds to that of joint magistrate. This concession ought to be followed by an increase of emoluments to the higher grades of deputy magistrate and collector in Bengal and the North-West. It tends to keep good men out of the executive, when the highest prize obtainable is only Rs. 700 a month, while in the judicial service small cause judgeships of Rs. 1,500 a month are open to uncovenanted officials.—Friend of India.

SALARIES OF CIVIL SURGEONS.—The Governor General in Council observes that, under the orders of the 4th and 25th April, 1867, the salaries of military medical officers in medical charge of civil stations are consolidated, and is accordingly pleased to rule that, in common with military and other medical officers in civil employ on consolidated salaries, they shall, during periods of transit from one civil appointment to another, which are to be limited by the civil rules for joining time, draw the salary of the lower paid appointments of the two, and that such salary, as well as the allowances admissible to these officers during absence on leave, shall be disbursed in and charged to the Civil Department.

PROTECTION OF FISH.—An association has been formed for the protection of fish in the Dehra Doon rivers, and in the gravel beds of the Ganges and Jumna. It proposes to be guided by the English fishery regulations, to obtain long leases, and restrict the use of nets. It is hoped that these rivers will soon be plentifully stocked with fish of different kinds.

MORE COURTS-MARTIAL.—A court-martial has been assembled at Jubbulpore for the trial of Major Vincent on serious charges; while another at Cawnpore has been making preliminary investigations into the charges against the commandant of the 12th Bengal Cav., who is at present under arrest.

UNHEALTHY STATE OF SIMLA.—The Englishman points out a moral in the spectacle of the Indian Government overtaken in its refuge by disease at Simla—the very scourge it had fled to escape, and asks whether or not its duty lies in sharing the danger, if danger there be, with those who of necessity must face it from one year's end to the other. It compares the position of Viceroy of India to the Episcopus Vagabundus of mediæval times, adding—"The recognised capital of the country is evidently the proper seat of Government and the right residence of the head of the State."

BENGAL IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT.—Lieutenant Colonel F. H. Rundall, R.E., has been appointed Chief Engineer of Irrigation Works and Joint Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Public Works Department, with the rank of Chief Engineer, 2nd Class. This appointment is subject to the approval by her Majesty's Government of the creation of the post.

A TROUBLESOME TRIBE.—The Englishman states that the Foudheli Arabs, whom we lately chastised, are now again flocking into Aden; but, in order to prevent treachery, and to secure the good behaviour of the tribe, the Resident has insisted upon one of the sons of the chief remaining in his hands as a hostage. The writer thinks that we should employ a Foudheli contingent as scouts in Abyssinia.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JURISDICTION OF BRITISH MAGISTRATES IN NATIVE STATES.—Much inconvenience having arisen from magistrates considering they have no jurisdiction in cases where offences have been committed in native States, and the offenders have escaped into British territory, and vice versa, the question has been taken up by Government. It is a common thing for British subjects to cross the borders of adjacent native States, steal, and return with their plunder into British territory, when they either use it themselves or sell it to receivers. Thieves also, subjects of other States, cross the frontier and dispose of the property on British soil. It has been decided that thieves stealing in foreign territory, and being found in possession of the stolen property in British India, are punishable under the Penal Code by any Court having jurisdiction over the offence. The Government of India have also taken up the question of the execution of decrees of British Courts in foreign States, and submitted certain arrangements for the consideration of the Governments of the latter. So far as this presidency is concerned the matter will admit of easy adjustment, the Governments of Travancore and Cochin expressing their willingness to the proposed arrangements on the basis chiefly that the practice of executing decrees be perfectly reciprocal, and the arrangements open to such modifications as experience may render necessary hereafter.—Madras Times.

LORD NAPIER returned to Madras from his tour through the districts of Bellary, Kurnool, and Cuddapah on the evening of the 21st inst. His lordship was accompanied throughout the tour by Colonel Orr, the Secretary to Government in the Public Works Department; by Mr. Garstin, C.S., his lordship's Private Secretary; Dr. Miller, and Lieut. Graham, A.D.C. During Lord Napier's stay at Cuddapah he was the guest of the Collector, Mr. H. G. Smith. The practical results of this tour remain to be seen, but we understand that his lordship was, on the whole, favourably impressed with his visit to the Ceded Districts. Among the institutions that came in for inspection at Cuddapah was the Civil Dispensary, which is under the charge of a native surgeon; and Lord Napier is said to have been highly pleased with the state in which he found the dispensary. On Saturday week his lordship will start for the Pulni Hills, travelling to Erode by the Madras Railway, thence to Caroor over a portion of the Great Southern of India Railway, then to Dindigul and on to the hills. His lordship originally intended visiting the town of Madura, but this intention appears to have been given up.

THE MARRIAGE ACT FOR NATIVE CHRISTIANS (Act V. of 1865) does not appear to be more perfect than the many others which have to be amended and re-amended before they are found to work well. The bishop of this diocese having two cases in view has asked for the decision of the Government on the following questions:—"I.—Is it competent for a heathen man to perform a marriage ceremony between parties, one of whom is a Christian, without incurring the penalties specified in the Marriage Act of 1865? II.—In the case of a Native Christian abnegating his Christianity and reverting to heathenism. Does such abnegation render null and void Christian obligations contracted by him while professing Christianity, such as the marriage contract? If not, is he at liberty to contract a second marriage, as a heathen, his Christian wife still living? In what relation does his Christian wife stand to him after his second marriage? Is she legally divorced by his relinquishment of Christianity? If not, what redress is available for her?" The Government have, however, informed the Bishop that while fully recognising the importance of the questions raised by him, it is not desirable that a reference should be made to the Advocate General, whose opinion would be sought not for the guidance of Marriage Registrars, but in respect of judgments already delivered by magistrates, on whom his views would not be binding.—Madras Times.

MEDICAL BOARDS AT OUT-STATIONS.—With reference to the system hitherto obtaining for the invaliding of officers of the British service at out-stations, such as Kamptee and Cannanore, where they cannot conveniently appear before boards under the presidency of the principal medical officer British troops, the Commander-in-Chief directs that under the altered circumstances of the two medical services, when it is no longer the duty of the senior officer of the Indian Medical Department to preside at such boards at out-stations, all officers appearing before boards presided over by medical officers under the rank of surgeon major should appear again at the port of embarkation before the usual board of British medical officers; also that it will be competent for the senior medical officer of the station, or where there is only one, the medical officer of the station, to grant an emergent certificate in urgent cases of sick officers, so as to allow them to leave the station at once, either to embark for England or to go to the hills, as the case may be, with the permission of the commanding officer, in anticipation of the sanction of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.—Madras Times.

THE GANJAM ORPHANS.—We have received another very urgent "Cry from Ganjam." Ganjam is one of the Orissa districts which has suffered so severely for several years past from the failure of the harvest. A great many children had become orphans, and are urgently in need of support and education. Some benevolent persons, headed by the Rev. W. B. Otley, Chaplain of Berhampore, have established a Church of England Mission and Orphanage. There are now ninety children received, for whom the Government gives a monthly allowance of Rs. 2-8 each; the rest must be provided for by public subscriptions. Messrs. Binny and Co., Madras, will receive contributions for this good work. The appeal submits to all Christian people that this heavy visitation is a special call from God to prosecute with energy the evangelisation of the people of the famine-stricken province.—Southern Cross, or Indian Church Gazette, Aug. 10.

THE MILITARY FUND.—The Secretary of State has lately conceded to the Madras Military Fund many important advantages. The actuaries employed by the India-office have calculated that the surplus assets of the fund, in excess of its liabilities, would, if no change had been made in the constitution of the army, have amounted on the 30th April, 1863, to about £170,000. In addition to the reduction of the 10 per cent. extra subscription and donation already conceded, the value of which was estimated at £60,700, the Secretary of State has now sanctioned the grant of the following further concessions, namely:—The extra donation for daughters to be reduced from Rs. 282 to Rs. 200; the donation of widows with offspring to be reduced to bachelor's rates; all demands on account of minimum to be abolished; daughters hereafter born to be allowed to revert to their pensions on becoming widows; and an addition of 8 per cent. to be made to all widows' pensions. These alterations will absorb the whole amount of the surplus balance. We congratulate the Madras army on this ready concession of their claims, which, though just, they would, judging by past events, have looked in vain for at the hands of the late Honourable Court of Directors.—Pioneer.

THE "BORER."—The following extract from a Malabar Season's Report is of interest:—"Much attention has of late been directed to the 'borer,' and, we think, an undue alarm created as to the injury it has done, or is now likely to do, coffee estates generally. Some few estates have possibly suffered severely, but we have every reason to believe that the loss from this cause throughout Wynaad generally will not be great. During the past thirteen years we have known a 'borer' to exist more or less on all estates, those in dry localities and on bamboo soil suffering most. In South Wynaad, during the past few dry seasons, the 'borer' has certainly increased, and is worse this season on some estates than usual; but, on the whole, we do not anticipate any heavy loss, even in bad localities, when vigorous measures have been adopted to check its progress. On most of the jungle estates the matter would not have caused remark had not general attention been so prominently directed to it. When the coffee bug first appeared in South Wynaad, about ten years ago, it created as much (though not so public or widespread) alarm as the 'borer' is now causing; the destruction of entire crops (if not of estates) was prognosticated, and in some quarters believed in. The 'bug' became common on almost every estate (unlike the 'borer' preferring damp localities), and has since then remained, at times almost disappearing altogether, then spreading, but no serious loss has ever been felt. The borer, we anticipate, will have a similar career. If it draws attention to the necessity for improved and economic cultivation, as it has done to the question of planting under shade in dry localities, its visit in unusual numbers will not have been an unmixed evil."

THE SHIP "JALAWAR."—This vessel has arrived from Liverpool, having left that port on the 25th April. She brings the following intelligence:—Lat. 37° S., and long. 13° E., 8th July, spoke the American ship W. B. Densmore, on fire at sea; the captain of the vessel, his wife, one child, and thirteen of the crew were saved by the Jalawar. Lat. 36° S., 10th July, spoke the ship Jennie Eastman, from Akyab to Cork. The captain and crew of the ill-fated Densmore were desirous of proceeding to Cork, and were accordingly put on board the Jennie Eastman, the captain of the Densmore expressing heartfelt thanks on his own behalf and that of his rescued family and crew for the kindness they had experienced at the hands of the captain and crew of the Jalawar.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—It was generally reported yesterday (Aug. 26) in military circles, that notwithstanding the objections of the Madras Government, orders have been issued by the Government of India that the Madras Government is to co-operate with the Bombay Government for the supply of troops, stores, tents, and other necessities for the impending campaign in Abyssinia. Our readers will have noticed the array of tents on the island. These are intended for immediate transmission to Bombay. It is expected that the 2nd M.N.I., stationed at Vepery, will not proceed to Berampore, at least until the expedition has returned.—Athenæum.

ADVANCES TO MILITARY, UNCOVENANTED AND OTHER OFFICERS IN CIVIL EMPLOY.—Frequent applications having been made to the Governor-General in Council, for special grants of advances to Military, Uncovenanted, and other officers in Civil employ, to enable them to join their appointments on return from Europe, the Government of India have authorised the Madras Government to issue to any such officer an advance of pay to the end of the month in which he may arrive from Europe, or to the end of the ensuing month, provided that, in the latter case, the amount payable shall not exceed 1,000 rupees.

COFFEE.—The produce of the past season was favourable, as will be seen from the following extract from the report of a mercantile firm in Calicut and the Wynaad:—"We are now able to give a tolerably accurate return of the produce of the district last season; 3,957 acres in full bearing; 1,111 acres in partial bearing, in 36 estates, yielded 19,725 cwts. of coffee, all shipped. Allowing for a small per centage of broken and damaged coffee, and that lost in transit, we may put the produce of the district at say 20,000 cwts. Allowing 3 cwts. per acre as the average yield of the young coffee (and we think this is above the mark), it would leave an average of nearly 4½ cwts. per acre for the old coffee."

AQUATICS IN MADRAS.—To show what astonishing progress we are making in Madras, we may mention that a four-oared outrigger manned in the approved fashion by members of the Rowing Club may now nearly every evening be seen cutting through the limpid waters of the Cooum, and astonishing the native visitors to the People's Park; also that a movement is to be made immediately to revive the glories, almost forgotten by the present inhabitants of Madras, of the yachting days on the lake at the Red Hills. A regatta is talked of for December or January next.

MONEY ORDERS.—The Governor in Council directs that it be notified that under the facilities now afforded by the money-order system, bills of exchange at sight, and 1 per cent. premium, are granted to Government officers in civil employ on issue of pay, for sums above Rs. 150, to the extent of their monthly salary on Madras. Officers can make their own arrangements, if necessary, for remittances by purchasing bills of exchange in the local market.

THE COMMITTEE ON WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.—The Government have appointed Mr. J. Minchin, collector of Vizagapatam, at present on leave in England, to represent this presidency in the committee on weights and measures, which is to meet at Calcutta on 15th November, and have notified his appointment to him by telegraph.

BANK OF MADRAS.—A person who gave the name of James Boyne was apprehended at one of the Madras hotels on Monday night on a charge of forgery on the Branch Bank of Madras at Bangalore, and was last night forwarded to Bangalore in charge of the police, to await an investigation by the authorities at that station. The amount involved is supposed to be between Rs. 3,000 and Rs. 4,000.

THE GOVERNMENT OF PONDICHERRY have been celebrating the annual Napoleonic festival. Every thing went off brilliantly, according to the Moniteur.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—We learn that Major B. Foster, Royal Artillery, at present A.D.C. to H.E. Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, has been appointed by General McCleverty as his Military Secretary.—Athenæum.

GOVERNMENT PARTNERSHIP IN INDIAN BANKS.

It has, more than once, been intimated in these columns that the important question whether it is expedient to maintain the existing relations of the Government with the presidency banks in the capacity of shareholder has been taken up and considered by the Supreme Government. Indeed, so far as the Government of India is concerned, the question may be said to have been decided in the affirmative; but the final fiat of the Secretary of State in Council—before whom the matter now is—has yet to be received. The decision of the Indian Government has not, however, been an unanimous one. Mr.

Massey was in favour of Government withdrawing from its present position of shareholder in the presidency banks, whereas all the other members of Council, including the Governor-general, considered it politic and necessary to maintain the existing connection.

The Right Honourable Financier holds that the position of Government as a shareholder in a joint-stock bank is altogether anomalous and unjustifiable on grounds of policy and convenience. He considers that the profits of banking are not a legitimate source of revenue to the State, inasmuch as a Government is wholly unfitted to conduct the business of a bank; while the Government, which is a partner in a joint-stock bank, cannot be a sleeping partner. He points out that the Government is specially represented at the board of management, and that the presence of the Government nominees on the direction is regarded by the general body of the shareholders and the customers of the bank, not only as a guarantee that its business will be properly conducted, but as an assurance of its stability. He maintains that a bank so constituted is virtually a guaranteed bank, and that thus the Government becomes responsible for the solvency of institutions, the transactions and interests of which are intimately involved in the fortunes of commerce, and that a bank with which the State is connected by partnership must always be in a position to fulfil its engagements; for it is impossible to suppose that the Government could, under any circumstances, acquit itself of its responsibility by merely sacrificing the treasury balances and falling back upon the position of limited liability as a shareholder in a chartered or joint-stock company. And for what is this vast but indefinite responsibility incurred? asks Mr. Massey.

To these undeniably weighty reasons, it is urged, in reply, that both the European and native community would desire to maintain the subsisting connection between Government and the presidency banks; that the shares of the bank are purchased (so far as the par value is considered) with the same feeling of security as the purchase of Government stock; and that if the Government were to withdraw from partnership in these institutions, not only would the shares be depreciated, but a general belief would arise that, in the event of pressure, the treasury balances would be removed and the banks left to their fate. It is further urged that the Indian public generally desire no change in the existing relations between the Government and the banks; that the shareholders would be found unwilling to relinquish the additional security which their property acquired by the partnership of the State; and that an investment which offers the profits of a joint-stock company with a security nearly equal to that of the public funds must always be desirable; and that depositors, including the local banks, which keep their balances with the presidency banks, would prefer to deal with an institution virtually guaranteed by the State rather than with any independent establishment. But are these reasons all sufficient for pledging the credit of the State for the support of the banks? Mr. Massey ventures to think not; and while admitting that the severance by the Government of its proprietary connection with the Bank should not be sudden, nor without ample notice, he is understood to hold that a bank which is entrusted with the custody of the treasury balances should be established on an adequate basis of capital and credit wholly independent of the Government; that with the State for its customer it should be in a position of unrivalled credit and prestige; and that the State, being a member of a joint-stock banking partnership, is a position anomalous and unseemly, fraught with danger and risk of discredit, and—whatever might have been the case in former times—is one now obsolete and unnecessary.

These views as held by the Finance Minister—of which, in other forms, we have previously given some intimation—are, as we have said, directly opposed to those of Sir John Lawrence and the other members of Council. Sir William Mansfield is understood to have minuted at length on the subject, and with the opinions set forth in that minute Sir John Lawrence and the majority of the Council have concurred. Their contention is that the present system, on which the credit and trading transactions of great commercial centres have long been accustomed to lean, should not be disrupted—the more especially as it is a system which has for its sole object such a basis of security as would enable the Government to use the banks for the discharge of public functions, while affording at the same time safe starting-points for commercial movements at these several Presidencies—an object which has, on the whole, been fully attained. As proof of the good practical effect of such a system is adduced the fact that, in spite of the ruin which overtook the Presidency of Bombay in 1865, and which ultimately overwhelmed its great local bank, the circumstance of that bank's connection with Government preserved its solvency amidst a terrible amount of local bankruptcy, and in the face of the loss of half its capital. In the case of the Bombay Bank, the Government, it was true, had lost a certain proportion of capital in common with other shareholders, but it had suffered no other loss; and when appealed to on two occasions of extraordinary runs following on great failures in London and Bombay it gave its countenance and promise of support, and these alone were found sufficient. It was at once felt by the public that such countenance and promise were sure to be redeemed, owing to the position of the Government as a shareholder, which position operated as a guarantee of solvency, thus demonstrating with certainty that the object of Government in maintaining an intimate association with the quasi State banks—namely, that of sustaining a conviction of real security at the centre of each great division of India—had been attained in the most trying circumstances. Then as to the alleged anomaly of Government connecting itself as a shareholder with these central banks, it did not follow that because such connection might be anomalous in England it could therefore be pronounced anomalous, or that it were even permissible for the State to refuse such a position in India. In England all undertakings, of whatever magnitude—not strictly pertaining to the special functions of Government—are the result of private enterprise, unsupported by the credit of the State. In India, on the contrary, no large enterprise flourished without the fostering care of the State (itself the outcome of a trading company), as was to be seen in the matters of the railways, of irrigation, and so forth. Thus, the method which had been found necessary for raising the capital required to promote locomotion and irrigation might fairly, in spite of its anomalous character in the eyes of English economists, cease to be called an anomaly in India. And if this be so, in the case of credit on which to raise the capital required for locomotion and irrigation, the truth of the principle remains undiminished, even when applied to credit in another form—namely, the support of banking organisations, which are not only essentially necessary as central supports for the commercial and investing operations of the people, but also for facilitating the functions of the State. And were such a system a necessity even only for the present generation in India, to hastily change or subvert such an accepted institution would be not unlikely to inflict a severe, if not a deadly wound on the now rapidly growing credit of the country. The system answered admirably with all three banks till the unfortunate years of 1864 and 1865 in Bombay. Yet of the disaster here it might be said that it proved nothing except that in unexampled times those official directors who then occupied the post forgot common prudence and proved themselves unequal to their position. But, independent of the Government interest in the banks, there were other strong grounds for maintaining a Government direction in them. It was understood by the Council to be a simple matter of fact that the secretaries or managers of those banks would in difficult times be unable to stem the importunities of the commercial directors, were it not for the support afforded them by the official directors, who are assumed to be unconnected with trade, uninfluenced by speculation, and thoroughly acquainted with the true theory of sound banking. Then, again, as it is urged by the majority of the Supreme Government, would not a severance of the Government connection, and of the quasi-State guarantee, be inequitable to the present shareholders, who had subscribed their capital on the understanding that Government was the principal shareholder? And as regarded the charge of the State balances, how would their perfect security be provided for, if, as would be the case were the present system abrogated, Government ceased to have a right to appoint Government directors? It is affirmed, moreover, that no system of inspection or audit would or could compensate for the loss of direction.

Such are, in substance, the main arguments of the two sections of the Council of India for and against the proposition that Government shall cease to hold shares in any of the three presidency banks. No remark seems called for in regard to the main question as thus stated; but with regard to the expediency or necessity of maintaining the institution of Government directors, there is, we think, room for argument whether more effectual and more independent control on behalf of the State would not be obtained by frequent and thorough inspection from without. The paucity of men from whom suitable directors can be chosen, and the frequent changes amongst the mercantile residents of Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras, afford reasons of expediency for the appointment as directors of Government servants in order to secure for the Board continuous knowledge of the bank's affairs, independent of that which the secretary and treasurer necessarily holds.—Times of India.

THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

When the steed is stolen, shut the stable door. There have been some astounding accidents on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and the Government of Bombay has passed a "resolution" on the subject. It has discovered, now the mischief is done, that the fall of the great viaduct on the Bhore Ghaut incline, and the giving way of the embankment at the Sooki Nullah, are traceable to original defective construction; and it trusts that such faulty and insecure construction may not exist in the case of any other works, though it admits that there is no possibility of determining to what extent such may have been carried on other parts of the line. Therefore the consulting engineer is directed to call upon the railway company to submit reports of every work of construction on the line, and that, in cases of bridges, the responsible engineer (who is he?) should submit certificates that all masonry in piers and abutments is plumb and without external cracks; that arches are not crippled or out of shape; and that there has been no dangerous scouring action through waterways. In case any works should be found defective in any of the particulars enumerated, the responsible engineer must make a special report, specifying the exact defects that are apparent, their nature and extent. On the receipt of these reports, the consulting engineer or his deputies should personally visit and inspect the principal works, especially those reported defective, and, in consultation with the company's engineers, should suggest the measures which may seem most applicable to secure the work and prevent accident, the said defective works being of course understood to have sufficient politeness not to tumble down while this rather dilatory process is being gone through. The Government seems to have a hazy notion that it may be difficult to discover unsoundness in the interior of a work which presents the external appearance of sufficient stability, but directs that nothing that is practicable in the way of testing and examination should be omitted. This, of course, includes picking them to pieces to see what is inside! Such an operation would be a perfectly practicable as well as conclusive mode of examination. It is very plain that in many cases nothing else would disclose the secret. Imagine, for example, a mass of masonry, a pier or abutment, consisting of a beautifully neat shell of cut stone-work filled up with rubble in clay, or any other rubbish. It would look perfect from without, would be quite "plumb and without cracks," might even last for a few years under the constant running of trains, so long as water did not get at its interior. But when the rain began to soak in, to swell the earth or clay stuffing, to fill up crevices and exert hydraulic pressure on the outer shell, then the said shell would give way, probably at once and for all, and the whole concern would come to grief very much in the fashion of the Bhore Ghaut Viaduct. Now, it may seem a very odd thing to say, but it is a fact, that scamp work is very much on the increase, and that it is mainly owing to our elaborate systems that it is so. As to the fact, no practical man doubts it. Our bricks and mortar, both separately and in combination, are far inferior to the bricks and mortar which we find in old works. Our materials are made, like the man's razors described by Peter Pindar, to sell. People do not strive faithfully for the best work possible, they are satisfied if they can say "It will do." The plans of the present day are for the most part excellent, very far superior to the plans of bygone days, the execution is for the most part very much the reverse of excellent, a combination of bad materials and scamp work. Such "responsibility" as there is is too much divided and too easily shirked. Government have devised a system of checks, vouchers and certificates, every item of which tends directly to enable responsibility to be shifted, and most of which are as checks utterly futile. A superior officer inspects and passes a work after completion; what can he possibly know about the inside of it, or whether its apparent excellence be not merely superficial? But his verdict to a great extent removes responsibility from the man who built it, who can always plead that "the work was approved by my official superior." Every man concerned can always be provided with proof on paper that he has done his duty literally as laid down for him in the regulations. Government knows perfectly well that it has been fleeced and defrauded, or has got its work so ill done as to be worthless, in scores of instances, but Government hardly ever attempts to bring the culprit to trial, because the chances are a thousand to one against getting a conviction. It is a successful case of thimble rig, and neither judge nor jury can discover where the pea is to be found.

Yet we have known instances of good and perfect work faithfully performed by engineers in India, and we are well advised that the means they took to ensure the said work being faithfully done will be amply sufficient to ensure all work being faithfully done, if all engineers can be induced to employ them. The means were simple enough, close attention and zeal to do the best that was possible, even down to the smallest minutiae. We have known men who carefully examined and tested all their materials in person, who carefully watched every step of the process of construction, under whose keen scrutiny it was literally impossible for contractor or masonry to foist scamp work into the building, and we never knew an instance of such men's work coming to grief from faulty construction. Most of the instances to which we refer were antecedent to the present elaborate "system," some have been subsequent thereto, but, as matter of cause and effect, they were irrespective of any system, and were due to the personal qualities of the officers themselves, either to their enthusiastic zeal for their profession or to their earnest conscientiousness. Now we do not say that selfish motives will actually supply the place in full of the personal virtues aforesaid, but they will certainly produce a result similar in kind, if inferior in degree, and at any rate it must be as well to enlist self-interest on the side of honesty as against it. If all work were to be considered as a kind of contract between the Government or employer and the executive agent employed, if after the plans were approved one man were entrusted with the work and made personally responsible for it, we think we should not hear so much about bridges tumbling down or embankments failing. There might, perhaps, though not very probably, be some difficulty at first in getting men to take work under such terms, but if so, it would be rather a gain than a loss, for a man who had not sufficient confidence in his own abilities or energy to bind himself down to do his best would certainly be much better not employed at all. The responsibility should be simply responsibility for faithful work, for goodness of material, and eschewal of scamping. Damage by unavoidable and unforeseeable accident, or by abnormal convulsion of nature (such as earthquakes), or by fair wear and tear, such damage, of course, no executive could be held responsible for. Damage consequent upon inadequate plan, such as injury by floods where insufficient water-way had been allowed, or from deficient foundations, or from sin against the laws of statics, should fall on the author of the plan, or on the authority that sanctioned it, the professional approver who finally recommended it to Government. The certificate of the inspecting officer, after a work is complete, can only be to the effect that the work agrees with the plan, and is properly constructed, as far as can be ascertained from without, but should be of no avail to lessen the responsibility of the planner for his plan, or of the executive for his work. Security should be taken from all men undertaking to do work, whether for Government, railway company, or other employer, so that the "responsibility" should not be a merely nominal affair. The terms or profits of such contracts should be liberal. It is much the most economical plan to pay a good price for a good job than to get your work done "cheap and nasty," and to have to do it all over again at least, even if the chance of losing a few lives and a few months' usufruct be escaped.

Some of the inefficiency which has been so much complained of in our Government works is due to the cheese-paring economy with which estimates are cut down. But the same excuse will certainly not hold good as regards the railway works, in respect of which extravagance rather than economy in outlay has been the rule, and which have resulted in fiascoes as bad if not worse than any of those of the department public works. Almost all the railway work we have ever seen or heard of has been unnecessarily dear, and we have heard railway subordinates make a boast thereof. We are, therefore, by no means astonished to find Colonel Strachey, a very competent judge, declaring that the Scinde Railway has cost twice as much per mile as was necessary, but we are disgusted to find that the contractors on the G. I. P. have not been contented with even their extravagant rates, but have added even to them "in some cases" by scamp work. What a glorious profit somebody must have got out of that Bhore Ghaut viaduct! Systems of check and elaborate precision of accounts are simply useless, since whatever is formulated can be fudged. Imaginary transactions can be quite as easily recorded in detail as in gross. A man who is willing to commit a fraud will hardly stick at falsifying a document whose falsity can scarcely, by any conceivable possibility, be found out. A dealer who would pay commission for an order will be only too glad to sign a fictitious receipt instead. Systems of inspection and report upon completed works are little better than mere moonshine, for the light they throw on the subject, a shadowy outline, a spectral superficiality, are all they can enable the Government to see. And a tissue of balderdash about the duty of taking precautions, which must doubtless be unavailing, and of submitting to the test of examination things which examination cannot test, is about as useless as either of the aforesaid. All three are "birds of the same feather," make-believes, shams, razors made to sell, playing at business, trying to look like efficiency, veneer and varnish at the best. Sooner or later we must come down to "personal responsibility" as the only effectual guarantee at human command for honest and faithful work.—Athenæum.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MR. CONNON.—The Governor of Bombay has appointed Mr. Connon Acting Chief Magistrate of Bombay in Mr. Bickersteth's absence. Mr. Connon, who in 1849 started the Bombay Gazette, went to England and studied for the bar, and has occasionally acted as substitute in the office of Recorder.

A JUDICIOUS ARRANGEMENT.—The Pioneer states that the East India Railway, to accommodate through passengers to Bombay, propose extending one of the carrying companies to the Jubulpore and Nagpore road, a distance of one hundred and seventy miles. Until the G.I.P. Railway is open for traffic, two years at least hence, the two railway companies would find it to their pecuniary advantage to make such an arrangement. It would divert the passenger traffic at least to Bombay much sooner than is otherwise likely to be the case.

Retiring Pensions—Uncovenanted Service.

Judicial Dept., Fort St. George, Aug. 13.—The following financial proceedings of the Govt. of India, dated July 6, 1867, No. 1,289, are published for general information:—

Read despatch from the Govt. of India to H.M.'s Sec. of State for India, dated March 4, 1867, No. 68.

Our attention has recently been drawn to a reference submitted to you by the Govt. of Madras, the decision passed on which, unless qualified, is calculated to lead to misapprehension and to cause disappointment on an important question affecting the amount of retiring pensions allowable to uncovenanted servants.

2. In a despatch from the judicial dept., dated Sept. 12 last, No. 13, the Govt. of Madras reported the grant to Mr. G. E. Cower, a judge of the Court of Small Causes of 12 months' sick leave to Europe, under the old rules, with the intimation that, in the event of his retirement becoming necessary after the completion of 20 years' service, a pension under those rules would be allowed, subject to confirmation by H.M.'s Govt. Attention was specially called to the detailed proceedings on the case, and confirmation of those proceedings solicited.

3. The proceedings thus prominently brought forward clearly indicated the opinion of the Local Govt., that the modification authorised in Sir C. Wood's financial despatch to the Govt. of Madras, of Jan. 18, 1865, No. 1 (and which was directly communicated to the Govt. of India in Sir C. Wood's financial despatch of the same day's date, No. 12), applied not merely to the method of reckoning the period of qualifying service, as affected by the new Uncovenanted Service Rules, but also to the reduced amounts of pension prescribed by those rules. Thus, under the new rules, the maximum amount of a pension, at the rate of one-third of salary, is fixed at £200 and £300 a year, according as the effective salary has been above or below Rs. 12,000 annually; whereas, by the old rules a pension of one-third of salary was allowable up to £400 and £500 a year, and the Local Govt. considered the authority conveyed in the despatch above mentioned to extend to a restoration in certain cases of the higher maxima.

4. The decision conveyed in your despatch to the Govt. of Madras of Dec. 15 last, No. 101, was merely a confirmation of the leave granted to Mr. Cower, but the further point not having been challenged, the decision is susceptible of a construction favourable to the conclusion of the Govt. of Madras.

5. We have from the first held the view that the ruling of Jan., 1865, was merely meant to remove the hardship imposed in certain cases of rendering a longer period of service for pension under the new, than was required under the old rules, not as in any way touching the limits of money prescribed by the new rules; and if we have apprehended the intention of H.M.'s Govt. correctly, we desire that we may be favoured with an assurance of it.

Despatch from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India to H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. of India in Council, dated India-office, London, May 24, 1867, No. 193.

Financial.

I have considered in Council your financial letter, dated March 4 last, No. 68, inquiring with reference to a judicial letter from the Govt. of Madras, dated Sept. 12, 1866, No. 13, whether the financial despatch to that Govt., dated Jan. 18, 1865, No. 1, had, as the Madras Govt. appear to infer, any reference to the limitation in the amount of pensions, fixed by the new rules for the grant of leave of absence and pensions to uncovenanted servants.

2. The despatch to the Govt. of Madras above referred to, replied to a letter from that Govt., which forwarded a memorial from an uncovenanted servant, Mr. Ferrand, who represented that, having entered the service of Govt. at the age of 16 years and five months, and having taken two years' sick leave under the old rules, which under those rules would count as service towards pension, section 12 of the new rules, which states that "periods of service before the age of 22," or of absence other than "privilege and preparatory leave shall not count towards pension," virtually deprived him of the benefit of seven years and seven months' service, and that, although the period of service requisite for a pension was shortened by the new rules, the application in his case of that section would compel him to serve for two years and seven months longer under the new, than under the old rules.

3. You are correct in supposing that the financial despatch to the Govt. of Madras of Jan. 18, 1865, No. 1, had reference only to the period of service required for a pension; and that it did not in any way modify the limitation in the amount of pension to which uncovenanted servants might be eligible on retirement or give any option of election of the old or new rules.

4. You will furnish a copy of this correspondence to the Govt. of Madras.

Major and Brevet Lieut. col. W. L. Merewether, C.B., Bombay staff corps, to be col.

DR. LIVINGSTONE.—The depositions of six of the sepoys who composed Dr. Livingstone's party, and who returned to Bombay some months ago, was, on Tuesday last, laid on the Editor's table, Secretariat. From the statements of five of the sepoys it appears that for the first two months' travelling in the interior everything went well, when the men began to suffer from fever and dysentery, and the beasts from insufficient food and hard work. The party arrived at Mataka in a very exhausted condition, one of the Nassick boys having died on the way, and three of the men having been left ill in the jungle. At Mataka Dr. Livingstone had himself been suffering from dysentery, but got well in a few days. Dr. Livingstone used to administer medicine to the party every day, but it did not seem to have any effect. After staying at Mataka for a month, Dr. Livingstone, seeing them all sick, said to the havildar, "You must take your party back to Zanzibar. They are all too unwell to go on, and most of them will be stopping behind in the jungle, and will surely die." He then set off for Nyassa, accompanied by the havildar, who had begged to be allowed to accompany him. The sepoys were sent back to Zanzibar with an Arab named Sulimon, who arrived in a few days from Nyassa with a large number of slaves. Sulimon had seen Moosa and some of the servants, but not the Doctor, who was encamped some way off. Moosa had told him that everything was well. One of the sepoys states that a great friendship existed between Dr. Livingstone and Moosa, who said he had been with the Doctor for fourteen years. He did not think that Moosa would ever have deserted his master had he been alive. Private Jaynac Gungnac became very ill on the way back to Zanzibar, and could not keep up with the caravan. Suffering from a severe fever, his legs, arms, and body swollen, and footsore, he lay down under a tree and gave himself up for lost. How long he lay there without food or drink he does not know, but about the eighth day (he thinks) some seedees discovered him, threatened to cut his throat, and stripped him of all his clothing. After this he became insensible, and when he came to himself he found that he was lying in a hut, to which he had been brought by some natives. He lived in that hut for about a month, and was then sold as a slave to an Arab. Having been brought into Zanzibar territory he was allowed to speak to one of the Sirdars of the Sultan, on the understanding that he would ask for food and clothes. When in the Sirdar's presence he told him that he was a servant of the English. The Sirdar took him under his protection, and afterwards sent him to Zanzibar, where Dr. Seward and Dr. Kirk took care of him till they should find an opportunity of sending him to Bombay. Whilst at Zanzibar, he says, Dr. Seward received news from the Sultan to the effect that he had heard of Dr. Livingstone, and that he had not been murdered, but that he and his party were well, and at some place beyond Nyassa. Jaynac arrived in Bombay from Zanzibar on 14th May. — Bombay Gazette.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—MALTA, Sept. 20.—A number of officers accredited to the Indian Government have passed through Malta on their way to the East, chiefly in connection with the supplies for the expedition to Abyssinia. Deputy-Assist. Commissary-Generals Furse and Casolani left Malta a few days ago for this purpose.—The greater part of the medical equipment necessary for the expedition will be furnished from Bombay, whence the military force employed will also for the most part be furnished. Three hospital ships will, however, be fitted out from England, and are now being made ready at Deptford, under the superintendence of Dr. Massey. A surgeon and assistant-surgeon will have medical charge of each ship; and we understand that the following appointments have been made:—Staff-surgeons, Charters, Woodward and Roach, and Staff assistant-surgeons Fairland, R. Murphy, and W. J. Wheeler.—A large number of the new contract saddles for Abyssinia are completed and ready for despatch.—The screw transport Crocodile, with the second battalion of the 60th Rifles, under Colonel Palmer, with divers officers of other regiments, in all about one thousand rank and file, to take part in the expedition, passed Malta on the 23rd without communicating, save by signal, for Alexandria, from Portsmouth and Queens-town.—On Wednesday an order was received at the head-quarters of the Royal Engineer Establishment, Chatham, directing the following parties of non-commissioned officers and sappers to be held in readiness for embarkation with the expeditionary force, viz., one sergeant and twenty-four rank and file of Royal Engineer telegraphists, one sergeant and six men photographers, and ten non-commissioned officers and sappers of the Royal Engineer train. The officers selected to accompany the party of Royal Engineers are Lieutenant J. L. Morgan and Lieutenant A. R. Puzey. The detachment is held in readiness to leave at an hour's notice.—The tenders issued by the India Board for the manufacture of the new pack saddles for the campaign have been accepted by the following accoutrements and harness contractors:—Messrs. Tibbetts and Co., Bryant and Co., and Ross and Co., of Bermondsey, to whom patterns have been supplied from the department of the Superintendent of Stores at Woolwich. The two batteries of mountain steel guns and their entire equipment will be ready for shipment at Woolwich, it is stated, at the end of the present week. One of the batteries is complete, and has withstood the proof-test with 7½ oz. of powder exceedingly well, as also the extreme range fired at 2,500 yards. They are made from patterns, five in number, which have been in the sealed pattern-room of the Royal gun factories at Woolwich about two years, and were intended for service in India. The present guns, however, are considerably reduced in weight, the pattern guns weighing 13 cwt., and the Abyssinian guns 150 lb. each. The blocks of steel were supplied by Mr. Firth, of Newcastle. The bright silvery appearance of these toy-looking guns, with their destructive capabilities, even at long range, are looked upon by admiring visitors with curiosity and interest. They are rifled on what is termed the French principle—namely, three grooves.—The following vessels have been chartered by the Government for the conveyance of mules to be employed with the troops, viz., the Bolivar, the Empress, the Venetia, the Parana, and the Counmoundouris. The ships will take on board the mules at Gibraltar and Malta, to which places they will proceed direct from England. Detachments of the Military Train and the Army Hospital Corps will proceed in these vessels.

NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA.—At the first ordinary general meeting of this company, held on the 24th inst., the annexed statement of the assets and liabilities of the bank made up to 30th June last was presented. The net profit (including Rs. 27,089-4 brought forward from last half-year's account) amounts to Rs. 2,79,784-14-2 after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, paying all charges (including Rs. 12,040-13-4 incurred in the transfer of the head-office to London), and allowing for rebate and interest due to the public. The directors propose a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum and a bonus of 1 per cent., together equal to 4 per cent. for the half-year; to carry Rs. 80,000 to reserve fund and Rs. 14,236-14-2 to next half-year's account. By the above addition to reserve that fund will stand at Rs. 3,00,000. Deposits received from the public which stood last half-year at Rs. 38,01,526-12-2, amount at the end of the present half-year to Rs. 48,24,935-7-9. This tangible evidence of the growth of the bank in public confidence will be as gratifying to the shareholders as it has been to the directors. By the resolutions passed and confirmed at the extraordinary general meetings of shareholders of the bank, held on the 7th and 22nd of the present month, the transfer of the business of this bank to the National Bank of India, Limited, registered under the English Companies' Act of 1862, has been sanctioned. As the bank could not exist under both the Indian and English Acts, powers were taken at the afore-mentioned meetings to wind up the Indian company; but this step is purely formal and will in no way interfere with the usual course of business. The new or English company at once takes over all the assets and undertakes all the liabilities of the old or Indian company. The present directors take their farewell of the subscribers to the bank with the current report.

THE HON. SIR FREDERICK BRUCE.—H.E. the Hon. Sir Frederick William Adolphus Bruce, G.C.B., British Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States of America, who recently died at Washington, was the third son of Thomas, seventh Earl of Elgin, by his second wife Elizabeth, who died in 1860, and brother of James, eighth Earl of Elgin, K.T., G.C.B., the eminent diplomatist and statesman, Governor-General of India, who died in 1863. Sir Frederick Bruce accompanied Lord Elgin on his special mission to China in April, 1857, and brought home the treaty with China on Sept. 15, 1858. He was on Dec. 2, 1858, appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Emperor of China, and Chief Superintendent of British trade in China March 1, 1859. He was prevented from proceeding to Peking by the opposition made by the Chinese when the Taku forts in the Peiho were attacked by the British forces, and he and his mission returned to Shanghai. Bruce proceeded to Peking Nov. 7, 1860, and the mission was established there in 1861. Returning to England, he was appointed British Minister at Washington, and was made a K.C.B. and a G.C.B.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.—TRIESTE, Friday.—Intelligence received here from Aden, dated 12th inst., states that the latest dates from the captives at Magdala were of July 27th, received at Massowah on the 1st inst. At that time they were all well. Rains had commenced. The latest dates from the King's camp at Debra Tabor were of the 11th of July. At that place there was heavy rain. All the captives were pretty well, and were being well treated. The King's conduct to them was cold and indifferent. The country round about was in a disturbed state. Direct communication between the King's camp and the coast was entirely cut off, and communications were sent via Magdala. There were no letters from the King.

FATAL ACCIDENT TO MR. T. C. E. PAEFOLD.—An inquest has been held at Jersey on the body of Mr. Thomas Charles Ernest Paefold, aged 27, a native of Madras, a student of the Middle Temple, London, reading for the bar. Deceased left London on the 12th of August in company with his friend, Mr. H. G. Louzada, on a visit to Paris. On leaving there they came to Jersey. On the 16th inst. the deceased went alone to Plement and Gronez Point to visit the caves in that part of the island. He was never afterwards seen alive, and his dead body was picked up on Tuesday on the beach. It is believed he was overtaken by the tide and was unable to effect his escape.

THE WRECK OF THE P. AND O. COMPANY'S STEAMER "SURAT."—Some correspondence has appeared in the Times reflecting on the circumstances attendant upon the wreck of the Surat. In a letter dated "Arabia Petrea, on a coral reef, eighty miles from Suez, Sept. 5," the writer describes the hapless condition of the passengers, and the fortunate arrival of the Nubia steamer to their rescue. The Secretary to the P. and O. Company, however, calls attention to the correctness of the telegram, which announced some days ago that the Surat had arrived at Suez on the 16th inst., and in tow of the steamer Madras. On the 18th inst. the vessel had been placed in dry dock at that port, and was not greatly injured. The telegram above referred to appeared in our last number.

LETTERS, &c., FOR THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—All letters, &c., which may be posted, directed to persons serving in the expedition about to be sent to Abyssinia, will, when not otherwise addressed, be forwarded in the mail for Suez, for transmission thence by such opportunities as may offer. Upon all such letters, &c., the postage, as far as Suez, must be prepaid at the following rates:—For a letter not exceeding half ounce in weight, via Southampton, 6d.; not exceeding quarter of an ounce in weight, via Marseilles, 6d. TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS,

Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d.; postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

EASE FOR EVERY SORE.—This Ointment affords the shortest, safest, and easiest path to soundness in all kinds of skin diseases, scrofulous affections, scabietic maladies, ulcerations, eruptions, and inflammations. There is nothing deleterious in the composition of Holloway's Ointment; but, on the contrary, its ingredients possess the most soothing, purifying, and strengthening qualities. The delicate skin of infants is not irritated by the application of this unguent, which is therefore as admirably suited for the nursery as for subduing the tedious ulcerations attacking the aged. In all constitutional, chronic, and complex affections, Holloway's Pills should be taken whilst his Ointment is being used, in order that all deleterious matters may be expelled from the system.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 1st and Bombay to the 9th of September.

The Viceroy, it seems, is not to return to Calcutta so soon as was expected—not until after the Oudh Durbar. His Excellency, on his way downwards, is expected to make a State entry into Lucknow on the 9th of November. On the following Monday a levee will be held, followed on the 12th by a durbar, at which the Viceroy will receive the homage of the talookdars of Oude. On the 13th the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of Canning College will be performed; and on the 14th, after a review, the talookdars will give a fete to the Viceroy. After a few days' rest his Excellency will continue his journey to Calcutta, where he is expected about the 19th. Thus the programme stands at present, though many things may occur to render some alteration necessary. It is not intended to have at this durbar a general assembly of magnates of all degrees; it will consist entirely of the talookdars of Oude, so that it will not be on so grand a scale as the imperial one held at Agra last year. His Excellency desires to have the talookdars all by themselves, when he will probably take occasion to assure himself that they understand and accept those legislative changes affecting their rights and privileges which are now in progress.

The Delhi Gazette publishes Colonel Harvey's scheme for the retirement of officers of the Indian army, for which we shall find room in next number. This scheme gives officers the benefit of the regulations of 1796 and also an earlier pension. The author feels sure that if it were adopted a hundred officers would retire annually. At present a brevet-colonel in the staff corps, if he has not served thirty-two years, can only retire on £365. This scheme gives him £456 and £144 additional, or in all £600 a-year. A lieutenant-colonel could only get £365 after twenty-eight years' service, whereas by the proposed scheme he would get a total pension of £500 a-year, even if he had not completed the above term.

The Delhi Gazette's Cabul letter brings news down to the 22nd ultimo. It was reported in Cabul that Herat had fallen into the hands of the Persians without any fighting. Yakoob Ally Khan, the Governor, the son of Ameer Shere Ally Khan, having gone into the Persian camp and been made prisoner. Other accounts state that the Persians were aided by the Russians, who had treated the son of Shere Ally with distinction. The Ameer of Budukshan has repaired to Cabul. The cholera was abating.

The news from Bombay is full of disasters. First on the list is another accident on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, resulting in the death of three persons, one of them being Mr. E. I. Howard, barrister-at-law, late Director of Public Instruction, and one of Bombay's most distinguished citizens. "The cause of the accident," says the Times of India, "was the starting off of a heavy ghaut engine at full speed, without either driver or guard, from the Lanowlee station, where it was being employed in shunting waggons, and from which the man in charge of it had jumped down without properly shutting off the steam. In the first-class carriage nearest to the engine (two vans being between) were Mr. Howard and another gentleman, who were both returning from the investigation into the forgeries lately committed on the Bank of Bombay at Poona. That carriage with the brake van in front of it was smashed to pieces. Mr. Howard sustained such injuries about the head as must have caused instantaneous death. The gentleman who shared the carriage with him most miraculously escaped with only a sprained ankle and a severe shaking. The others who were killed were railway employes—a guard named Hunt, and a native fireman."

The next accident, personally considered, is equally deplorable. The heavy rains which fell towards the end of August in many parts of the Punjab, and more particularly on the elevated country around Murree, had fed the streams and nullahs to such an extent as to render the crossing of them a matter of considerable danger, many of the nullahs on the hill roads not yet being bridged. Major Fuller, R.A., Director of Public Instruction in the Punjab, and Ensign Martyr, of the 19th Regiment, having had occasion to travel from Murree to Rawul Pindiee on Aug. 24, proceeded by the passenger cart which runs daily between those places. Arriving at a stream some ten miles from their destination, the crossing of which usually presents no great difficulty, they found it very much swollen by the rains. It was, nevertheless, decided to venture across, and when about the middle of the stream the cart was carried off the causeway by the torrent, and stuck among some bould-ders. Both officers jumped into the water in order to extricate the conveyance, but being swept off their legs were hurried down the stream. The body of Major Fuller was recovered next morning some five miles down the stream from Baracon—the scene of the accident—and that of young Martyr some time after, still further down. Both were buried at Rawul Pindee with military honours. There was with them a lady passenger in the cart at the time; but she and the coachman, by remaining where they were and holding on to the conveyance, were rescued some time afterwards, when the water had to some extent subsided. Luckily for them the cart got jammed between large stones in the bed of the stream and so escaped being upset.

The unsafe state of some parts of the G. I. P. line is causing no little alarm. Two large bridges have been washed away on the unopened portion between Kundwah and Hurdah; a crack has been discovered in the largest viaduct on the Thull Ghaut; and three other viaducts on the same ghaut are in such a dangerous state that passengers have to leave the trains and walk across. Seventeen bridges on the unopened portion of the Nagpore extension of the same railway have been condemned by the company's engineers. The recently-collapsed viaduct on the Bhore Ghaut is to be replaced by an iron girder bridge, and, in the meanwhile, a tramway is being constructed for the temporary accommodation of the traffic. The damage done to the Bombay and Baroda Railway by the recent floods has been repaired sufficiently to enable through traffic to be resumed.

The Bombay Government has passed a very important resolution on the G. I. P. Railway works. The arches on the Shapoor viaduct are to be closely inspected. At the Mhowlee viaduct the traffic is to be stopped at once if the Consulting Engineer thinks there is danger in hand-shunting the vehicles over, and the arch-openings are to be filled up. Other viaducts are pronounced "very bad." A full statement of the general condition of the line is to be forwarded to the Secretary of State and Government of India. This state of things is loudly condemned as most scandalous.

There is a report at Simla that it is the intention of the Governor-General to proceed to Bombay in March next (without the Supreme Council), with a view to inaugurate the opening of the Legislative Council at the Western Presidency, where, it is believed, his Excellency will pass the season of 1868, and make over the reins of Government to his successor in January, 1869.

There is still a great deal of surprise expressed at the non-resignation of Sir William Mansfield. The Pioneer, referring to this subject, says:—"We hear that Lieut. G. S. Byng, of the 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade, has, at the desire of his Excellency Sir W. Mansfield, effected an exchange to the 3rd Battalion, in order to remain on the staff of his Excellency on the departure of the 2nd Battalion for England. This intelligence will cast a cloud over the sanguine forecasts of some of our contemporaries who have taught themselves to hope that the Commander-in-Chief would resign in consequence of the publication of the Duke of Cambridge's despatch, for had Sir William Mansfield intended to resign, he would hardly have concerned himself about the retention of any particular aide-de-camp." Captain Byng, it may be remembered, was the hero of the leg of mutton story, to which we referred the other day.

The Abyssinian expedition was the chief topic of discussion in India. A pioneer force was to leave Bombay on the 10th ult., to be followed a month afterwards by the main body of the expeditionary army. The latest direct news of the Abyssinian captives was to July 1st, at which date they were all well. The position of Theodoros was daily becoming more precarious, while the power of the chief of Shoa had so increased that he contemplated proclaiming himself emperor. It was reported that the captives had been released, and a Reuter's telegram of the 4th, repeated the information. H.M.'s war frigate Octavia had proceeded to the Persian Gulf in consequence of reported disturbances at Muscat.

The new steam transport Euphrates arrived at Bombay from England on August 27th. She was to leave for Suez on September 12th with stores and tents for the accommodation of the troops on their arrival in Egypt.

Only such invalid soldiers as may be found able to endure the fatigue of an uninterrupted journey through Egypt will be sent home by the overland route. All others will be forwarded via the Cape.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is due in London on the 12th inst.

A BRIDGE CARRIED AWAY ON THE G. I. P. RAILWAY.—The opening of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway to Hurdah is likely to be deferred indefinitely by a most untoward accident. A large bridge over a river called the Chota Towa has been bodily carried away by the force of heavy floods. Still there is hope that the line will be available for passengers and the heavy railway material that has to go forward. A tramway might be put across the bed of the river, as was done at the Taptee by Mr. Henry Jackson, one of the safest engineers on the railway, who did so much to make the Thull Ghaut the best piece of railway road in India, and inferior to none at home. Meanwhile our engineers must give their undivided energies to the work before them, and insist on necessary measures being carried out that these constant mishaps may not lead the public to deride the science of engineering itself.—The Pioneer.

TREASURY WARRANT.—The Gazette contains a Treasury Warrant, regulating the rates of postage on letters transmitted by post to or by any commissioned officer in the army while actively employed in her Majesty's service between the United Kingdom and the East Indies, Australia, and New Zealand, and other colonies.

Casualties by Death in the Armies of India reported since last Publication.

BENGAL.—Major Fuller, R.A., director of Public Instruction, Punjab, and Ensign Moore, H.M.'s 19th Regt., when crossing the stream near Rawul Pindee, were both drowned.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

KEENE'S LETTERS ON INDIA.*

THIS little book by the author of "The Moghul Empire"—a work whose chief fault was the rare one of over-conciseness—will not be found dull reading even by persons who care little enough for Indian politics. To such it offers a good deal of instruction, pleasantly conveyed in few but graceful words, on topics which educated Englishmen can no longer afford to neglect or misunderstand. Anglo-Indians, on the other hand, of various classes, may turn to its pages for a fair and comprehensive survey of many questions on which Anglo-Indian opinion has been, is, and will be divided, so long as they can bear looking at from more than one side. Even those who are most inclined to differ from Mr. Keene's readings of a problem as perplexed as our own Irish difficulty will derive some food for reflection from letters written by a civilian of long and varied local experience, enhanced by a breadth of culture not too common even in this land of social and mental progress.

The book contains nine letters, with an introductory statement and an interesting appendix. The moral of the whole is foreshadowed in the advertisement, where the author avows his anxiety "to point out what he believes to be an evil arising from an insufficient distribution of authority between the Home Government and the Local," and to abate the mischief of that "doctrinarian sentimentalism" which comes of "a too direct influence of English opinion and action upon a peculiar people like the natives of India." Another point, connected with the first-named, is the danger of our coming to regard India, already overtaxed for England's benefit, "as a milch-cow from which more might yet be extracted;" while a fourth turns on the best way of keeping down the numbers of the English garrison, without falling back on the old perilous system of a large native army. On these and kindred topics the letters proceed to comment briefly, yet suggestively; serving as attractive sketches for those who either shrink from more exhaustive studies, or care to pursue the subject afterwards for themselves.

One of the worst rocks in the way of India's future lurks in the question of Indian taxation. It is a truth we can never afford to overlook, that despotism and heavy taxes cannot long exist together. No people despotically governed can bear much fiscal pressure without rising against the unwonted burden. It was fiscal oppression that made France wild for the revolution which sent Louis XVI. to the guillotine. The same cause provoked most of the popular risings recorded in English history. Only a free self-governed nation will put up with burdens such as England and the United States have in the present century been called upon to bear. The rule works with two-fold significance in countries governed by a foreign despotism. Such a country is India under British sway. Our government there, be it never so fatherly and well-meaning, is still of necessity a despotism, and a foreign despotism. In the days before the mutiny the pressure of taxation was very light, falling mainly on the land and the manufacturers of salt and opium. From the land revenue and the excise duties on important articles of foreign trade and home consumption the State, as sole landlord and monopolist, derived an income nearly sufficient for the national wants. Even now the land revenue forms nearly half of India's public income, so elastic with proper management has it always proved. But the old mode of assessment for terms of years, which formerly prevailed everywhere save in Bengal, was ordered to be exchanged in 1862 by Sir C. Wood for a permanent settlement; and the land revenue, instead of expanding, must henceforth bear an ever-lesening proportion to the total income. To make up the growing deficiency other and more visible taxes must be levied, in some way or another, on different classes of the people.

What will be the probable result, and in what way might we avert the mischief thence arising? These questions Mr. Keene sets himself to answer, if not always convincingly, yet with much show of truth. If he draws too sweeping inferences from the present state of Bengal, and makes too small allowance for differences of race and climate between the Bengalee and the native of Hindostan Proper, his plan of filling up the inevitable deficit in the Indian treasury by means of local self-taxation rests on sound principles, and looks like a practical solution of a formidable problem. Starting from the present municipal levies, "with which the people are perfectly familiar, and which, being spent in their presence and for their benefit, are not so odious as imperial imposts," he would localise taxation to the utmost possible extent, and empower the local Governments to lay out at their own discretion, within their own boundaries, the revenues raised from the people by vote of their own municipal representatives. In this way he thinks it would be safe and easy to levy a remunerative poll-tax, while imperial imposts like the income-tax of 1860 end only in failure and popular discontent. "The people have a rooted idea that the British Government is always sending their money to Europe; and the less we tax them for purposes they do not understand, the less unpopular we are likely to be."

Here we have the true starting point for a good working system of Indian taxation. Give the largest possible measure of self-taxing power to the local municipalities, and the greatest possible freedom of laying out the proceeds to the chief officers of every district and province. In this way more money will be raised for local wants, and indirectly for imperial purposes, at less cost for collection, and at far smaller risk of popular ill-feeling towards the central power. At the same time the seeds of self-government will be planted in the popular heart; or rather the old Indian principle of local self-sufficiency will receive a new and healthier development, under the controlling hand of a common authority emanating from a free, progressive, if foreign nation.

INDIA AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION No. II.

THE catalogue of the Indian collections includes the whole of the articles forwarded to this country. It is notified, however, that the latter have so far exceeded the limits for which space could be obtained that it has only been possible to exhibit a selection. A collection of casts and photographs of Indian Architecture, illustrative of the History of Labour in India, has been placed at the end of the gallery, with the works of early art exhibited by Great Britain.

The collections are classified without distinction of locality, and according to the subjects to which they belong. There are ten groups, each comprising several classes. The first group, devoted to "Works of Art," includes "Paintings and Drawings," among which we find a few portraits of native chiefs, on ivory and other material, and a great many tale pictures from Benares and Patna, illustrative of different classes of the people. These are all of the usual character, calling for little remark, except that in the representations of public places there is an improvement in perspective and general execution, owing to the increased use of Photography. The Sculpture, Niello work, &c., is superior, as it always is, to the painting—the ivory carving from Benares, the soap-stone carving from Agra, and the Bidree and Koftgaree work from the Bombay Presidency and the Punjab respectively, carrying off the palm. Some of the specimens of this class are unequalled in any part of the world, eclipsing in their own peculiar way even the glories of Italian art. One of the most remarkable objects in this department is a temple in gold and sandal wood, standing between two and three feet high. It is a present from the Maharajah of Benares to the King of the Belgians. Some of the carvings in Jade are particularly remarkable for their beauty. Indeed, the specimens of purely native art are generally perfect in their way; but in the few instances where European designs have been employed the result is a failure. We noticed in particular some Bidree vases from Italian models, which are simply vulgar, and very far from encouraging as to the effect of our Schools of Design in India. The Architectural Designs and Models, in which there are no traces of South Kensington, exhibit, on the contrary, all the purity of the native hand. The Engravings and Lithography are principally interesting on account of those arts being a novelty among the people of the country.

The second group is devoted to "Apparatus and Applications of the Liberal Arts." This is not very attractive to the eye, consisting as it does of Printing and Books; Paper, Stationery, Binding, Painting, and Drawing Materials; Applications of Drawing and Modelling to the common arts; Photographic Proofs and Apparatus; Musical Instruments; Medical and Surgical Instruments and Apparatus; Mathematical Instruments and Apparatus for teaching Science; Maps and Geographical and Cosmographical Apparatus. These collections, however, exhibit a very satisfactory state of progress in departments to which natives were once supposed to be quite indifferent.

"Furniture and other Objects for the use of Dwellings" compose the third group. The most conspicuous class which it includes is the fancy furniture, consisting for the most part of black wood carving from Bombay and Madras. Of this work there is an imposing "Trophy," which might have been more imposing than it is, had it included a certain specimen which was rejected on account of its being of European design. However, the display is very good as it stands, and forms a very attractive part of the collection. We next come to "Upholstery and Decorative work, including articles employed in Church services." These are at least curious. Under the head of "Crystal, Fancy Glass, and Stained Glass" there is only one object, a mirror of Panjab manufacture. In Porcelain, Earthenware, and other Fancy

Pottery, we find some beautiful specimens, though the collection includes utensils of an ordinary kind. Far more imposing is the show of Carpets, Tapestry, and other Stuffs for Furniture; and some Cutlery, which comes next, is not without interest. The Gold and Silver Plate, which is contributed principally by native chiefs, is a right royal collection. Some of the specimens are startling for their beauty, and even more so for their worth. There is a gold salver, for instance, with cups, and an ewer, which are wonderful in both respects. Although these articles are elaborately chased, the workmanship is a very small matter compared with their cost by weight, and of this some idea may be formed from the fact that the salver alone is priced at £1,200. The purity of the metal is of course perfect, as is indicated by the ease with which it is bent with very slight pressure. These luxurious utensils are contributed by the Maharajah of Cashmere. The gem of the collection, however, is a silver fillagree basket from Dacca. It is a matchless specimen of this most beautiful manufacture. The Bronzes and other art castings are also wonderful in their way, and the Apparatus and Processes for Heating and Lighting have an interest of their own. The perfumery, of course, does not make much show; but there is a great deal to please the eye in the leather work and fancy articles. This class includes articles in various materials—koftgarre, bidree, ivory, sandal-wood, &c. And here—as we must postpone our notice of the clothing and fabrics worn on the person, which form the most splendid part of the collection, until next number—it may not be amiss to remind our readers of the nature of the two kinds of work called koftgarre and bidree, which supply so many of the objects in this class.

Koftgarre work, or steel inlaid with gold, used to be principally employed for decorating armour, and there are many specimens of guns, sword-hilts, &c., in the present collection to which the process has been applied. But these are not of recent manufacture. Since the rebellion of 1857 the manufacture of arms has been generally discouraged, and the Koftgarre work is now principally employed for fancy articles. Bidree is a species of inlaid ware formed from fine sifted laterite dust, mixed with refuse material, and when dry turned by a lathe to the requisite shape. After the article has been smoothed, and boiled in a mixture of wax and oil, another coating of the same dust, mixed this time with water alone, is applied to it. This coating is rough, and is not smoothed down. The next stage consists in boring two openings in the composite mould, and placing it in the fire, the effect being to melt the intermediate layer of wax, and thus to leave a vacant space for the reception of the alloy, which consists of one part of copper and four parts of pewter. The shell is then carefully turned, and upon its smooth surface the pattern is traced by hand. There are several processes after this, but the last is the application of a preparation which imparts a brilliant black polish to the shell, while hand-rubbing brings out the full effect of the silver.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I was much gratified to peruse the article in your issue of the 20th ult., which so clearly explained what is wanting to complete proper communication between England and her great Eastern possessions. I was also much pleased to find that Sir John Lawrence has spoken out so favourably with regard to the chief want in Northern India, viz., railway communication with the seaboard at Kurrachee.

As an old resident in the province of Scinde, I have watched with interest the establishment of its railway from Kurrachee to Kotree on the Indus, the gradual increase in the number of steamers on the river, and the improvements in the harbour of Kurrachee, so far as they have gone. I would now draw attention to a single point which occurs to me on the comparison of two recent official documents now before me. These are—first, the report of Mr. Brunton, the chief engineer of the Scinde Railway, upon the prospects of the proposed extension of that line from Kotree to Mooltan; and, secondly, the memorandum sent in to the Indian Government by Colonel Strachey, R.E., bearing upon the same subject.

The latter document, containing very sweeping assertions, set me thinking whether I had been awake during the last twelve years, or whether all the facts I had been collecting, collating, and storing during the period were, as by a magician's wand, to be proved unreliable and worthless. Colonel Strachey asserts that the prospects of an Indus Valley line obtaining anything like traffic sufficient to make it pay, even if constructed on the most economical principles, have been "excessively exaggerated by the 'advocates of the line,'" but I find, turning to Mr. Brunton's papers on the survey, certified copies of the reports of the collectors and deputy collectors of the various districts through which the proposed line would pass, giving, from official sources, the quantity of agricultural produce raised, and the quantity available for export. I find, further, the unanimous opinion of these officers to be that the zemindars would, without doubt, gladly avail themselves of the railway in preference to the river. From an intimate knowledge of the facts connected with this question, I can confirm this opinion.

Then to come to figures:—

The probable annual produce available for export from the districts lying on the left bank of the Indus is certified to be, in round numbers Tons	177,000
That on the right bank is certified to be 198,000 tons, of which it is stated a considerable quantity would find its way across the river to a railway, if constructed on the left bank. I will suppose half the total quantity	98,000
From the Upper Scinde Districts lying above Roree, and from Bhawalpore, we may safely calculate	150,000
From information to which I have access the probable export from the Punjab, with its 18 millions of inhabitants, would be	300,000
		725,000
Add 25 per cent. for probable increase of production within ten years	181,000
		906,000

Say 900,000 tons.—Supposing each train conveys 200 tons, this would require 4,500 trains per annum, or 15 trains each way per day during 300 working days; and this for goods only, making no provision for the conveyance of passengers, nor for the Central Asia trade which would fall into the line about Roree.

But supposing there is some mistake; suppose the prospective traffic is only half what has been calculated, we arrive at the result of 7 trains each way per day, which I am given to understand is quite as much traffic as a single line can work with anything like certainty. So much for Colonel Strachey's statement.

I have said nothing of the importance of the proposed line from a political point of view. That is too obvious to be made a matter of serious argument. But I would ask the Government to remember that if the line is not at this moment an absolute political necessity, there is no knowing how soon it may become so.

If the Government were wise it would devote its energies, during the present time of peace and prosperity, to the perfecting and completing the main lines of communication throughout India, and not wait for events which, in demonstrating the wisdom of such a policy, would at the same time render that which would now be easy a matter of great difficulty and expense.

God forbid that we should ever have to pay by the lives of our soldiers, and by a tenfold expenditure of our treasure, for the cheeseparing economy by which the policy of our Government would appear to be actuated.—I beg to subscribe myself, Sir, your most obedient servant, Sept. 30, 1867.

A SCINDHEE.

THUGGEE.—The Government has not seen fit to consider favourably an application from our chief commissioner for the re-establishment of the Thuggee department, deeming it quite unnecessary, if district officers will but do their duty zealously and not perfunctorily. We think the Government quite right in not feeding more cats than are sufficient to catch mice.—Jubbulpore Commercial Advertiser.

INUNDATION AT ALLAHABAD.—At Allahabad the Ganges has broken through a sluice gate and inundated the low ground known as the Fort Esplanade. The breach was partially repaired, but the force of the water is so strong that outbreaks are constantly occurring. The place has to be watched night and day with the greatest vigilance.

ENGLAND'S VICARIOUS HOSPITALITY TO THE SULTAN.

In ordinary circumstances the visit of the Sultan of Turkey to the Queen of England would be an event of surpassing interest and form the subject of very natural congratulations. The Grand Turk has never been seen further west than Vienna, and then as the scourge of Europe. Of nothing are the middle classes of England so ignorant as of the East, whether it be Syria or India, but Jewish writings and "The Thousand and One Nights" have supplied just sufficient material to enable the imagination to fill the vacuum. The lower classes again feel intense interest in a potentate of the Blue Beard stamp, supposed to marry and to massacre hundreds of wives at his pleasure. There is no reason why the Sultan should not visit his brother sovereigns of Europe, and why especially he should not show his gratitude to the power which has persistently kept his dynasty in existence, alike against the assaults of Russia and the ambition of subordinates like Mehemet Ali. Abdul Aziz himself proved his possession of as much gratitude as perhaps a Mussulman can show in the circumstances, when the only non-royal person whom he visited was the widow of Lord Palmerston, to whom he expressed his admiration for the one man who, since Pitt, has understood the position of England abroad.

But the circumstances attending the visit of the Sultan to England are not ordinary. They have been such as to hold up England, we regret to confess it, to the scorn of the outside world and especially of her alien subjects in India, while the visit is designed on the part of the Sultan and his able minister, Fuad Pacha, to commit both England and France, if not Prussia and Austria, which he passed through on his return, to a prolongation of a policy which deliberately upholds hopeless stagnation, cruel oppression, and a false faith against civilised progress, the rights of millions and the spread of Christianity in the very country where it once had its greatest triumphs. All who have borne a share in the reception of the Sultan seem alike to have forgotten their self-respect and their duty to the national guest. The Queen's brief hospitality no one will severely comment on, after a perusal of those pathetic allusions to her position which have just been published, though the Sultan's investiture with the highest Christian Order, instead of with that expressly instituted for non-Christian dignitaries, is to be condemned. But whether we read Sir Stafford Northcote's defence of the spoliation of the Indian treasury to meet the cost of the India House fete, or the snobbish discussion on the subject raised in the House of Commons by Mr. Sheridan, or the reports of such entertainments as that given at the Guildhall, we feel that England has behaved more like the puffing manager of a show than as a great and self-restrained Christian nation.

For once journals so opposite in their views as the Daily News and Saturday Review agree on this point. The former describes the series of entertainments as "the most tedious, the most inflated, most laborious, and most exorbitant public hospitality to be met with and endured in the whole civilised world;" as got up by designers "whose primary object was to push themselves into a little momentous importance, and to puff each other." Vulgar wealth, or wealthy vulgarity, reigned supreme. The latter journal is magnificently sarcastic. "We meet, as it were, in the name of the Prophet, and the Crescent is our common ensign." In the rubbish sung at the Opera the Almighty was entreated to keep the Sultan from all wars, and enable him to "dismay and resist" his enemies. "The poet further asked that this great potentate might continue secure of the love of the Turks, Bulgarians, Candiotas, and other peoples over whom he wields a sway based on affection." This profane toadyism pursued the Sultan even to heaven, where, it was hoped, "he will wear a crown, and stand near our common Allah in that Mahomedan heaven to which, in our capacity of rulers of India, we, as well as he, are hastening." This sketch of the position of his country and of himself, and these ardent wishes that he, Lord Halifax, Sir Stafford Northcote, and we trust we may add Lord Cranborne, may pass a joyful eternity together, must have astonished the Sultan, if he could have understood a word of what was sung, quite as much as anything he has seen or heard in England. The sarcasm is deserved when we find Sir Stafford Northcote telling the House of Commons, in words worthy of one who desires that the moral development of our Indian subjects should be encouraged, to proceed in its own way, that the India House fete was expressly designed to show the Mahomedans in India that we honour and revere the chief of their religion. And so we collected the most noble and honourable of our women, in the most décolleté dresses, to whirl round in waltzes before the head of a religion whose votaries worship sensuality and leave dancing to courtesans. Mr. Tom Taylor tells us—"The Sultan seemed particularly pleased with the waltzers after supper, about whom he asked many questions, and at whose evolutions he occasionally laughed audibly, and when it became understood that one or two Osmanlis desired to take part in the dance, no little diplomacy was set in motion among certain great ladies to secure the gratification of such unusually picturesque partners." To this our "great ladies" have come in this most materialistic age, when the sensuous and the sensational form the rule of life. We do not wonder that the Sultan asked that, whatever feast or ball or theatre he attended, "plenty of women and flowers" should be supplied for the gratification of his eye. No wonder that a country which can be guilty of flunkeyism so debasing as this, and of measures so contemptible as that which rifles the Indian purse to pay for it, leaves its representatives for years in an Abyssinian dungeon, and glories in a policy of non-interference. And we have the satisfaction of knowing, from the unprecedented unanimity of the Indian journals and other authorities, Native and English, that our Mussulman subjects are not propitiated, while the Hindoos are outraged; and that the Viceroy of Egypt left England on the day of the great fete, insulted and determined that Egypt shall be more French than ever.

We are not left in doubt as to the object of the Sultan in breaking through all the traditions and customs of his house and his creed so far as to visit Western Europe. Fuad Pacha, at an entertainment given by Mr. Layard, M.P., and the Ottoman Bank, said:—"The Eastern Question was more truly one of economics than politics; and railroads, commercial activity, and progress would soon give a different aspect to the tangled skein of Eastern affairs." His Highness concluded by proposing a toast to the alliance of England and Turkey. Again the Sultan himself declared the objects of his visit to be—the first, "to see what still remains to be done in my own country to complete the work which we have begun; the other, to show my desire to establish, not only among my own subjects but between my people and the other nations of Europe, that feeling of brotherhood which is the foundation of human progress and the glory of our age." That is, the Turk is never to leave Europe, never to give up its most glorious corner which he first plunged into barbarism and has so long debased. This is a position which it is very pleasant for the Sultan and his Ministers to assume, but it is one which among English Liberals died with Lord Palmerston. It is all very well for the Lord Mayor to tell the Sultan that England takes the deepest interest in the continued prosperity of Turkey, and for the Times to interpret this as an adhesion to our evil policy of propping it up for ever. Such words are natural in the mouths of money-lenders who desire to improve their securities. But the Liberal who believes in such simple truths as justice, progress, and toleration, who knows anything of the teachings of history or the alternate fanaticism and stagnation of Islam, alike unalterable because rooted in its creed, will not rest until the two millions of Ottomans in European Turkey cease to crush thirteen millions of Christians with the aid of England and France. Never since the Russians crossed the Pruth has the House of Othman been in such peril as under the present Sultan, the thirty-second from its founder five and a half centuries ago. The propagandism of Russia has never been so active, while she has obtained a footing both near our Indian frontier and on the coasts of the Pacific, which will go far to arrest our action on the Bosphorus when the next great war comes. The King of Greece has just been betrothed to the Archduchess Olga, and will be married in October. Russia, we are told, has never shown such activity in her military factories and arsenals, and in fortresses like Cronstadt and Nicolaieff, as since the return of the Czar from Paris. Crete must soon cease to be the victim of Turkish oppression. A Hohenzollern is sovereign of the Danubian Principalities in all but name. Austria, reconciled with Hungary, will seek to find a substitute for her German provinces on the Danube, as she has so often been advised to do. The thirteen millions of Christians in Turkey are making so much progress that they cannot much longer be denied that which England and France have helped peoples like those of Belgium and Italy to gain. The Sultan's visit to Paris and London has been convenient to himself, and to France and England, at a time when Russian eagerness demanded some counterpoise. But we do not believe that it is possible for that visit to have the slightest effect in postponing the expulsion of the two millions of Turks from the paradise which they defile.

That that result cannot be far off, the present state of Europe, the growth of Liberalism in England, and the steady advance of the Christians of Turkey in numbers, intelligence and a feeling of nationality, lead us to believe. Whether Russia, Greece, or the Slavonic Christian races, independently; or Russia, Austria or all the Great Powers as a protectorate of the Greeks or Slaves, is to be the future master of Constantinople seems very uncertain. But there can be no doubt as to the fate of the dynasty, by honouring whose present representative in such a style so many authorities have humiliated England and outraged India.—Friend of India.

DEATH BY DROWNING OF MAJOR FULLER AND ENSIGN MARTYR.

[From the Pioneer's Rawul Pindee Correspondent.]

RAWUL PINDEE, 22nd August.—About nine miles from this place, on the road to Murree, runs the little stream of the "Jungreal." It is easily crossed by the hill-carts going to and fro between Rawul Pindee and Murree, for the water usually is by no means deep, and to facilitate the passage a paved causeway is laid down flush with the bed of the stream. About five o'clock on the afternoon of the 20th inst. the daily passenger cart from Murree arrived at this spot. Seated inside were the coachman and three passengers, the latter comprising Mrs. Mason, wife of Sergeant Mason, of the 3rd Battalion Rifle Brigade, Major Fuller, head of the Education Department at Lahore, and Mr. Martyr, of H.M.'s 1-19th Regiment, stationed at Nowshera. They were all in good spirits and appeared anxious only to reach Pindee in time for a seven o'clock dinner. It is an old and well-known saying, that from the merest trifles some of the most startling and momentous events take their rise; and without doubt this very natural and very trivial desire not to be late for dinner was the cause of as sudden and fearful a catastrophe as it has been my lot to remember, and by which the career of two as gallant and gentlemanly officers as are to be found in her Majesty's service was brought to an untimely end. Heavy rain had fallen on the afternoon of this day along the range of mountains above Murree, and in consequence the current of the pigny "Jungreal" was somewhat deeper and stronger than usual. The coachman was questioned, and said he had driven through it often and often before when the stream was both higher and stronger. The lady's feelings were consulted, and she replied, after what the coachman had said, she for her part did not fear. What occasion then to delay? To make assurance double sure, however, some half a dozen coolies were impressed into the service and made to support the cart on the lower side, lest by any possibility the force of the current should cause it to topple over. These arrangements being made, and the small parcels and carpet bags being also placed on the top of the seat to prevent their getting wet, the hill-cart with its pair of horses, and the coolies supporting it on one side, plunged bravely into the water. Ah! poor ill-fated travellers, why did not some good spirit warn you? Another short minute and two of you will be struggling in that treacherous stream never to rise any more! The lady was sitting in front beside the dusky Jehu, and the two officers standing up in the seat at the back. Major Fuller looks at his watch and exclaims it is half-past five o'clock, "and they will just be in time for a comfortable dinner with the friends who expected them." Cruel hospitality to have thus lured two good and gallant gentlemen to their graves! The words above quoted were the last he was heard to utter, and the carriage was splashing through the water. It was deeper perhaps than they expected, but the horses pulled bravely, and now they were near the opposite bank. A rush of water neither seen nor heard is meanwhile stealthily approaching—a bend in the river hides it from view—and the next instant the mighty torrent with irresistible force sweeps the cart clear off the causeway. At this critical moment had the inmates stuck to the ship all might have been well; but alas! the evil fates were paramount on this disastrous day, and Major Fuller and his fellow-passenger, probably on the impulse of the moment, and without any definite idea as to what they were doing, leapt madly into the foaming mass of waters tearing and whirling past; the cart meanwhile, with Mrs. Mason clinging in mad terror to the driver, is washed some yards helplessly down the stream, until its course is arrested by coming in contact with some of those huge stones which are found in nearly all mountain rivers, and especially abound in this one. Here for the space of twenty minutes or so they remained fast, the horses scarcely moving through fright and exhaustion, and here, from this spot, the poor terrified lady witnessed the frantic and ineffectual attempts of her fellow travellers to make head against the current which rapidly and surely was bearing them downwards. It could not have been long before the end came. Dashed against the stones and rocks with pitiless fury, wounded and stunned, these two unfortunate officers must have fallen an easy prey to the rushing torrent that, claiming them for its own, soon engulfed them in its watery jaws. After a while the waters began to subside, and then help was rendered to the half-drowned man and woman from the shore. The cart and horses were brought safely to land, and a good portion—indeed nearly all—of the baggage was saved. I should mention that the coolies assisting the cart in its endeavour to cross were likewise washed away at the sudden onset of the waters, but though carried down long distances, and much bruised and hurt, not a single man was drowned. This seems the more remarkable as both Major Fuller and Lieutenant Martyr were fine athletic fellows, the former an enormously powerful man of six feet two inches. One would naturally imagine if frail beings such as the generality of native labourers are could succeed in struggling successfully to land that these officers would have stood an equally good chance of saving their lives; but the probability is that on jumping out of the cart they were instantaneously swept off their balance, and this being once lost they could not recover their footing. A native besides has a peculiar knack of getting over water by swimming hand over hand, in addition to which these people most likely knew the river and its bed so thoroughly that they were able to avoid the dangerous shoals and eddies. The conveyance, with Mrs. Mason in it, reached Pindee about dusk, and of course we all soon heard of the accident. Arrangements for searching the river were soon made, and a numerous party, with sowars and torches accompanying, drove to the spot. A search of three hours brought them to the lifeless body of poor Fuller lying on its face about thirty yards from the stream as it was then running. This was 3 o'clock yesterday morning, and it was immediately conveyed into cantonments, where a searching inquiry took place into all the circumstances. The funeral took place in the afternoon, and was attended by all officers in the station, and no wonder, for Major Fuller was personally known to nearly every one of us, and esteemed by all.

This letter was to have been devoted to other subjects, but of which now I cannot write. The shadow of this melancholy catastrophe creeps over me, and with an expression of deep and unfeigned sympathy for the bereaved wife who, leaving her four children in England, came but a very short while since to cheer her husband's home in this country, and will now have to return to them a sad and tearful mother, I hasten to seal and despatch this letter. I have just this moment been informed that the body of Lieutenant Martyr has been found at last and sent into cantonments. It will be interred without delay of course.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CHOLERA.—We are sorry to hear that it was deemed advisable to move the Buffs into camp from Meerut yesterday morning, in consequence of a few cases of cholera that had occurred in the station. They were to go five miles on the Roorkee road, and their camp equipage went out on Sunday morning. The Artillery were to go into camp this morning on the Allyghur road, and eventually to Hauppur. There do not appear to have been many cases. The Artillery had two fatal cases on Friday and the Buffs one on Saturday. The General was expected back from Mussoorie, whither he had only gone on the 15th, immediately. The 19th Hussars had had no cases up to Sunday, and it was hoped they would escape altogether. Reiterated complaints of the state of the road and the daks between Ghazeeabad and Meerut reach us. The journey now occupies ten and eleven hours. The roads are bad and the condition of the dak horses worse. They can only travel at a foot pace, a sad contrast to railway travelling. We are sorry to hear from Shahjehanpore that the cholera is severe in the city. The 36th have moved into camp, there having been nine fatal cases in the regiment.—Delhi Gazette, Aug. 30.

CHOLERA IN THE NORTH-WEST.—A letter from Subathoo, in the Pioneer, gives particulars of the outbreak of cholera among the men of the 90th Light Infantry at that station, and pays a just tribute to the foresight and care of the regimental authorities, which have been so successful in checking the progress of the disease:—"The 90th has lost several men in the last few days of cholera, and there are some dangerous cases still in hospital. The regiment is broken up into four camps; two companies at Solan, three on the road to that place, one on the road to Dugshaie, and four on the Loodiana road. Since moving into camp the disease has almost disappeared, the only recent cases being amongst the few men left behind in hospital at Subathoo. General Becher and Inspector-general of Hospitals Munro have paid several visits to the camps. All officers have been called in from leave. The men are now generally in good health and spirits, and there seems to be an end of the scourge for the present. It is the general opinion that nothing but the vigilant watchfulness of the regimental authorities, and the promptitude in moving the men into camp at the first appearance of the disease, saved the regiment from a very severe attack. There is but little doubt that the close proximity of the crowded native city of Subathoo to the barracks was the original cause of the epidemic, as several cases had appeared there previous to the soldiers being attacked. The air of a hill station cannot be kept more pure and uncontaminated than that of one in the plains, if foul, reeking bazaars containing four or five thousand natives (dirty as only hill-men know how to be) are allowed to grow up in the heart of cantonments. This is the case of Subathoo, and that station will always be liable to epidemics so long as the native city remains where it is, and so long as hill-men have such predilections for filth."

A LICENCE TAX TO BE INTRODUCED IN BURMAH.—Mr. Massey has found a disciple in a quarter where such a tribute to his financial abilities was least to be expected. The King of Burmah is anxious to make up for the loss which he must experience in consequence of abandoning his royal monopolies for an export duty of 5 per cent. ad valorem. He apparently forgets that the rebellion of his sons and the death of several members of the Royal family have placed at his disposal large sums of money. He has determined to levy a licence tax on the inhabitants of his capital in imitation of the great feat of the Indian Financial Member of Council. The proposal has been met with the extremest disfavour, and has evoked symptoms which would seem to indicate a disposition on the part of the men of the capital to try another rebellion before they submit to be fleeced. The imitation of so enlightened and liberal a prince as the King of Burmah was the one thing needed to render the Indian Licence-tax supremely ridiculous.

PROPOSED MEMORIAL TO THE LATE BISHOP COTTON.—We have received a copy of a circular issued by the Rev. W. Spencer and the Rev. G. F. Popham-Blyth, chaplains of St. Paul's Cathedral, inviting subscriptions in aid of a memorial to the late Bishop Cotton within the cathedral, by the erection of a rearedos at the east end of the cathedral in place of the present wooden screen, and suggesting also that a marble tablet should be inserted in the south wall, corresponding to that of Bishop Wilson in the north. This proposal has met with the entire approval of Bishop Milman, who has subscribed Rs. 500 towards it.—Englishman.

REGISTRARS.—A proposal to reconstruct the offices of district registrar and sub-registrar has been sanctioned by the Supreme Government. There are to be three special district registrars on salaries of Rs. 700 per mensem, rising by an annual increase of Rs. 100 to Rs. 1,000; these district registrars are also to draw travelling allowance, Rs. 150 per mensem, and there are to be twenty special sub-registrars, viz.:—Four on Rs. 400 per mensem, six on Rs. 300 per mensem, and ten on Rs. 200 per mensem, with a travelling allowance of Rs. 50 per mensem. We presume similar arrangements will be made for the N.W.P. and the Punjab.

GHAZEEPOOR, Aug. 21.—A shocking occurrence has taken place here. Ganesh Pershad, by caste a goldsmith, and an English teacher in the mission school here, was said to have temporarily lost his senses, and for some days hardly ate anything. On the morning of the 19th instant, at about 7 A.M., his wife said to him that it was very strange he had left his daily meal, and if he felt unwell it was advisable to obtain medical aid. He acceded to her wish, and sent his mother-in-law for a physician. When he had thus got rid of her, the first vent which he gave to his long pent-up anger was a few slaps to his wife; the poor unfortunate woman, being quite astonished at this behaviour, said if this was her fate it would be better if he would take away her life at once. The merciless fellow instantly brought a razor from one of the apartments, and made one or two incisions on her neck with that instrument. She tried to escape, but in vain; her cries could not be heard outside. She was running to the upper story, when the ruthless fellow got hold of an axe (koolharee), and gave her the first cut upon her neck, and she fell senseless upon the stairs; he repeated the strokes more than a dozen times, which nearly severed her head, and she died on the spot. Her boy, only three or four years old, also fell by her side, having come crying to his dying mother. His father thought that his cries would bring in neighbours, and he gave him some deadly cuts with the axe already reeking with his mother's blood. The murderer then thought of taking his own life, and tried the razor on his neck, but feeling pain, threw his head on the axe, but to no purpose, for he was reserved for a worse fate. He is now awaiting trial before the magistrate, and is said to have confessed his crime. Some say that he was labouring under partial derangement, and that the cold-blooded murders were committed in a fit of insanity.—Delhi Gazette.

ARREARS IN THE FINANCIAL COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE, PUNJAB.—The immense mass of arrears in the office of the Financial Commissioner of the Punjab has received the attention of Government, and resulted in the draft of a Bill, prepared at the urgent request of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, to afford temporary relief to the Financial Commissioner of that province, and provides for the appointment of an additional Financial Commissioner to assist in getting off the heavy arrears of work. The "statements of objects and reasons" would have been more complete if it had added through whose negligence or incompetence, or by what misfortune, it occurred, that so large a mass of arrears was allowed to accumulate. The expression in the Bill, "temporary relief," leads to the conclusion that a superabundance of work is not the normal condition of that office. Either the machinery is not sufficient for the work it is expected to accomplish, or there has been some neglect.—Delhi Gazette.

FEMALE EDUCATION IN OUDE.—The Chief Commissioner of Oude, at the instance of the Director of Public Instruction, has submitted a proposition to the Government of India to educate the female children of respectable men in that province, and to establish an educational institution for the purpose at an annual cost of Rs. 4,576, which will be met partly by local contributions, provided Government would bear a moiety of the expense. The Government of India has experimentally sanctioned the scheme proposed by the Director, and is said to have observed that if female education is appreciated by the people of Oude, and is carried on more extensively in that province, the expenses thereof will in future be borne by the State.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, Aug. 16.

THE ADVANCE OF THE FRENCH IN BURMAH.—Our Burmah correspondence mentions a fact of some importance—the arrival of the French expedition from Saigon at Mone, five days' march from Mandalay. We have often pointed out that it is merely a question of time when the French, who have just completed their annexation of all Cochin China, and asserted their suzerainty over Cambodia, will take possession of the Shan country and ultimately of Upper Burmah. The Shans have again and again asked to become our subjects, and the Burmese from palace to cottage long for us to rule over them. To do so would be an evil to us, but a necessary one, and it would be cheaper than to wait till France cuts us off from Western China and the Mekong. The King of Mandalay is ready to concede a new treaty, but the case of Williams v. Calagreedy, reported by our correspondent, is only one of many which shows that, above all such questions as the reduction of duties, it is essential for the British Agent to exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction in the case of British subjects. The present state of things is scandalous and effectually arrests trade.—Friend of India.

AN ADULTERY CASE is before the Joint-Magistrate at Allahabad, in which a Mr. Richard Battersby charges a Mr. J. A. Crawford, a married man, with taking away his wife. A letter was read from the accused containing the following disgraceful confession and proposal of compromise—"I trust the day is not far distant when I shall make your wife all the reparation that a man can by giving her my name. It is no whim of a day which had led me to do what I have done, and I feel certain that, however much the world may condemn us, our ultimate happiness is secured. Try and keep things quiet—your interests are at stake as well as mine." The case was adjourned.

THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL has appointed a committee to consider the plans of Colonel Fraser, C.B., the distinguished Engineer Officer who has built Lord Dalhousie's light-houses in the Bay of Bengal, for small light-houses at the mouth of the Hooghly and for jetties off Calcutta. Colonel Fraser proposes, we believe, to build five light-houses from Point Palmyras to the Mutlah, and to begin with Saugor Island. The plan will dispense with the present light-ships, will save no small number of lives and amount of property, and among its minor advantages will give Calcutta telegraphic intelligence of the shipping from Saugor Island. The Committee is to consist of Colonel Fraser, Captain Howe, Captain Handley, Mr. Rome, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. P. Keith, Lloyd's Agent.—Friend of India.

TIGERS NEAR CALCUTTA.—It appears that the Bengal tiger has not been driven by advancing civilisation so far from Chowringhee as is generally supposed, or at least we have occasional visitors almost taking a peep at the city. On Thursday a splendid tiger was shot in the Salt Water Lakes, close to the Toll Station at Bamanghatta. The probability is that the animal may have been driven "by stress of weather" from his more remote haunts in the Sunderbunds, and, seeking a more comfortable abode, fell into the "snare of the fowler." The tiger has been presented to the Asiatic Museum by Mr. Gallicie, the Collector of Tolls.

GOOD NEWS FOR UNCOVENANTED OFFICERS.—A case recently decided by the Government of India may be found interesting to the members of the Uncovenanted Service. It appears that an assistant employed in a Government Secretariat obtained a few months' leave of absence, and accidentally overstayed that leave. He subsequently memorialised the Government, praying that the period he over-stayed may be taken into account when counting the period of his service, on the ground of illness. The Lieutenant-Governor was of opinion that as good reason had been shown the prayer of the memorialist should be granted. The Governor-General in Council has concurred in that opinion, and has ruled that when an Uncove-nanted officer on leave, who fails to join his post on the expiration of that leave, can show sufficient reasons for such deviation from the rules, the period he overstays will be reckoned as service.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL HAS VETOED THE ASSAM COOLIE ACT.—That Act was passed with the unanimous consent of all parties, except the extreme planter interest. It embodies every possible protection for the coolie, suggested by Mr. Grey, the Lieutenant-Governor. To have adopted Lord Cranborne's suggestion, that the imprisonment of a coolie should determine his contract, would be worse for the labourer than the philanthropic provisions of the Act. Sir John Lawrence must have very strong reasons to justify such a step. Meanwhile, it would seem, all the work must be done over again under almost insuperable difficulties created by the veto. Mr. Grey's visit to Assam will enable him to say whether the Commission of Inquiry, promised in the event of this Act breaking down, is inadvisable.—Friend of India.

BROOK TAYLOR is, we believe, to get the Division in Bengal, vacant by the resignation of General Williams. The Dinapore Brigade will not be vacant for some time, and for that Colonel Bouchier has probably the best chance. Colonel D. Stewart is to be retained for another year in the office of Deputy-Adjutant-general. We understand that Colonel Wilson, of the 7th Bengal Cavalry, will enter the Adjutant-general's office in place of Colonel Fraser, for the purpose of succeeding Colonel Stewart. Colonel Fraser will get a regiment as soon as possible.—Friend of India.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE DEPARTURE OF HOMEWARD-BOUND TROOPS.—The following are the arrangements for the return home of the undermentioned regiments during the ensuing season:—The 7th Dragoon Guards and the 2nd Battalion Rifle Brigade will embark on board the Jumna on the 21st September. The 27th Regiment of Foot, now in the Fort, and the D, E, F, and G Batteries of the 11th Brigade, quartered at Barrackpore, will leave the port on the 21st November next. The 35th, 42nd, and 94th Regiments, now in the N.W. Provinces, will embark at Bombay.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY.—The profits of the Eastern Bengal Railway Company for their steamers for the year ending December last amounted to Rs. 16,051. This is equal to about 8 per cent. on the capital involved, Rs. 412,000. But as the board of directors have required 10 per cent. to be carried to credit of a deterioration fund, there is a sum of 2 per cent. which the State has to make up over and above the guaranteed interest for the half-year on this portion of the company's capital.

SUGGESTED APPOINTMENT OF A BARRISTER TO THE POST OF JUDGE ADVOCATE-GENERAL.—The Government of India, it is believed, have suggested to the Commander-in-Chief the advisability of appointing a barrister of standing to the post of Judge Advocate-General, the salary of which, it is supposed, will be from Rs. 2,500 to 3,000 per mensem. This will ensure the nomination of a gentleman of the learned profession of special attainments.

FALL FROM A VERANDAH.—The Indian Public Opinion disbelieves the following story:—A letter from Murree informs us that Capt. Hawkins, Royal Artillery, fell out of the verandah of Government House, where he was staying at the time, and fractured his head. We have not heard whether the accident is likely to prove fatal.

SUB-ASSISTANT SURGEONS.—We have been informed that the sub-assistant surgeons, as a body, intend shortly to present another memorial to the Viceroy and Governor-General, praying his Excellency, on stronger grounds than those set forth in their first memorial, to augment their pay, and to raise their official status.—Indian Daily News.

RELEASED SLAVES FROM NEPAUL.—Our readers will remember that at the beginning of the rains the action of the Government led to the release of 550 women and 92 men who had been sold into slavery amongst the Nepalese. Unfortunately, although the Government made them a subsistence allowance, its measures for their care and protection seem to have been more perfect and benevolent in theory than in practice. Fever is said to have broken out amongst the returned captives, and to have raged with unexampled violence. Out of the total of 648 more than half we are told have perished, and the Government have taken measures to improve the condition of the survivors.

RETIREMENT OF THE REV. A. B. SPRY.—We observe notified in the Gazette of India the retirement, after twenty-eight years' service, of the Rev. A. B. Spry, the senior chaplain on the list, on a pension of £365. Mr. Spry, on leaving India after so long a residence among us, will carry with him the good wishes of a large circle of friends, and we trust that he has many years of usefulness yet before him in his native land.—Delhi Gazette, Sept. 3.

CHANGES IN THE BANK OF BENGAL.—Mr. F. A. Gilliam, the agent of the Bank of Bengal at Allahabad, has been appointed acting agent of the Lahore and Umritsur branches, in the room of Mr. A. M. Ross, who has obtained leave of absence. Mr. Alexander Smith, the agent of the Bank at Delhi, has been appointed to Allahabad, and Mr. Donald Kennedy to Delhi.—Englishman, Aug. 22.

TROOPS TO BE SENT TO THE NICOBAR ISLANDS.—Orders have been received for three companies of the 26th Regiment N.I. to be in readiness to start for the Nicobar Islands, under the command of Major Longmore and two other officers. They have been struck off, and all ready for a start.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, Aug. 26.

THE CENTRAL INDIA HORSE VOLUNTEERS FOR SERVICE IN ABYSSINIA.—The feeling of the Indian army on the subject of the Abyssinian expedition may, we think, be gathered from the offer of the Central India Horse to form part of any force which may be sent to the rescue of the captives.

REMOURED RETIREMENT OF COLONEL TAYLOR.—We understand that Colonel Taylor, our Inspector-general of Police, is likely to retire from the service early next year, and that he will be succeeded by our popular district superintendent of police, Colonel G. G. Moxon, when we hope some changes for the better will take place in this department.

THE COMMANDANT OF THE 12TH B.C. has been placed under open arrest. A military court at Cawnpore has been occupied with the preliminary investigation of some charges affecting him.

THE CANTONMENT OF MYSORE.—A report on the Cantonment of Mysore recommends that the troops should be permanently located at French Rocks. The report states that the whole of the Mysore district is more or less subject to fever, and that, considering the question of a site for a military station, there is actually no locality in the neighbourhood of Mysore which would not prove unhealthy from this cause. The troops have in consequence been removed to the French Rocks, and orders have been issued for abandoning the cantonment to cultivation, which is to be carried up to the walls of the buildings. The station is also to be surrounded by a belt of trees, and trees are to be planted down the centre of each street on the lines. This is only the last instance of the happy-go-lucky genius which has hitherto presided over the selection of the sites for cantonments in British India.

AN ENTIRE REGIMENT OF NATIVE INFANTRY is to be sent from Fort St. George to Cuttack.

BOMBAY.

THE RAILWAY EXTENSION ALONG THE EDGE OF THE ESPLANADE.

BOMBAY, June 20, 1867.

To the Right Hon. the President and Governor in Council, Bombay.

RIGHT HON. SIR,—We have recently learned that it is proposed to alter the original line of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway along Back Bay, and to make it skirt so near to the Esplanade that it will utterly spoil that place of public recreation.

2. When Government threw down and cleared away the old fort walls and ramparts in 1864 they advanced considerably upon the Esplanade, and declared all those plots and parcels of land coloured yellow on the plan were to be leased out for building sites to form the new town of Bombay, thus advancing from Rampart and Hornby Rows to the new main Esplanade road.

3. As some compensation to the public for this large slice of the Esplanade taken away, Government, when making an arrangement with the Bombay Reclamation Company, gave that company the right to reclaim a total area of 1,500 acres in Back Bay, on the condition that they should deliver over free to Government 300 acres; of these 300 acres about 100 were for railway purposes and the other 200 acres were to be given over in compensation for the large slice of the Esplanade taken away for building sites, and it was the fixed intention of Government that this 200 acres should be laid out as Esplanade, ornamental gardens, squares, and improved public roads.

4. Owing to the collapse of the Bombay Reclamation Company at the end of 1866 these plans and intentions could not be carried out in their entirety, and as a makeshift the line of railway has been changed as shown in the plan, and is to be brought on a raised stone embankment within 50 yards of the sea wall of the esplanade, to encroach on the south or coo-perage end of the Esplanade, and so to reach a large goods station at Colaba.

5. We, as members of the Esplanade Committee, are its public trustees, and we feel bound to protest against the proposed alteration in the line of railway, as it will utterly spoil the Esplanade, and be a great public nuisance.

6. We appeal to your Honourable Board that the public has a prescriptive right in the Esplanade being kept open as a place of recreation. In fact it is the only lung left to the inhabitants of Bombay. In all great cities, public parks and gardens have been reserved as places of recreation, to enable the crowded inhabitants of towns to breathe and enjoy the fresh air of heaven.

7. The great sanitary results arising from reserving large open spaces (Battersea and Victoria Parks), within cities have received universal acknowledgment. Every capital in Europe can testify to the fact, and in crowded London itself, the Commissioner of Woods and Forests has of recent years created two new parks, besides greatly improving those in existence.

8. In India also much attention has of late years been paid to this subject. Lucknow, Cawnpore, Delhi, Agra, and Lahore have all beautiful public parks or gardens. In Madras there is the People's Park, and in Calcutta, where the Esplanade is ten times the size of that of Bombay, Government most scrupulously keep faith with the public, and prevent any encroachment.

9. Whereas in Bombay the reverse has been the practice. The railway companies, the municipality, and all public and private institutions, have from time to time been allowed to encroach on the Esplanade, and there is hardly a school, a hospital, or a dispensary, that has been started of late years, that has not been granted a site on the Esplanade. It is therefore the more incumbent upon Government to preserve intact the little that is left to the public.

10. With this view we would most respectfully, but urgently, submit that the proposed alteration of the railway line along Back Bay be reconsidered by your Excellency in Council, and some other arrangements be made by which the Esplanade may not be spoiled as a place of public recreation, and for this boon we feel assured that posterity will be ever grateful to your Honourable Board.—We have the honour to be, Right Honourable Sir, your Excellency's most obedient servants.

THE BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA TERMINUS.

To his Excellency the Right Hon. R. Seymour Vesey Fitzgerald, Governor of Bombay.

The petition of the undersigned, having property at Colaba,

Humbly Showeth,—That your petitioners have heard with surprise and alarm that an application has been made to your Excellency to abandon the works already in progress for extending railway communication to the South of the Fort.

Your petitioners would venture strongly to urge the following considerations against the change proposed:—

1st. That many of them have been induced to invest money, and undertake heavy expenditures on the faith of an arrangement which has for a long time been regarded as settled by a previous order of Government.

2nd. They feel that a grievous hardship will be entailed upon them by thus cutting off their property from the benefits of railway communication, nor can they believe that any considerations of public advantage require so heavy a sacrifice, not only of their personal interests, but of those undertakings which have been entered on for requirements of the trade of the port.

3rd. They are informed that it is urged that the existence of a line of railway between the shore of Back Bay and the fort will be prejudicial to the health and comfort of the inhabitants. They trust that they are as fully alive as those proposing this change to all considerations affecting the general welfare of the community, but submit that all experience proves, both in England and other countries, even in Poona itself, that such objections, though vehemently urged at first, are quickly found to have very little real weight when set in opposition to the general wants and interests of a community.

4th. Without dwelling on the extreme hardship which would be entailed by a decision unexpectedly enforced to the prejudice of a trade established for many years, and for the accommodation of which large sums have been expended both by the Government and your petitioners, they would further point out that of all places in the island this slip of land affords the largest extent of harbour frontage at the least sacrifice of space applicable for residences or other purposes, while the foreshore on both sides afford peculiar facilities for the further extension of reclamation from the sea should it be required hereafter to mitigate the pressure of extreme prices for land, which the growing necessities of trade might impose upon industry to the grievous disadvantage of interests far more widely extended than those centred round the Esplanade of Bombay.

The petition of the undersigned, dealers in cotton and others interested in the trade and prosperity of Bombay,

Humbly Showeth,—That your petitioners have learnt that your Excellency has been moved to abandon the works at present in progress to bring the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway Terminus into Colaba, and afford the advantages of railway communication to the various public works situated to the South of the Fort, and in lieu thereof to grant the said railway a station close to that of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway in the ground reclaimed by the Elphinstone Land and Press Company lying between the native town of Bombay and the Harbour.

Your petitioners in the interests of the general trade and welfare of the port, as well as of their own, venture most emphatically to protest against this abandonment of works laid out in accordance with the recent decision of Government to provide for the trade of this city.

The question we submit does not merely lie between the G. I. P. and B. B. & C. I. Railways respectively; the issue is whether a long range of harbour frontage now used most beneficially for trade, and capable of much further extension shall, or shall not, be deprived of the advantages of railway communication.

There is no desire whatever to prevent the traffic of the B. B. and C. I. Railway from going on to the stations at the back of the native town, but there is already a junction between the two lines at Parell which should be made to afford the proper means of intercommunication with the respective termini of both railways.

Your petitioners acknowledge with admiration the zealous and successful efforts which have been made by the Elphinstone Land and Press Company to provide for the growing wants of the town, but they cannot regard without grave apprehension the proposed restriction of the access to the railway system of India to one locality to the exclusion of another, which has been for more than a quarter of a century the seat of the most important branch of the foreign trade of Bombay.

This trade in cotton was, we believe, originally moved to Colaba on account of the confined space and the comparatively high prices demanded for it in the native town. Extensive as are the works projected by the Elphinstone Land and Press Company they cannot be regarded as keeping pace with the extension of a trade which is expanding so rapidly, and a population which has been augmented by fully a quarter of a million within the last decade, and probably does not now fall far short of a million.

This city must draw its supplies chiefly from the harbour side. The whole open sea coast to the south and west is impracticable for traffic. To the north is the Island of Salsette, which can afford but little, and the chief part of the traffic for the supply of the daily wants, both of man and beast, must naturally flow into the native town over the bunders on and adjacent to the Elphinstone reclamation.

Your petitioners could not but regard it as a heavy blow to all the best and most permanent interests of the island if the competition of the new land now reclaimed, which must arise from these causes, joined to the pressure of the existing dense population in the neighbourhood, were increased by any step tending to force the traffic (chiefly foreign) now located at Colaba back again upon the native city.

They do not rest their argument on the prospects of the cotton trade alone, though they consider it very unlikely that Bombay should ever cease to be a large depot for that staple. On the other hand all experience shows that numerous branches of trade and industry most beneficial to a community (and so much wanted in Bombay) invariably spring up in the vicinity of a large railway station, especially if not checked in their early stages by the scarcity, want of choice, or the high price of the space required for their natural development.

But chiefly do they apprehend that the effect of thus crowding too many interests into one locality would be to enhance the inordinately high prices of the first necessities of life, which are now so great a drawback both to the health of the population and the success of every undertaking in the place, and further, that the difficulty of opening up wholesome competition, which alone can afford an adequate remedy to an evil of such magnitude, would be very greatly increased.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT ON THE GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.

We regret to report a frightful accident on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, which occurred to the train that left Poona at 2.45 P.M. on Thursday, August 29th. All went well until the train arrived within two or three miles of Lanowlee, above the Bhoré Ghaut Incline, when it came into collision with an engine running in the opposite direction on the same line of rails. The passenger train was composed as follows—engine, brake van, a road van, two first-class carriages, one second, and two or three third-class, with another brake van in the rear. The runaway engine, which was one of the immense ghaut engines weighing about fifty tons, is supposed to have attained a speed of about twenty-five miles an hour, and the passenger train between twelve and twenty, but so violent was the collision that the brake van, road van, and the first-class carriage next the road van, were completely smashed, and the other first-class carriage forced nearly on top of the debris. The couplings connecting the second and third-class carriages with the rest of the train snapped immediately the collision occurred, and these carriages ran back the line some two or three hundred yards until brought to a stop by the brake. Unfortunately the accident occurred at a curve on the line where it was impossible to see more than three hundred yards ahead. Immediately, however, the driver of the passenger train saw the runaway engine approaching, he reversed his engine, applied the brake, and collision being inevitable, jumped off. By this means he and his European assistant escaped without serious hurt, but the native fireman who remained on the engine met instant death.

The only passengers in the carriage that was smashed were Mr. E. I. Howard, barrister, and Mr. W. Rodgie, of the Bank of Bombay; and we deeply regret to state that the former gentleman was killed on the spot. Mr. Rodgie fortunately escaped with only a sprained foot and a few bruises. The two gentlemen, who had been to Poona in connexion with the recently-discovered forgeries, were returning in company, and fortunately had the saloon carriage entirely to themselves. Mr. Howard was reclining on the seat at the back of the carriage furthest from the engine, and had just received from Mr. Rodgie, who was reclining on one of the side seats a copy of the Westminster Review, when the shriek of the whistle was heard, followed instantly by the collision. Mr. Rodgie was thrown on to the floor of the carriage, which, however, seemed to open as he fell, and let him through into the debris beneath. The passenger train being the heavier, forced the engine back after the collision some twenty or thirty yards. Mr. Rodgie was dragged along this distance, the falling debris threatening him each moment with instant death, until he was caught by some heavy beam or other, turned suddenly round, and almost gently deposited in the drain at the side of the small cutting in which the collision occurred. His first impulse was to run from the scene of the accident lest the engines should burst, but that impulse was only momentary, when he returned to the broken carriages and called for Mr. Howard. No reply being received, Mr. Rodgie commenced a search, when in a few seconds he found the remains of his unfortunate companion buried in the debris, but his skull was so dreadfully fractured as to render the face scarcely recognisable. Death, however, must have been instantaneous. To Mr. Rodgie the scene must have been particularly painful, for in less time than it has taken to write the unpleasant details he was called upon to identify the mangled remains of one with whom, only a few moments previous, he had been in conversation. That Mr. Rodgie himself should have escaped with such a slight injury is marvellous. Groans being heard from amidst the debris, a further search was instituted, when the guard, named Hunt, was found buried in the ruins. He was then alive, and, so far as could be judged, did not appear seriously injured. Every effort was made to extricate him, but it proved a work of several hours, and the unfortunate man died immediately he was released. After the efforts to release him had been prosecuted for some time, it was found that he was suspended by a bent bar, which held him as a vice, nor could he be liberated until this bar was sawn through. The lower part of his body was fearfully mangled, but he seemed not to know of it, owing, perhaps, to the suspended circulation. He lived for five hours after the collision, conscious to the last, and died without agony.

In the carriage following that containing Mr. Howard were Mr. Showell, police magistrate, Mr. and Mrs. Gamble and daughter, and some native passengers. The latter or the majority of them jumped from the carriage immediately after the collision, and fortunately all escaped without serious injury, with the exception of Mr. Showell, who fractured a small bone near his right ankle. The passengers in the second and third-class carriages were only severely shaken.

The accident occurred through a runaway engine which left the siding at the Lanowlee station, and proceeded at ever-increasing speed towards Poona until the terrible collision occurred. It appears that a man named Wiseman, who has been four years in the company's service, and has borne an excellent character, was engaged in his usual occupation of shunting waggons at Lanowlee. Having left one waggon in a siding, he was proceeding to shunt another, when he observed that the waggon he had just left was again in motion, and that were it not stopped a collision must take place. Knowing also that he would be held responsible by the company for any damage that might be caused, he hastily shut off steam, as he believed, and, alighting from his engine, ran back to put down the brake on the waggon in motion. In thus alighting from his engine he was, of course, guilty of gross neglect of duty, and committed also the terrible mistake of supposing he had quite shut off steam, when he had not done so. How it was that Wiseman was left in sole charge of the engine without the aid of either a European or native fireman has yet to be explained. Before he could return to his engine it had started on its work of destruction. Immediately the station-master at Lanowlee learned that the engine had thus started, knowing that the mail train was nearly due, he telegraphed to the Curkalla station to stop the approaching train, but unfortunately it had already left. A collision being inevitable, he immediately ordered steam to be got up on another engine, and sent it off to the scene of the accident. This appears to have arrived about half an hour after the collision occurred, it had, however, to return to Lanowlee for assistance, but it took back with it Mr. and Mrs. Gamble, Mr. Showell and others, Mr. Rodgie remaining to assist in rescuing the unfortunate man who was still buried in the debris, having in the meantime arranged for the despatch of a telegram to Poona announcing the death of Mr. Howard. Two hours later Mr. Rodgie returned to Lanowlee, and proceeded with the rest of the passengers to Bombay. On reaching Kurjut they were, with heartlessness which is quite revolting, detained a weary two hours for the arrival of the mails, and consequently did not reach Bombay until between 2 and 3 o'clock the following morning.

The bodies of Mr. Howard and the guard were taken back to Poona, where an inquest was held on them by Dr. Fraser, the railway magistrate, the jury returning a verdict of accidental death, adding as their unanimous opinion that the breaking away of the engine from Lanowlee station could not have occurred without most culpable neglect on the part of some person or persons in the service of the railway company; and they, therefore, considered that a most stringent and searching inquiry should be made in order to fix the guilty negligence on the proper parties, and bring them to justice.

Mr. E. I. Howard's funeral took place the same afternoon. He was buried with great honour at Poona Cemetery, and the funeral was very numerously attended, the service being impressively read by Archdeacon Leigh B. H. Ellis, and the Hon. Colonel Marriott were the chief mourners. Among these present to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased gentleman were—the Hon. G. Fogg, General Rivers, the agent of the G. I. P. Railway; General Skinner, Brigadier-general Sir Campbell, and Kirby, Majors Etheridge and Blowers, Captain Mellis, Dr. Fraser, Messrs. Oliphant, Bell, and Richardson, magistrates; Mr. Knox, the traffic superintendent; Mr. Fraser Hore, and many others.

Dr. Fraser, the railway magistrate, proceeded to Lanowlee the following morning to hold an official investigation into the circumstances attending the accident, when, after an inquiry which lasted some hours, the driver Wiseman was committed for trial on a charge of culpable negligence.—Times of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—The Times of India says:—The all-engrossing subject of public attention in India at present, as it has been for some time past, is the proposed Abyssinian expedition. Reuter intimates that the Home Government has chartered a large fleet of steam transports, that two more vessels of the Royal Navy have been ordered to Bombay, and that the purchase of beasts of burden is going on in different quarters. In addition to all these, other formidable preparations are being proceeded with in Bombay. Three fast steamers have been purchased by Government; and five or six steam transports, the aggregate of whose tonnage amounts to 14,000 tons, have also been chartered. Besides these there are the vessels of the Bombay Marine, whose services have also been called into requisition for special duty, and people greatly wonder what vast design is behind all this. Stores of every description are likewise being collected with that quiet and effective energy of which the Indian Commissariat department, unlike its representative in England, is capable; and by the time the troops can be gathered together under the gallant Sir Robert Napier nothing will be found wanting, except an enemy to fight. What regiments and officers are to compose the expedition has not yet been officially intimated. The force will not, as was originally proposed, be entirely recruited from the Bombay army; both Bengal and Madras will supply brigades, an arrangement made, we believe, at the earnest solicitation of the armies of those presidencies. One Bengal brigade will be under the command of Colonel Lumsdaine, of the Hyderabad Contingent; and Colonel Lumsden, Quartermaster-General of the Bengal Army, is to hold the post of Quartermaster-General of the whole force. Sir Robert Napier, it is said, proposes to send 4 Field Batteries, 1 Squadron of Dragoons, 4 Regiments Native Cavalry, 4 Companies of Sappers, 4 British Infantry Regts., 10 Native Infantry Regts., 1 Mountain Train Battery, 1 Mortar Battery, and also asks for over 20,000 mules. If things are done on the scale proposed by his Excellency, a use will be found for all the steam transports at least, whatever may be done with the mules. Colonel Merewether, with the reconnoitring and surveying party, is to leave Bombay for Massowah in the B.I.S.N. Company's steamship Euphrates on the 10th inst. With him proceed Colonel St. Clair Wilkins, R.E., Capt. Goodfellow, R.E., Captain Jopp, R.E., Captain Greig, R.E.; Major Baigrie and Captain Pottinger (of the Quartermaster-General's Department), Surgeon J. Lumsdaine (of Matheran), and Assistant-Surgeon Martin, a body of sappers, 100 rank and file of the 21st N.I. (Marine Battalion), under native officers, and a troop of forty sowars from the 3rd Light Cavalry, with its full complement of native officers. The Coromandel sails on the same date with mules.

ARRIVAL OF HER MAJESTY'S TROOPSHIP "EUPHRATES."—The Euphrates, the first of the new Indian transports to be employed in conveying by the overland route the annual reliefs between Portsmouth and Bombay, arrived in harbour on Aug. 27, having left Plymouth on June 21. Some of the reliefs will this year be shipped from Calcutta, in all probability by the Junna, some will be shipped from Bombay by the Euphrates and the Malahar, but in future years all the reliefs will embark and land at Bombay. The Euphrates coming round the Cape brought of course no troops. She brings the following intelligence :—“The Euphrates left Plymouth Sound June 21 at 4 P.M., arrived at St. Vincent (Cape de Verd) June 30 at 2 P.M.; left St. Vincent July 2 at 7 P.M., and arrived at Ascension Island July 11 at 2.30 P.M.; left Ascension July 13 at 8 A.M. and arrived at St. Helena July 16 at 2.30 P.M.; left St. Helena July 16 at 6 P.M., and arrived at Simon's Bay (Cape of Good Hope) July 24th at midnight. Commodore Caldwell went home in the Orontis on July 27th on three months' sick leave, Captain Purvis of the Raccoon hoisting the broad pendant as acting Commodore. The French frigate Hermione, with flag of Rear Admiral, arrived on the 27th from Brest en route for China and Japan. Urgent, with naval supernumeraries from China, arrived on the 30th, and left again for England on August 1st. Left Simon's Bay on August 1st at 3 P.M., and arrived at Mauritius August 13th at 8 A.M. Fever had quite left the island. On the 14th received news by the steamer Oriental of the Jama having arrived at St. Vincent on July 11th. The Oriental left Mauritius for Calcutta on 17th instant.—Bombay Gazette.

THE DHOBIES IN DISTRESS.—On the 27th ultimo the Dhobees (washermen), numbering about a thousand, waited upon Mr. Dosabhooy Framjee, special officer for the Imperial Licence-tax, and represented their poor circumstances, asserting that none of them made anything like two hundred rupees a year, while they had, with the small amount they earned, to protect their families, including children and decrepid old men, some of whom were brought for exhibition before the special officer. They also presented a petition addressed “To the Worshipful Dosabhooy Framjee, Esquire,” and subscribed, without any signature, as follows :—“The Jamatt of the whole of the Dhobee caste.” Mr. Dosabhooy said that he was sorry to hear of their distressing circumstances, but that he had also a painful duty to perform. The question was not whether they were able to pay four rupees or ten rupees, but whether they earned such amounts as to bring them under the incidents of the tax. He told the washermen that the law was clear, and that he could not depart one inch from it, or grant any class an entire exemption. It was, he added, no use disguising the fact that all washermen did not earn two hundred per annum; and such as did not, come within the incidence of the tax would not be served with notices. This answer seemed to please the deputation which waited upon the special officer. The washermen then wished to know how “the Sirkar” would find out what each of them earned, but Mr. Dosabhooy informed them that he understood his business better than they did, and knew how to deal with them. He then suggested to them the propriety of forming themselves into small committees (punchayets) and picking up the names of those whose income, according to their knowledge, came up to Rs. 200 a year. This suggestion was approved by the deputation, and they went away to deliberate upon the subject.—Bombay Gazette.

AFFAIRS OF MUSCAT.—Muscat, the chief town of one of the two great principalities into which Oman, in the east of Arabia, is divided, has for at least more than two centuries been the scene of periodical outbreaks, and one of the chosen homes of treachery and intrigue. Formerly, the struggles for ascendancy in that quarter were of considerable importance, the possession of it having been disputed at one time or other by Persians, Portuguese, Arabs, and Mahrattas. The worst party, for the time being, immediately took to piracy and plunder, infesting the coast, and taking by force every ship they were strong enough to overpower. Their example spread far and wide, and powerful fleets, raised for defence in the first instance, were ultimately commissioned to attack and rob every vessel that happened to be weaker than themselves, no matter whence she came or whither she was bound. The star of the maritime Arabs has, however, been in the ascendant in Oman and Muscat since 1700, and having lately had no foreign foe against whom to contend, they have betaken themselves to intestine war. Last year Syud Selim, as will be remembered, assassinated his father, Syud Thowanee, and established himself as Imaum (or, as Lord Stanley will have it, Sultan) of Muscat. In order to confirm his seat on the throne, Selim expelled thence Syud Thoorke, his uncle, who denied the right of the parricide to live, much less to rule. Since then Thoorkee has been hovering about in the Persian Gulf, in command of an armed fleet of varying dimensions, biding his time for an attack on his nephew, and only restrained from committing a breach of the peace by the presence in those waters of Col. Pelly, the British Resident, and a few vessels of the Bombay Marine. Lately Thoorkee has gathered together a force of at least 4,000 men, with which he menaces his nephew, Syud Selim, and with which he has already made an unsuccessful attack upon the fort of Sohar. He is assisted, it is believed, with men and money by his brother Syud Majid, the Sultan of Zanzibar, who lately made an unsuccessful effort to evade the payment of his tribute to Muscat, on the ground of the present Imaum having murdered his father, his, the Sultan's, brother. It may be mentioned that the Sultan of Zanzibar possesses an extensive fleet, in which is the famous Confederate steamer Shenandoah, now yclept the Sea King; and it may also be remarked that his Highness, having got this vessel, is at his wits' end to know what to do with her.—Times of India.

THE SITUATION IN CABUL.—PESHAWUR, August 21.—Your kossid has not returned from Cabul up to to-day. The following news from Cabul and Toorkistan was brought by a man who arrived to-day; and as in the absence of your regular Cabul correspondence it will be interesting to your readers, I hasten to communicate it to you :—“Cholera is still raging in Cabul very severely, and several men of note have been carried off by the disease; among them Sirdar Mohamed Suddick Khan (brother of the late Sirdar Sooltan Jan, of Heerat), Meer Utteekoolla Khan (son of the Hafizjee), and Surwur Khan Loothane (the chief merchant of Cabul). The latter was taken ill while at dinner with Ameer Uzul Khan, and died just after he reached his own house. His death had such an effect on the Ameer that he got ill, and it was given out he was dead, but that his death was kept secret for political reasons. So thoroughly was this rumour believed that the Ameer had to ride through the city on an elephant to show himself to the inhabitants. During his ride the Ameer ordered that all the shops which had been closed in consequence of the cholera should be re-opened, and he saw his orders carried out personally. All the troops that were stationed in Cabul have been sent into different camps in the suburbs in order to escape the cholera. This dreadful scourge has now been raging in Cabul for thirty-five days, and is said to have extended to Toorkistan. From Toorkistan news had been received in Cabul to the effect that the Russians were in possession of Kurshee, and were busy road-making. A road to Buddukhsan was in course of construction, and one to Orgunge was contemplated. Ameer Shere Ally Khan had issued a proclamation in Tashkurgan, Muzzur Shurreef, Balkh, Ukha and Tukhta Bool, prohibiting the citizens sending any kossids to Cabul, or corresponding with any inhabitant of that city. It is reported that Ameer Shere Ally Khan has succeeded in gaining the good will of the Russians. I have just heard that one of your kossids died from cholera at Tazain. I expect the other hourly, and on his arrival will despatch your regular letter. It has been raining here very heavily for the last few days, and all the streams and rivers are flooded.”

A NARROW ESCAPE ON THE PRONGS.—The ship Queen of Australia, Capt. Page, bound for Rangoon with ballast, sailed from the harbour on Wednesday, August 28th, and her pilot left her at four o'clock, when she was beyond the outer light ship. It appears that she drifted back at the flood tide, when the weather was very calm, for about nine o'clock in the evening she was seen from the light-house at Colaba, and as she appeared to be in danger guns were fired and blue lights set off. The vessel appears to have struck two or three times, but fortunately did not take the ground. Mr. Smith, second class pilot, went on board of her with great promptness; and Mr. Corke, first assistant master attendant, and Mr. Pilot Jolley arrived soon after. With little delay the vessel was taken out of her precarious position, and brought back into the harbour, where she is now anchored below the Dolphin light, apparently not much the worse.

THE LATE MR. HOWARD.—Mr. Howard was a pupil in Chambers of Sir Richard Bethell (Lord Westbury), and was called to the bar in 1853. In December of the same year he arrived in Bombay and joined his brother in practice, which he continued till 1857, when he was appointed by Lord Elphinstone's Government to the post of Director of Public Instruction. This post he held till 1865, when he resigned the appointment and returned to practice, being succeeded by the present director, Sir Alexander Grant. Mr. Howard's literary acquisitions were most extensive and varied, and, being perhaps the ablest member of the Bombay bar, he enjoyed an excellent practice. He was buried in Poona Cemetery on the 30th August—the day following the accident—all the leading military and civilian residents at the station being present to testify their sorrow at the loss of one whose accomplishments and social qualities had ensured him the esteem and attachment of all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. Mr. Howard was buried on the 30th ult. in the Poona Cemetery. He was about forty years of age. On the assembling of the Appellate Court on the morning after the accident, the Hon. the Advocate-General (Mr. Bayley), who spoke with deep emotion, addressed the Bench as follows :—“Your Lordships are, I believe, aware of the sad loss which the bar of Bombay have sustained by the sudden deprivation of life, without a moment's warning, of one of its ablest members, my late esteemed friend, Mr. Edward Howard, by the railway accident which occurred yesterday afternoon near Lanowlee. This is neither the time nor place to refer to his great and amiable qualities; but, upon behalf of the bar, I beg to express our very deep regret for one who, in the prime of life and in the fulness and freshness of his intellectual vigour, has been thus so suddenly carried away from amongst us. I humbly request, on the part of this bar, that, as a tribute of respect to his memory, your Lordships will yield to our wishes and adjourn the Court till to-morrow. The Chief Justice: Mr. Advocate-General.—The judges most deeply sympathise with the bar in the loss that they have sustained. As you yourself say, this perhaps may not be the time for us to speak of the merits of the learned gentleman whose loss we have to deplore; but we quite concur in the desire you express that the Court should pay this tribute of respect to the memory of Mr. Howard; therefore none of the Courts on the Civil side will sit to-day.”

KURRACHEE HARBOUR.—We learn from Our Paper that there is between 20 and 23 feet of water on the bar, which is being gradually worked away by the action produced upon it by the completed portion of Mr. Walker's plans, particularly the Keemaree groyne. A vigorous prosecution of the improvements as originally contemplated is advocated. Some anxiety seems to be felt with regard to the water supply of Kurrachee failing.

THE MHOW-KE MULLEE VIADUCT.—So universal was the regret occasioned, on this side of India at least, by the collapse of the Mhow-ke-Mullee viaduct, that a few particulars regarding the steps that are being taken to replace it, and to provide for the traffic in the meantime, cannot but possess considerable interest to our readers. Notwithstanding that the monsoon season is very unpropitious for out-door work, and particularly so on the ghauts, a great deal has already been done to provide a temporary means of transport by tramway, until such time as the new bridge shall be completed. For several weeks after the fall of the viaduct the work was carried on under the personal direction of Mr. Knox, general traffic manager, and the progress that has been made is no doubt due in great measure to his experience and powers of organisation. The debris has now been all but cleared away, so that the erection of the new piers can be proceeded with immediately after the rains. Meanwhile, attention is being chiefly directed to the construction of a tramway, upon which some 1,200 men are daily at work, and which is already in a forward state. On the completion of this tramway there will be nothing to prevent the resumption of the Bhore Ghaut route for passenger and heavy goods traffic, as it is now employed for the conveyance of the mails and parcels, which are transported from one side of the gorge to the other by gangs of coolies, each gang being under strict police surveillance. The new work that is to take the place of the fallen viaduct has been designed by Mr. Rushton, the Company's Resident Engineer. It is to consist of two massive piers, thirty-five feet by twenty-nine, constructed of solid blocking throughout, instead of blocking with-out and rubble within, as in the case of its predecessor. Upon these piers will rest an iron girder bridge, of sufficient strength to sustain any weight required. The design is believed by engineers to be in every way superior to the former, and while it will in all probability not cost more at first, it will beyond doubt prove much cheaper in the end.

MR. T. J. DEWAR, C.E., of the G. I. P. Railway, at present engaged on Bhore Ghaut works, has had a most miraculous escape. About a fortnight ago, while coming down the Ghaut, the lorry on which he was travelling acquired a speed of about 25 miles an hour, and in going round a sharp curve it was shot off the line, and Mr. Dewar and a native, who was on the lorry with him, were precipitated over a retaining wall 20 feet high. The native died from the injuries he received the same night, but beyond a few bruises Mr. Dewar suffered no harm.—Bombay Builder.

LOSS OF THE "ARABISTAN."—A marine court of enquiry, consisting of John Connon, Esq., acting Chief Magistrate of Police, and Captain F. Blackmore, surveyor to Messrs. Remington and Co., has assembled at the Fort Police Court, to conduct an investigation into the circumstances connected with the stranding of the British ship Arabistan on the South-West Prongs on the morning of the 18th ultimo.

REMOVING LIEUT. COLONELS.

Aug. 20.—No. 817.—The following despatch from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India, is published for general information:—

Military—No. 183.

India-office, London, July 19.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. of India In Council.

Sir,—Having learned from the Secy. of State for War that it has been decided, with the concurrence of H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C., to discontinue the practice of removing regimental cols. of the old royal artillery and engineers to the supernumerary list when employed in the manufacturing departments of the army, or holding other quasi-military appointments, I have to inform your Excellency that the same arrangement will be carried out in the Indian brigades of royal artillery, and that the existing supernumerary regimental cols. thus employed will be absorbed in the manner provided for in Sir Charles Wood's despatch (Rules for officers, page 624) of May 16, 1864, No. 153, viz., at the rate of one absorption for every three vacancies.

This arrangement, it is stated, is not intended to interfere with regimental cols. of the royal artillery or royal engineers accepting civil employment, who, as heretofore, will continue to be seconded under the special regulations applicable to officers so circumstanced.—I have, &c., (Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

THE STAFF CORPS.—COLONEL'S ALLOWANCE.

No. 818.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 36, dated Jan. 10, 1862, and No. 808, dated Sept. 26, 1866, the following despatch from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India, is published:—

Military.—No. 184.

India-office, London, July 9, 1867.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor-General of India in Council.

Sir,—Para. 1. In Sir C. Wood's despatch to the Govt. of India, No. 467, dated Dec. 31, 1866, it was stated that H.M.'s Govt. had decided that the colonel's allowance should at once be assigned to the several staff corps, in the proportion of one to every thirty officers who had actually joined the staff corps [para. 12.]

2. In Lord Cranborne's despatch No. 159, dated Aug. 8, 1866, in which certain measures were authorised with a view to meeting the complaints of officers of the Indian army, the following rule [para. 61, clause 5] was laid down:—"All officers now in the several staff corps, and all who may join them under the terms of this despatch, will be entitled to the colonel's allowance after twelve years' service in the grade of substantive lieutenant colonel, without reference to any fixed establishment of col. with colonel's allowance, the brevet rank of lieutenant colonel attained to under the regulations published in G.O. by your Govt., No. 632, dated Aug. 4, 1864, being however considered a substantive rank for this purpose and allowed to count towards the above period."

3. Now that the admission of officers to the several staff corps under the terms of the latter despatch has terminated, I consider it right that the mode of succession to the col.'s allowance applicable to officers joining the staff corps subsequent to the date of that despatch, and not under its conditions, should be repeated and clearly defined.

4. I desire, therefore, that it may be notified to the service that the proper establishment of colonels with colonel's allowance, is to be fixed at a strength equal to one in every 30 officers of the aggregate strength of the corps when brought to its normal condition.

5. On the last officer succeeding to the colonel's allowance, who is entitled thereto under clause 5, paragraph 61 of the despatch of Aug. 8, 1866 [No. 159], an establishment of colonels, with colonel's allowance, will be at once fixed in each Presidency, and thenceforward promotion to the allowance will be made in succession to vacancies only.

6. As there can be no doubt of there being at that time a number of officers in receipt of colonel's allowance considerably in excess of the establishment as then fixed, it will be necessary to take such measures as may then seem expedient for the gradual absorption of supernumeraries.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

SHORT LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

No. 821.—The following despatch from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India, is published for general information:—

Military, No. 198.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. of India in Council.

Sir,—Para. 1. I learn by a letter from the Government of —, dated April 11 last, No. 94, that Lieut. —, of the — N.I., who entered the service in 1857, and had leave of absence to the extent of four and a half years, has been granted an ordinary furlough for two years under the new regulations, being considered entitled to the indulgence under the spirit of the ruling continued in

Sir Charles Wood's despatch, dated Dec. 8, 1865, No. 362, published in G.G.O., No. 102 of 1866.

2. In this despatch it was stated that the absence to Europe on private affairs for six months, and all extensions of such leave granted in this country under special circumstances and without pay, might be permitted to reckon as part of the six years required under clause 7 of the furlough regulations of 1854, to be served after return from leave on med. certificate to entitle an officer to his furlough on private affairs.

3. This ruling did not apply to the case of Lieut. —, because this was not a question of the six years required to elapse between absence beyond sea on medical certificate and the regular furlough; and if it had been such a question, the admission of the extension granted to him in England on medical certificate would have been irregular.

4. The grant of furlough to Lieut. — has been, therefore, altogether irregular, as that officer had not served in India the prescribed period of ten years required before he became entitled to such furlough.

5. As some of the decisions upon the grant of furlough on private affairs appear liable to misconception, I have considered it proper to address your Government upon the subject.

6. Although it may be admitted that there is some degree of ambiguity in the terms of the communications [dated Jan. 23, 1856, No. 8, para. 8; and April 25, 1856, No. 56, para. 4,] of the court of directors referred to in Sir Charles Wood's despatch of Dec. 8, 1865, yet it is clear, from the correspondence forwarded by your Government, on which the decisions of the court were passed, that which they were intended to apply to short furloughs with pay, and therefore to the cases of those officers only who had earned a right by completing the requisite period of service in India to the grant of a furlough on private affairs, but had chosen to take only a part of such furlough.

7. On the other hand, as stated in Sir Charles Wood's despatch, dated Feb. 9, 1863, No. 61, published in G.G.O. No. 17a of 1863, officers have been allowed, under the regulations of 1796 and 1864, in certain urgent cases, to return to this country on private affairs for short periods without pay, without reference to their length of service. This advantage was extended by that despatch, and by question and answer No. 121, to officers of the staff corps holding staff appointments with the privilege during six months of their leave, of retaining their appointments, published in G.G.O. No. 913 of 1861.

8. It should, however, be clearly understood that all officers, whether holding staff appointments or not, to whom such special leave is granted on their return to duty, are not to be held to be entitled to a furlough with the benefit of furlough pay, until they have completed the full period of service in India prescribed by the regulations for that advantage.

9. The only exception to the regulations which has been sanctioned is that allowed under Sir Charles Wood's despatch of Dec. 8, 1865, under which absence to Europe on private affairs for six months, and all extensions of such leave granted in this country under special circumstances and without pay,—short extensions on urgent private affairs being alone contemplated,—are permitted to reckon as part of the qualifying period of six years which an officer is required to serve after return to duty from sick leave, to enable him to avail himself of the ordinary furlough to Europe with pay which the new furlough regulations grant, under paragraph 6, to all officers who may have completed a service in India of ten years, or twenty years as the case may be.—I have, &c., (Sd.) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOTE.

Court Martial.

STAFF ASSISTANT-SURGEON R. LINDSAY.

Head Qrs., Simla, Aug. 16.—At a general court martial, assembled at Saugor on June 4 last, Staff Assistant surgeon R. Lindsay, M.D., attached to the detachment of the 1st battalion 7th foot (royal fusiliers), was arraigned on the following charge:—

CHARGE.—With conduct unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in the following instances:—

1. In having, at Nowgong, on April 4, 1867, been drunk in the mess-room of the detachment.

2. In having, at the same time and place, violently assaulted Ensign W. P. Holmes, of the same battalion, by throwing him down, squeezing him by the throat until he became insensible, and kicking him whilst in that state.

3. In having, at the same place and time, when called on to offer assistance to the aforesaid Ensign Holmes, who was then suffering from the effects of the assault described in the second instance of this charge, made use of the following insulting language to Capt. F. J. S. Whiteside, officiating district inspector of musketry:—"I don't see what the hell it is to you, and I think it is bloody cool cheek on your part telling me what I ought to do;" or words to that effect.

Finding.—The Court is of opinion that he, the prisoner, Staff asst. surg. R. Lindsay, M.B., attached to the detachment 1st batt. 7th regt. (royal fusiliers) at Nowgong, is guilty of the first instance of the charge, with the exception of the word "room;" guilty of the second instance of the charge; guilty of the third instance of the charge; and guilty of the preamble to the charge.

Sentence.—To be severely reprimanded, and to be placed at the bottom of the list of staff assistant surgeons.

ALEX. BOYD, Col., President.

Saugor, June 11, 1867.

Revised Sentence.—The Court, having considered the remarks of H.E. the C. in C., conveyed in the officiating judge advocate general's letter above noted, begs respectfully to adhere to its original sentence.

(Signed) ALEX. BOYD, Colonel, President.
Saugor, July 13, 1867.

Confirmed.

(Signed) W. R. MANSFIELD, General,
Commander in Chief in India.

Head quarters, Simla, July 20, 1867.

Remarks by H.E. the Commander in Chief in India.

The prisoner was found guilty by the Court of conduct unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman—1st, in being drunk; 2nd, in violently assaulting a brother officer, thereby reducing him to a state of insensibility, and kicking him whilst in that state; and 3rd, in insulting an officer of superior rank, when called on by the latter to assist in restoring Ensign Holmes from his state of insensibility.

The Court awarded a sentence, in addition to one of severe reprimand, which, as pointed out, under the authority of H.E. the insp. gen. of British hospitals in India, is a mere nullity.

On revision, the Court has thought fit to adhere to its erroneous sentence, and has therefore, in point of fact, acted as if it finally considered a severe reprimand of a med. officer in charge of troops a sufficient punishment for the three offences stated in the charge, of which it convicted the prisoner.

The C. in C. in India is under the very painful necessity of placing his opinion on record, that the safety of H.M.'s troops, as solemnly committed to the charge of med. commissioned officers, cannot be ensured if courts martial treat offences of such description in the manner held to be adequate by this Court.

The prisoner is hereby severely reprimanded, in accordance with the sentence of the court, and is released from arrest.

C. in C. in India.

THE 'MADRAS MILITARY FUND.

No. 363.—The following extract from a despatch from H.M.'s Govt. to the Govt. of India is published:—

Despatch, Financial (Military Fund), dated India-office, June 7, 1867, No. 218.

1. I have had under consideration in council the correspondence which passed with your Government in the years 1863 and 1864, on the subject of the request made by the directors of the Madras Military Fund as to the estimated surplus in the assets of that fund, and the mode of appropriating it, together with your military letter, dated March 8 last, No. 43, which forwarded a copy of a communication from the Government of Madras, and the proceedings of the final meeting of the directors; and I have referred to the report of Messrs. Brown and Hardy and Col. Smith, in the year 1863, on the state of the fund.

2. The several ameliorations which were adverted to in the letter from Col. Smith to the directors of the fund in the year 1863, in connection with the report by Messrs. Brown, Hardy, and Col. Smith, were:—

(1.) The reduction of 10 per cent. extra subscriptions, and donation imposed in 1844.

(2.) Reduction of the extra donation for daughters from Rs. 282 to Rs. 200.

(3.) Reduction of the donation of widowers with offspring to bachelors' rates.

(4.) The abolition of all demands on account of minimum.

(5.) Allowing daughters "hereafter born" to revert to their pensions on becoming widows.

(6.) The addition of 10 per cent. to all the widows' pensions; and it was estimated that the cost of those benefits would be about £2,05,373.

3. The discontinuance of the increased 10 per cent. on subscriptions and donations, which had been imposed in 1844, was authorised in the financial despatch to your Govt., dated March 24, 1864, No. 65.

4. According to the calculations of the actuaries, the surplus assets of the fund, in excess of its liabilities, would, if no change had been made in the constitution of the army, have amounted, on April 30, 1863, to about £1,70,000, and the value of the reduction of the 10 per cent. extra subscription and donation already conceded, was estimated at £60,743.

5. The amount of the surplus assets, as estimated, is not equal to the value of the full benefits referred to in the report of the actuaries, but, as H.M.'s Govt. are desirous of granting to the subscribers to the fund and their families whatever benefits the surplus may appear to justify, I have resolved to sanction the grant of the following further concessions, viz.:—

That the extra donation for daughters be reduced from Rs. 282 to Rs. 200.

That the donations of widowers with offspring be reduced to bachelor's rates.

That all demands on account of minimum be abolished.

That daughters hereafter born be allowed to revert to their pensions on becoming widows.

That an addition of 8 per cent. be made to all widows' pensions.

These alterations will take effect from the date of this despatch, and will absorb the whole amount of the estimated surplus balance.

6. It can hardly be necessary for me to remind you that no alteration can be made in the rules of the fund, but that these changes must be regarded as a direct concession from the Government.

THE LATE COLONEL H. M. GARSTIN, BENGAL STAFF CORPS.—This gallant officer, whose accidental death we recorded in our issue of 20th ult., served with distinction throughout the first Sikh war (Sutlej campaign of 1845-46), also in the Punjab campaign of 1848-49. He was present with his regiment at the battles of Aliwal, Buddewal, Ramnuggur, Sadoolapoor, Chillianwalla, and Goojerat—wounded at Sadoolapoor. He served throughout the siege of Delhi in 1857 on the head-quarter's staff as Deputy-Assistant Quartermaster-General. He received medals and clasps for the three campaigns, and as some recognition of his services he was appointed to the command of the 42nd Regiment Assam Light Infantry, and subsequently to the divisional staff on the Peshawur Frontier.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 2nd inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £96,000; and to Madras, £4,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11½d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 13 per cent., those above will be allotted in full. No tenders for bills on Bombay were invited. The above rates show an increase in the demand for remittance.

She will also take out with her the screw steam launch Waterwitch, recently purchased by the Admiralty from Mr. Samuel White, of Cowes, for the sum of £750, for special service with the expedition.

"We have on many occasions spoken in terms of the highest praise of Mr. T. Wrighton as a vocal composer, and the more often that we have an opportunity of judging of his compositions are we convinced that he is the most successful vocal composer of the present day. His style is simple, unaffected, and expressive—three very important, indeed, we may say, vital qualities rarely found in modern music. The three compositions, the titles of which are given above, freely bear out—nay, even enhance—the reputation this gentleman has already acquired. There is no occasion for us to speak of them separately, for the praise bestowed above is equally deserved in the three pieces now before us."—Vide "Court Circular," August 24. SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

* * In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

251. KISSA, E BAHAM O GUL-ANDAM.—"The Romance of Bahram and Gulandam," by MUHAMMAD TAKI BEG, of Tabriz. The scene of the tale is laid in Rum, or the modern Turkey. The MS. is in a most excellent state of preservation, written in a plain Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper. 8vo. pp. 40, ll. 14. 10s. 6d.

252. MAGHAHA KAVYA.—"The Poem of Maghaha." This contains only one section of a well-known Sanskrit poem. It is very clearly written in the Devanagari character, on common Indian paper. Oblong 8vo. pp. 42, ll. 12. 10s. 6d.

253. MASNAVI, E RUMI.—This is a very finely-written copy of a favourite work which we have already repeatedly described. The present MS. contains the first four books only, the text of which is quite sound, but the margin has been sadly devoured by vermin. It is written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on finely glazed straw-coloured Indian paper, with richly ruled margin and splendid Anwans. It abounds in critical and explanatory notes; and by combining it with No. 183, which happens to want books 1st and 2nd, a very complete and serviceable copy may be formed of this esteemed work. Small folio, pp. 452, ll. 25. £1. 11s. 6d.

254. CHAHAR GULZAR.—"The Four Flower Pots." A very excellent work on Persian Grammar. The author most stupidly suppresses his name. He merely styles himself "The most contemptible of God's Slaves." The work was dedicated to Sir Gore Ouseley at the time when he was in the Bengal Civil Service early in this century. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written on strong Indian paper, in a fair Ta'lik character. 4to. pp. 186, ll. 13. 15s.

255. INSHA, E MUKHTALIFA.—"Miscellaneous Letters," etc., evidently by the anonymous author of the preceding number. It is written by the same hand, and on the same kind of paper. 4to. pp. 106, ll. 18. 15s.

256. MUNTAKHABATI URDU.—"Urdu Selections," consisting of Dialogues, Idiomatic Phrases, and Fables, compiled by my excellent old friend, MIR AFZAL 'ALI, when residing in London some five-and-twenty years ago, as Vakil from the Raja of Satara. The work is well written on English paper, in a very clear and legible Ta'lik character. 4to. pp. 104, ll. various. 10s. 6d.

257. SHAUPTIKA PARVA.—"The Shauptika Parva, being the tenth book of the Mahabharata," translated into Hindi. The translation consists of nine chapters, and has probably GOKUL NATH for its author. Folio, pp. 96, ll. 14. 6s.

258. MAHABHARAT.—This is a Persian version of the seventh book of the great poem we have already described under Nos. 15 to 18 inclusive. It is in excellent preservation, written in a fair Ta'lik character, on good Indian straw-coloured paper. Folio, pp. 71, ll. 21. 10s. 6d.

259. TAKWIM.—"A Muhammadan Almanac for the Ilahi year 1216, which commenced on the 20th March, 1809, of our era, and ended 19th March, 1810. The Ilahi era was instituted by the Emperor Akbar, and dated from the first year of his reign. It was engrafted on the Hijri or lunar year, A.H. 963, and reckoned thenceforth by solar years. This MS. is beautifully written in a fair Ta'lik character, on finely glazed Indian paper. It contains an immense mass of information, chiefly astrological. 4to. pp. 34, ll. 38. 15s.

261. AL KURAN.—A most magnificent copy of the "Kur'an," in the highest state of preservation, written in a very small and beautiful Naskhi, with all the diacritical marks and symbols, on fine glazed silk paper. The title-page and rubrics are written in liquid gold. It is a very fine old copy, transcribed in A.H. 960—A.D. 1553. It is most richly bound in morocco, and elaborately ornamented. Small 8vo., pp. 452, ll. 17. £25.

263. ANWARI SUHAILL.—This is a magnificent copy of a highly popular work which we have already described under No. 74 and elsewhere. It is in the highest state of preservation, written in a clear Ta'lik character, on finely glazed straw-coloured Indian paper, with doubly ruled margin. It contains a number of well executed paintings illustrative of the text. Folio, pp. 645, ll. 18. £6. 6s.

264. GULI BAKAWALL.—A well-known Romance, translated either from the Persian or the Hindi into the Urdu dialect of the Hindustani, by NIHAL CHAND LAHORI. The present copy is in a perfect state of preservation, written on very fine European paper, with neatly ruled margins. Transcribed in A.D. 1851. 4to., pp. 372, ll. 13. 15s.

265. IKHWANU-L-SAFA.—"The Brothers of Purity." This is a well-known work in the Urdu Hindustani, translated from the Arabic, by IKRAM 'ALI, in A.D. 1810. This copy is in a state of perfect preservation. Transcribed in A.D. 1852. It is written in the same clear hand and on the same kind of paper as the last described. It is a standard work for passing the examination in India. 4to. pp. 844, ll. 17. £1. 5s.

266. SHARHI MASNAVI.—"A Commentary on the Masnavi of Maulavi Rumi," explaining the more mystic and difficult passages of that work. This MS. is less diffuse than a work with the same title which we have already described. It is in a most thorough state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine glazed pale straw-coloured Indian paper, with richly ruled margins, and a splendid 'Anwan. 8vo. pp. 116, ll. 17. 15s.

267. PANDHAE MUKHTALIFA.—A Short Poem, in Persian, on Moral and Religious Subjects, without either title or author's name. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine glazed Indian paper, with richly ruled margins and a splendid 'Anwan. Small 8vo. pp. 84, ll. 11. 7s. 6d.

268. KHUSRU WA SHIRIN.—The Romance of Khusrû and Shirin is a favourite theme with the Persian poets. As this MS. wants the first and last leaves I am at a loss to say whether the author be NIZAMI, or AMIR KHUSRU, or JAMI, as I have not at present any copy of their works by me. The MS., however, is a most beautiful specimen of Persian penmanship, written in the Ta'lik character, on fine glazed straw-coloured Indian paper, with neatly ruled margins. It has a number of finely executed drawings in outline. 18mo. pp. 161, ll. 11. £1. 11s. 6d.

269. DIWANI HAFIZ.—This is a very beautiful copy of the works of Persia's favourite poet, already repeatedly mentioned. It is in a perfect state of preservation, and written in a fine small Ta'lik character, on glazed straw-coloured Indian paper, with richly ruled margins and three 'Anwans. Small 18mo. neatly bound, pp. 392, ll. 15. £3. 8s.

270. KHUSH-KHATT.—Eighteen specimens of fine writing, some Arabic in Naskhi, and some Persian in Ta'lik and Shafia, all secured on strong pasteboard. Folio. 10s. 6d.

271. TASWIRAT.—Six finely executed Persian paintings, illustrative of domestic life, all mounted on ornamented pasteboard, and all in a state of perfect preservation. Folio. 18s.

272. TA'LIMHA, E KHUSHNAWISAN.—"Instructions for Fine Writing." A large portfolio containing fifty-five folia of specimens of the most beautiful Naskhi and Ta'lik penmanship, with the penmen's names generally appended. The writings are all secured on pasteboard and highly ornamented. Large folio. £4. 4s.

273. TA'LIMHA, E KHUSHAWISAN.—Another portfolio, similar to the above, but of smaller size, containing a great variety of specimens of fine writing, Arabic and Persian,—the Arabic in Naskhi and the Persian in Ta'lik. Small folio, containing about seventy specimens, secured in boards overlaid with liquid gold. £1. 1s.

274. TA'LIMHA, E KHUSHAWISAN.—A portfolio, somewhat similar to the last, but containing writings of more variety, embracing almost every subject, and exhibiting every species of handwriting used in the Arabic and Persian languages. Small folio. 10s. 6d.

275. INSHA, E MUKHTALIFA.—A Parcel of Miscellaneous Papers, chiefly specimens of official correspondence, short stories, anecdotes, etc., etc., in the Arabic and Persian languages. Most of them are written in the Shikasta, and they appear to have been purposely compiled by some Munshi as an exercise for his pupil or pupils. 15s.

277. SANSKRIT MANUSCRIPT.—A Work, in verse, of which neither the author's name nor the subject of the book has been ascertained. It is written in a very fine Bengali character on 163 palm leaves, amounting to 326 pages, each page eleven and a-half inches long, and containing twelve lines, all in the most perfect state of preservation. £2. 12s. 6d.

279. THE GOSPELS, IN TELUGU.—The Gospels of St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke, translated into the Telugu language. 108 palm leaves, eight or nine lines in a page. The writing is extremely neat and beautiful. £1. 11s.

282. SANKHARUPPATTI SUTTA.—One of Buddha's Discourses, being the last of the second part of the third division of the Majjhimanikaya, which itself is a large collection of discourses, forming the second portion of the Suttapitaka, or moral division of the canonical books of the Buddhists. Pali and Singhalese. Singhalese character, nineteen palm leaves, nine lines in a page. £1. 11s. 6d.

283. BARASAKAVYAGARBHANAMACHAKRA.—A figurative alliterative Poem, in Singhalese, consisting of twelve stanzas of four lines each, the whole represented in one diagram. It was composed about eighty years ago, by the celebrated poet, KARATOTAKIRITIRIDHARMARAMANAYAKA TERA, commonly called KARATOTTI TERUNANSE. It is accompanied with a commentary. The MS. contains also two smaller poems of the same kind. Eleven palm leaves, eight or nine lines. 10s. 6d.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy ever discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.

Agents—Calcutta: SCOTT, THOMPSON, and Co.; W. J. PETTAR, 74, Clive-street; NEW MEDICAL HALL COMPANY. Bombay: TRACHER and Co. Hong Kong: Mr. A. S. WATSON. Madras: J. PEREYRA, and Messrs. WEST and Co.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

With the approaching winter it is prudent for all to rectify any ailment afflicting them; but it is incumbent on the aged suffering under ulcerations and similar debilitating causes to have them removed, or worse consequences will follow.
This Ointment is their remedy; on its powers all may confidently rely; it will not simply put their sores out of sight, but extirpate the source of mischief, extract the corroding poison, and stimulate nature to fill up the ulcer with sound, healthy granulations that will abide through life. Under this treatment “bad legs” soon become sound, scorbutic skins cast off their scales, and scrofulous sores cease to annoy.
Such hope for the diseased was unknown in former days.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta Mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 9th of September, and Madras to the 13th of that month.

Calcutta was still deserted by "the Court," and had but little to occupy its attention. The best news was the rapid recovery of Orissa from the effects of the famine. One or two subjects were causing discussion. Of these the foremost is a case of scandal. The local Government have, it seems, decided that the occupants of houses of ill-fame must take out a licence under the new Act. The principle here laid down, directly opposed as it is to that of English law, has given rise to loud protests, and the authorities are stigmatised as partners in an infamous traffic. Some of the women themselves are adding their opposition to the order, and complaining that they will be ruined if it is enforced. The case of one of these, a foreigner (European), has excited a great deal of sympathy, as "a stout gentleman," as she described the collector, threatened to seize the few sticks of furniture belonging to the wretched girl in satisfaction of the Government demand.

The Calcutta papers publish the text of Sir John Lawrence's letter to the King of Oude, giving his ex-Majesty six months to put his pecuniary affairs in order, on pain of that office being undertaken by the State. The Englishman, writing on this subject, says:—"The warning should have been administered long ago, before the son of the King appeared in the High Court as a shipowner, and before his creatures had become habituated to a charge in the suburban police courts of kidnapping or purchasing girls for the worst of purposes. The long inaction of the Government has inflicted a wrong on the inhabitants of the metropolis, and upon the King himself. He is, there is too much reason to believe, unable or unwilling to manage his own affairs, and should have been relieved of a duty he shrinks from performing. As we remarked in a former article, it is folly to suppose that in six months the ex-King can arrange for debts of 'an enormous and extravagant amount.' The period of grace will only be turned to account by the parasites who have ruined him. The letter, however, is satisfactory, simply because it gives the metropolis some kind of a guarantee that the reign of extravagance and vice will not continue unchecked at Garden Reach beyond the 1st March, 1868."

A great deal was being said in Calcutta about the Abyssinian Expedition, but very little being done in that Presidency with regard to it. The Friend of India is still urging an active policy in Central Asia, and recommends that, in return for the placing of Herat in our hands, we should give our support to Afzul Khan, the present ruler of Cabool, at whose court we have a vakeel. The Englishman is also loud against the "masterly inactivity" policy, but agrees with certain recorded opinions of Sir Henry Lawrence in thinking that it would be the height of folly to send an army into Afghanistan. "At the same time," says our contemporary, "we should be prepared, by completing our system of railroads to the frontier, to move a large army to the passes in a few days."

The meetings of the Talookdars of Oude, the Friend of India tells us, have thus far been most harmonious, but it would be premature to form any opinion as to their conclusions, until the investigations into the claims of their relatives to share in the rent-roll assigned by Lord Canning exclusively to themselves have been completed.

It has been proposed by Colonel Fraser, as part of a comprehensive scheme for lighting the coasts of India, to effect great improvements in this respect at the mouths of the Ganges, and his project is being reported upon by a committee. This officer proposes to improve the False Point light, which cannot be fairly called by that name in these days of scientific improvement in light apparatus. It is of the oldest and most wretched description, consisting of old reflectors and old lamps with solid wicks without chimnies, which give off so much smoke that the reflectors are immediately dimmed. The Orissa Famine Report has pointed out the great importance of False Point roadstead to the province, as being the only harbour on the whole coast. Colonel Fraser intends to substitute, for the present light-ships, light houses on screw piles—1. On Palmyras reef; 2. On the Western Sea reef; 3. On the Saugor sand; 4. On the Roy Mutlah sand. These are to be lights of the first order, so that an area may be obtained extending from False Point to Ray Mutlah of about 165 miles, which every ship must make from sea, however the winds and currents may be. Ships keeping south of that will be in safety; those getting to the north of it will be in danger. As a subsidiary arrangement a telegraphic cable is to be carried from Saugor Island to the lighthouse on the Saugor sands, so that ships, whether troops or merchant vessels or mail steamers, may be telegraphed the moment they arrive at the Sandheads, instead of waiting till they got into Saugor roads. Great expense will be saved to ships calling for orders, as these orders can be telegraphed to them at the Sandheads, instead of making them take pilots and run the risk of going up to Saugor Island. Another object of this arrangement is telegraphing the approach of storms to Calcutta so as to give warning. By putting the lighthouse on Saugor sand the telegraphic cable may be led down the sand to its tail, so that it need not cross the channel, and be liable to injury by ships' anchors. Col. Fraser proposes also some subsidiary arrangements for lighting such inner channels as the Gasper. The cost of this arrangement of lights will be much less than the present inefficient plan of lightships, so that we may expect to see it sanctioned.

The Abyssinian expedition still excites great attention at Madras, where complaints are still rife of the preference given to Bombay in the matter. Madras, however, has been called upon to supply commissariat officers, whose names will be found elsewhere.

The Madras Times announces that the Secretary of State for India on the inquiry of this Government "whether officers of the British or Indian army, who have joined the Staff Corps and have already paid the stamp duty on their regimental commissions, are liable to a second payment for commission issued to them, in the same rank as Staff Corps officers," has ruled that as an officer entering the Staff

Corps from the British or Indian forces, whether in the regimental rank held by him at the time or in a higher rank, must necessarily be granted a commission in his new corps; and as payment must be made by his office to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue of the stamp duty on such commission, it follows that the officer must, therefore, be chargeable with the duty. The decision referred to in paragraph 4 of the despatch of Aug. 31, 1864, not applying to the present inquiry, the commissions then in question involving no change of service or corps, but merely in the Queen's name given in substitution of that held by Indian officers from the Governments and Commanders-in-Chief in India, and therefore her Majesty's Government determined then that payment of duty should be dispensed with. But, at the same time, every endeavour would be made to secure officers from the payment of any double charge on account of stamp duty, and that, accordingly, captains entering the Staff Corps as lieutenant-colonel would be appointed to the corps in the latter rank without any reference to the intermediate rank of major.

The ship Douglas, bound from Coconada to Madras and Nagapatam, has been wrecked near Hope Island, about eight miles off Coringa. She carried a cargo of about 7,000 bags of grain, none of which it is expected will be saved. No intelligence had been received as to the safety of the crew. Within a few months the ships Belgravia, Rajpoot, and Sacramento have been wrecked near the scene of the present disaster.

A telegram dated Hong Kong, Sept. 29, tells us that the steamer Genkal was lost off that island during the late typhoon. Also that the P. and O. steamer Singapore has sunk near Japan; the crew and passengers were saved.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which is due in London on the 20th inst.

A Competitive Examination of candidates for the Indian Civil Service will be held by the Civil Service Commissioners at Dean's-yard, Westminster, on the 31st March next and following days. OUR POLICY IN AFFGHANISTAN.

THE events at present transpiring in Affghanistan are of a nature to interest the philosophic mind in the history of blood. The alacrity with which the different members of the Royal family of Cabul have seized every available weapon of war for the purpose of mutual extermination shows us that the clan feuds of a semi-barbarous Eastern nation are carried on in a spirit fully as bitter and relentless as that which fans the flame of a family quarrel in the more civilised West. In Cabul every royal Barukzaee burns with an inextinguishable desire to accomplish the death of some one of his numerous relatives, whose greater wealth or reputedly more attractive hareem has excited irrepressible longings. Should time allow of the deed being consummated with the addition of a spice of cruelty, so much the better. And, if it is carefully followed up by a summary abduction of all the wives and jewels of the deceased, so much the more does its author command the fear, and the respect, and the admiration of his fellow-men. If brotherly love has any existence amongst Affghans, it is no more apparent from their deeds than it was from the deed of Joseph's brethren. But notwithstanding the humanising effects, so frequently vaunted, of the Christian religion and of the civilisation of the nineteenth century, we can scarcely afford, after the recent revelations at Sheffield, to throw stones at these turbulent neighbours of our Eastern dominions. Their ways are not as our ways; nor should they be judged by the decorous standard of the more pretentious West. We in Europe can form not the slightest conception of the strength of the rivalries and heart-burning jealousies that take root and flourish amid the numerous members of an Eastern family, who are free to give their passions unlimited scope. And when the children of a chief by his various wives are numbered by the score, as is the case with the family of the late Ameer of Afghanistan, we can easily imagine, while we console ourselves with the thought that we behold the Nemesis of Mahomedan polygamy, what a boundless and extensive field these angry jealousies enjoy.

Properly to understand the cause of anarchy and confusion now rampant in Cabul and its surrounding districts, we must look back at the closing years of the life of the late Ameer Dost Mahomed Khan. At an age when most Oriental potentates are utterly decrepid and imbecile this vigorous old warrior resolved to march upon Herat. The city was considered one of the strongest to repel attack that existed in Central Asia. It was in the hands of his bitterest enemy, the able Barukzaee chief, Sultan Ahmed Khan. And between Cabul and the fertile valley of Herat, the object of the Ameer's desires, there were wide tracts of sterile desert country. But, notwithstanding the difficulties that presented themselves, he brought his army successfully to the foot of the walls and attacked the fortress. Herat stood out a protracted siege, as it has ever done, but finally the Cabulese carried the place by storm. The siege and capture were made memorable in the annals of Affghanistan by the deaths of the two most prominent members of the Royal family of Cabul. The Ameer died on the 9th of June, 1863, immediately after the place had fallen into his hands, and Sultan Ahmed Khan, ruler of Herat, succumbed during the siege. The death of the Ameer, verging as he was on four score years, had been long expected and frequently reported. He was scarcely cold in his grave before the rival factions sprang to arms, a result which our Government had inertly and helplessly enough resigned itself into looking upon as inevitable; for when Gholam Hyder, who had been recognised by us as heir apparent, died, his father, the Ameer, selected as his successor another son, Shere Ali Khan. At the time of this selection of his heir apparent our relations with the Dost were of a most friendly character. He had turned a deaf ear to a Russian mission which had suddenly made its appearance at Cabul. And for some time after the conclusion of the Persian war in 1855 he had been receiving the sum of £10,000 a month from the Indian Treasury, a subsidy which had put him in high good humour with us. [It is then only reasonable to suppose that, unless we wished to ensure the deplorable results that have ensued, we might, under the above favourable circumstances, have exerted some influence on the Ameer's choice; and from the fact of there having been two political missions on the part of the English Government resident in Affghanistan at the time, our Indian Foreign Office must have been in possession of accurate information as to the character of the future competitor to the throne of Cabul. Having assisted the Ameer with our advice in the choice of his successor, we might have promised our recognition of the son whom the old chief had delighted to honour, and of whom we had signified our approval. An open and honest recognition on our part, such as would have been becoming a great and powerful State, would have given an amount of prestige to the future Ameer of Afghanistan that would at once have strengthened him in his position and checked the rebellious designs of his brethren. As it was, the Ameer, in selecting as his successor Shere Ali Khan, passed over the claims of two of his elder and more able sons, Afzul and Azim Khan, and declared as his heir apparent a chief whose proclivities were well known to be rather Persian than English. The result was not difficult to foresee. We hung back from any open recognition of a chief whose antecedents were of a nature by no means such as to ingratiate him in our favour, and we finally perpetrated the egregious blunder of recognising him when we were embroiled with an Afghan tribe on our north-west frontier, at whose hands our European troops had on one occasion sustained a repulse approaching almost to defeat.

During the four years that have elapsed since the death of Dost Mahomed Khan fortune has smiled sometimes on one of the brothers, sometimes on the other. Shere Ali Khan, after making successful head against the tide of rebellion which had set in against him from all sides, committed an act of treachery so signal that even Afghans shrunk back appalled at its utter recklessness and want of faith. He was finally driven from Cabool, and with the shattered remnants of his force fled to the Herat territory, where, it is reported, he is organising his troops for a fresh campaign.

When we read of the rapid extension of Russian dominion in Central Asia, and of the ever active zeal of her diplomatists in the East, we can only lament that the golden hours of our opportunity were allowed to pass heedlessly by, and when, instead of maintaining only a "masterly inactivity," we might have been using our endeavours to secure the well-being of a neighbouring State. Without any compromise of the national honour, we might have gained the goodwill and gratitude of the chief of a country whose geographical position alone should command our keenest attention, situated as it is in the high road of Russia's advance. And in the place of supineness, and remaining satisfied with the prophesying of a time of anarchy and revolt which, with all its horrors, has only too surely ensued, we might have displayed the foresight and meritorious activity of a powerful and vigorous State.

INDIA AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION. No. III.

In the group composed of "Clothing, including Fabrics and Objects worn on the Person," the silk and the Cashmere work are, as may be supposed, the most conspicuous classes. Among the former the contributions from Ahmedabad and Benares, as usual, carry off the palm. Between the two rivals it would be difficult to assign a preference; but, as a general rule, it may be said that Benares produces the most elegant—Ahmedabad the most striking and characteristic specimens. Of the shawls there are some magnificent examples, including one said to be worth £500. But a great deal of this work is now executed in the Punjab, whither there has been of late years an extensive migration of manufacturers. The Lace and Net embroidery, in the same group, is well represented, as is also the clothing generally. The Jewellery and Precious Stones, also included in this part of the collection, add to its general effect, which is one blaze of splendour. In gold work Delhi and Kuttack maintain their old pre-eminence, and the Deccan shines resplendent in gems. It is a pity, however, that native jewellers, instead of adhering to their own characteristic style, are beginning to imitate that of Europe. The reproductions of French devices, for instance, are not only without national interest, but are inferior in finish and general execution. The portable weapons, in the same case, have all the old beauty of a manufacture which is dying away, owing to the failure of demand. The ornamental arts, generally, indeed, may be considered on the decline, the most important productions of India in these days being her raw materials. The Toys, of which there is a good collection, are great favourites with visitors, the representations of the different classes of natives—models as well as pictures on Talc—being especial objects of interest.

The group comprising "Raw and Manufactured Products of Mining Industry, Forestry, &c," are among those set aside, and are not much missed except by the utilitarian investigator; and the same may be said of the "Apparatus and Processes used in the Common Arts." In the former class, however, Dr. Birdwood's collection of the Materia Medica of Bombay, and Dr. Waring's specimens of vegetable drugs, illustrative of the New India Pharmacopœia, deserve especial notice. The group devoted to Food, fresh or preserved, in various states of preparation, are among those which do not appeal to the eye; but of the Teas there is a very extensive collection, and of first rate qualities. Of Coffee there is a very scanty exhibition, as far as the public are concerned. The last group consists of "Articles exhibited with the especial object of improving the Physical and Moral condition of the People." This is very limited, including only apparatus and methods used in the instruction of children, and specimens of the clothing worn by the people of different countries.

It will be seen from the brief glance which we have taken of the Indian collections that they are very extensive, and represent fairly the arts, the industry, and the produce of the country. It is impossible, however, for their importance to be appreciated by the general visitor, who, unless he ferrets about with some industry, will see little beyond the ornate objects, which, beautiful though they be, give no idea of the resources of the land to which they belong. And not only has India been neglected as regards space, but she has been passed over most carelessly in the matter of honours. Of "honourable mentions" she has a fair supply, but these are very cheap, and were to be had almost for the asking. The list of medals awarded to her may be soon gone through. First we find a Bronze Medal given for a selection from a series of photographs illustrating the costumes of the people of India, produced under the direction of Dr. Forbes Watson, by William Griggs, India Museum, London. Then there is another Bronze Medal for a relief map of India by Mr. Montgomery Martin, reproduced as before. The third Bronze Medal is awarded to Bhowanis Hunker Harionlabh, Bombay, for an inlaid writing-table and tea-poy. Then we come to a Gold Medal awarded to India generally for carpets, and a Silver Medal to India generally for silks. We next find a Silver Medal given to Azeez Khan, of Cashmere, for shawls; a Bronze Medal to Noor Shah, Cashmere, also for shawls; and another Silver Medal to Rasul Shah, Cashmere, again for shawls, square and loom wove. A Silver Medal is also awarded to Kesri Chund and Balmokund, Delhi, for a pair of enamelled bracelets with dragon-head clasp set with diamonds, necklaces, emerald and diamond head ornament, jewelled chain, armlets, ear-rings, &c.; another Silver Medal to Captain Mitchell, Madras Museum, for a collection of stuffed fishes; and the same to Mr. Ward, of Wigmore-street, for the stuffed specimens of a lion and tiger fighting over the carcass of a deer, already alluded to. The Grand Prize for cotton, which should properly belong to Dr. Forbes, of Dharwar, is given to India generally—a very unfair arrangement, in this as in other instances, as honours so awarded can be received only by the Government. We next come to two Bronze Medals, given respectively to Drs. Birdwood and Waring, for their collections mentioned above. The Begum of Bhopal also gets a Bronze Medal for a collection of rices, and the same honour is awarded to Captain Martin, Goonah, for specimens of grains; Messrs. Brown and Co., Penang, for samples of paddy and rice; Major Pollard, Malwa, for trapa bispenosa; besides three others for Bengal, Madras, and Bombay cereals respectively. A Silver Medal is awarded for Indian feculas, and another for Bombay feculas. There is also a Gold Medal for Indian teas, given to nobody in particular. Then come some Bronze Medals awarded respectively to Mr. Adderley, Tinnevely, for coffee and peabody coffee; to Mr. Auchterlony, Auchterlony Valley, Neilgherries, for Nardoobatta coffee; to Mr. Cocq, for coffee and peabody coffee; to Mr. McFarlane, Shevaroy Hills, for coffee and peabody coffee; and Mr. Maylor, Wynaad, for coffee in the husk, in the parchment, and cleaned, and peabody coffee. The list concludes with a couple of Silver Medals given to Messrs. Carew and Co., Shahjehanpore, for coffee, and Mr. Minchin, Aska Sugar Works, Madras, for samples of sugar obtained without the process of diffusion, and without the use of cane mills. It can scarcely be denied that these awards are scanty, considering the immense amount of wealth and industry that they represent.

STATISTICS OF BRITISH INDIA.—The commercial rise and progress of our East Indian possessions are set forth most concisely in the third statistical abstract for the several colonial and other possessions of the United Kingdom, recently published. It is found from this valuable compilation of figures that the area of British India is 956,436 square miles, and that in 1861 its population consisted of 143,271,210 persons. The gross amount of public revenue increased from nearly 28 millions sterling in 1852 to more than 45½ millions in 1865, and the gross expenditure within the same period increased from 27 to 46 millions sterling. The public debt of India has during the last 13 years increased by 23 millions, and in 1865 amounted to £98,477,555. The total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in 1865 is represented by 4,268,666 tons, 3,228,284 of which belonged to British, and 1,040,382 to foreign craft, these figures not including those vessels employed in the coasting trade. The total value of imports rose between 1852 and 1865 from 17 to 49½ millions sterling, of which sum 5 and 21 millions sterling represented the value of bullion and specie, and 10 and 23 millions sterling respectively the total value of imports from the United Kingdom alone. The total exports were valued in 1865 at nearly 69½ millions, which represents an increase of more than 48 millions sterling during the past 13 years. The principal articles imported to British India, exclusive of bullion and specie, are cotton twist and yarn, cotton piece good, spices, malt liquors, copper, salt, and wines. Of articles exported in 1865 raw cotton produced 37½ millions, opium nearly 10 millions, rice 5½ millions, seeds nearly two millions, and raw wool and raw silk each more than £1,000,000 sterling. The quantity of opium annually exported during the past thirteen years reached its maximum in 1865, but its greatest value in 1863. Wool exports have regularly and progressively increased, 7,057,161lb. weight having been shipped in 1852, and 23,432,689lb. weight in 1865.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The amount of Government bills on India for which tenders will be received at the Bank of England on the 16th inst. will be only Rs. 10,00,000 (£100,000).

BENGAL.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.

There is no truth in the rumour of the abandonment of the expedition to Abyssinia. The release of the captives by insurgents would be satisfactory to themselves and rejoice the nation, which sympathises with them in their long-continued sufferings, and fears that rescue may come too late. But by nothing short of an avenging force will the national disgrace be wiped out, or England's prestige in the East, the corner-stone of her power, be restored. It is satisfactory, therefore, to believe that the expedition will go on, and that October will see a force of ten thousand men on its way to Massowah under Sir Robert Napier. The English Ministry, it would seem from the telegrams, have directed not only the constitution of the whole force, but even the details of its European portion. As Massowah is quite as near to London as it is to Bombay, there is fear that the English and Indian departments and officers may come into collision as they did in the China war. The Cabinet has already sowed the seeds of future embarrassment, if not of serious blunders, by delaying so long. Meanwhile an exploring party will leave Bombay immediately, to procure information on the spot and prepare the way for the force. Lieut.-Colonel Peter S. Lumeden, of the Quarter-master-general's department, will be at the head of it. The Rev. Mr. Blumhardt, of the Church Missionary Society, who was for two years in Abyssinia, has been asked to compile a translation into Amharic of the most ordinary medical terms, as well as a set of common phrases for the use of the medical men and officers of the army. Sir R. Napier has invited him to join the expedition. The Government of India has been besieged with entreaties from officers to be appointed to the force, or to be permitted to go as volunteers. The old spirit burns as brightly as ever, in spite of, and to some extent in consequence of, the mean-spirited policy of English statesmen in these degenerate days.—Friend of India.

RETIRING SCHEME CALLED COLONEL HERVEY'S SCHEME.

The annexed tabulated statement clearly shows that the number of field officers in the staff corps is far in excess of the requirements of the service, and that this excess must become more disproportionate yearly.

The Government do not appear to have realised the enormous prospective liabilities they have incurred by admitting all lieutenant-colonels after twelve years' service to colonels' allowances. In 1872 there will be 921 lieutenant-colonels in the three staff corps, and all who survive will be in receipt of colonels' allowances in 1884. Allowing that 221 may retire or die (and this seems a maximum), 700 remain, and £1,000 a year to each amounts to £700,000, which at once nearly doubles the amount (including colonels' allowances) now paid by the Home Government to all the retired officers of the three Presidencies.

The number of unemployed field officers is increasing monthly, and it would be a great saving to Government if those in excess could be got rid of gradually, and what is suggested is—

1st. That 100 extra pensions be offered annually in the proportion of forty-five to Bengal, thirty-two to Madras, and twenty-three to Bombay.

2nd. That brevet-colonels in the staff corps get the pension of their rank, £456, with £144 additional, or in all £600 a year.

3rd. That lieutenant-colonels get £365, and an extra pension of £135, or in all £500.

4th. That if the allotted number of extra pensions has not been accepted by lieutenant-colonels, it be offered to majors, who should get £292, with an extra pension of £108, or in all £400.

These pensions to be given irrespective of leave, and the seniors to have the preference.

The staff corps pay of 100 lieutenant-colonels amounts annually to ... £99,840
Pension of rank with £135 extra, or £500 to 100 lieutenant-colonels ... 50,000

Saving ... £49,840

So the saving now would be nearly five lakhs annually, and Government would get rid of their liability for colonels' allowances. Even if this boon were offered and accepted, there would still be upwards of 900 lieutenant-colonels and nearly 500 majors in the three staff corps in 1872—and how is suitable employment to be found even for that reduced number?

BURMAH.—Our latest advices from Rangoon are to the 28th August, and it was then understood that the orders of the Viceroy having been received for the proposed mission to the Court of Burmah, the Chief Commissioner would probably leave Rangoon about the middle of September, on board the steamer Nemesis, in prosecution of the long contemplated journey. Some points may still have to be discussed, but it is supposed his Majesty will make no serious objection to any of the demands made by the Governor-General, and if all proceeds pleasantly the treaty ought to be concluded and ratified by the middle of November. Appropos of Rangoon affairs, we may mention that soon after the suppression of the rebellion of August, 1866, there was current in the Burmese capital a report that the King would, during the present year, lose his life, either in a rebellion by one of his sons, or in a foreign war. In order to shield himself as much as possible from the fulfilment of the prophecy, the King has just issued an order that no Burman shall be admitted to the royal presence who has not previously taken the oaths of fidelity and allegiance.—Madras Athenæum.

THE LAST CONQUESTS OF RUSSIA demand action on our part. Apart from the province of Turkistan, or the Syr Daria, actually annexed, what is left of Khokand, Khiva and now Bokhara bear the same relation to the Czar as the Nizam to ourselves. There is no longer any doubt that Russia, Persia and Shere Ali, the legitimate Ameer of Afghanistan, have united to seat the last on the throne, as another of the Czar's feudatories. Never has the aspect of Central Asia been so threatening to our power in India, not even when Shah Zeman's invasion was expected by the people of Hindostan. We have elsewhere discussed the necessity for assisting Afzul Khan, the ruler of Cabul at whose court we have a Vakeel, at the price of our holding Herat. Since writing these articles we have received the Saturday Review of 3rd August, which in far stronger terms than we have ever used denounces the imbecility of our foreign policy and advocates the immediate seizure of Herat. The able writer, in whom it is easy to trace a former minister at the Court of the Shah and the first of Orientalists, does not do justice, however, to the Government of India. So far from doing nothing "through sheer ignorance and neglect of the matter," Sir John Lawrence is master of every fact and movement, and deliberately and intelligently prefers inaction in a way which, when Chief Commissioner of the Punjab, he would have been the first to denounce. Steadily the wave from the north advances, and, when England awakes to the fact too late, it will resent the policy which is now so dear to men with whom statesmanship means a financial surplus, and England's honour is less valued than party jobbery. We have come to this, that we leave intervention in Central Asia to our own feudatory, Cashmere, and that intervention is against our interests, and contrary to his engagements with us. The assertion of our Cashmere correspondent as to Pundit Munphool, and the despatch of an envoy by the Maharajah to the Russians at Tashkend, demand inquiry from Government.—Friend of India.

DELAY IN OPENING THE RAIL.—The opening of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway to Hurda is likely to be deferred indefinitely by a most untoward accident. A large bridge over a river called the Chota Towa has been bodily carried away by the force of heavy floods. Still there is hope that the line will be available for passengers and the heavy railway material that has to go forward. A tramway might be put across the bed of the river as was done at the Taptee by Mr. Henry Jackson, one of the safest engineers on the railway, who did so much to make the Thull Ghaut the best piece of railway road in India, and inferior to none at home. Meanwhile our engineers must give their undivided energies to the work before them, and insist on necessary measures being carried out that these constant mishaps may not lead the public to deride the science of engineering itself.—Poona, Aug. 29.

ENCOUNTER WITH PIRATES IN THE CHINA SEAS.—Her Majesty's gunboat Janus left Hong Kong on the evening of the 17th of August, having on board a mandarin and the Chinese who had given information respecting pirates. The Janus anchored that night, and next morning arrived at Deep Bay, where she fell in with a fishing junk, whose master furnished some valuable information. According to him, a pirate junk had been there the day before, having on board a heavy armament and some eighty men. This man was retained on board as pilot, and the commander of the Janus endeavoured to take the gunboat up to Shami, the place to which he had been instructed to proceed. While searching for a passage, the masts of a junk were seen over the land, she having been run on shore and deserted by her crew. Efforts were made to get the Janus within gunshot, and she managed to get within half a mile of the junk, when the shoal water stopped her. Lieut. Lloyd now called away his boats, and pulled for the junk, taking care that his approach was covered by the gunboat. A sharp fire of musketry and jingalls was opened on the advancing boats from parties stationed on the shore and the surrounding hills, and Lieut. Lloyd made for the cover afforded by the junk. As soon as he had boarded her with his men the natives on the beach were quickly dispersed by the fire kept up from their rifles; and, this effected, the boats took the junk in tow, and although a heavy fire was kept up on them by the Chinese, who had returned to their position, no casualty occurred, and the junk was safely got out of gunshot. A few hours after the capture of the junk Lieut. Lloyd landed a party to search for the guns of the junk, which search proved unsuccessful. While it was going on a large party of pirates in small junks made a dash to recover the captured junk, but their attempt was defeated by a party of small arm men advancing into the water covered by the marines on the beach. Two of these small junks were captured, and subsequently burnt. The next day the Janus proceeded up to Shami, but unfortunately took the ground for nearly twenty-four hours, while searching for a passage. The charts of this neighbourhood are very defective, and it is not to be wondered at that her Majesty's vessels occasionally use their keels as sounding leads. The Janus managed to get within two miles of Shami, and the mandarin on board having communicated with the authorities, Lieut. Lloyd destroyed with their consent two houses known as piratical haunts. The services rendered by Lieut. Lloyd in this expedition will, we trust, meet with due recognition in the proper quarters.

HOW A NATIVE MAGISTRATE DEALS WITH SLAVERY.—The Indian Daily News reports a very suspicious case in the court of a Mahomedan, Moulvie Abdool Juteef Khan Bahadur, in the suburbs of Calcutta. On 28th August Mr. Superintendent Mylan applied for two warrants; one against a woman of the name of Nusseebun, whom he charged with kidnapping two native girls and selling them; and the other against Nawab Shawzuddy Bagum, alias Wootful Mahul, wife of the ex-King of Oude, for having purchased the girls. On this the Police Superintendent was warned by the Court to be very careful, as his application was against "a woman of position." The police officer said he would put in evidence, but was again warned. From his statement it appeared that the girls, aged 15 and 17, had been sold for Rs. 80, and that three others were in bondage in the King's mahal. Again the magistrate warned the Police Superintendent, and repeatedly interrupted the evidence as if he had been attorney for the defence. Both girls supported the statements made by Mr. Mylan. One stated that she had been two, and the other three years in slavery; that during this time they had been beaten and ill-treated in various ways, and had at last managed to escape. Their occupation was to sweep, shampoo, make the beds, &c. They were clothed, and allowed two rupees a month for their food. This they found to be insufficient. The magistrate then condescended to issue the warrant against Nusseebun and the wife of the King, but refused it in the case of the girls said still to be confined. Yet this is, we believe, the protégé of the late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, who sacrifices his official duties to his labours in the cause of Mussulman progress. He puts every obstacle in the way of checking what he knows to be a crying evil in Mussulman families, instead of doing his best to punish such slavery.

THE CALCUTTA COURT OF SMALL CAUSES.—It has been known for some time that Mr. Thomas Jones, the indefatigable Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, has drawn out a scheme for remodelling and reforming the Court of Small Causes in Calcutta. This report is now, we believe, before Government; it has not yet been communicated to the Press, nor can we speak with any authority as to its details. If, however, the rumour about it which has reached us be true, we have no hesitation in saying that its chief result will be a lasting boon to the public. It needs no journalist's pen to-day to explain what an Augean stable the Calcutta Small Cause Court for years has been, and we are sorry to believe still is. Reforms have been attempted; inquiries have been held; offenders have been dismissed—but still the old abomination has never become a clean place in the eyes of the public. Mr. Jones' scheme will, however, inaugurate a new system of things. Finding that three-fourths or so of the establishment of this Court are employed in the handling, or registering, of money for costs and fees, Mr. Jones proposes to substitute for such cash payments a simple method of stamps. This will at one fell swoop away with the crowd of hungry native sharks who prowl about the Court, making a livelihood out of the unfortunate suitors, especially those who do not understand English. Simplicity and a saving of delay must ensue, and will be appreciated by all who have to transact business at this Court. We understand that it is suggested to invest the Clerk of the Court with the powers and duties of a Registrar, and to increase the salaries of the useful and intelligent officers to be retained under this new scheme. Notwithstanding this, there will be a considerable annual saving to Government, and the services of a Fifth Judge will, in all probability, not be required. We hear that the judges of the Court have fully endorsed Mr. Jones' recommendations, and that he has carried out a somewhat invidious task with great tact and judgment. We trust for the sake of the public that we shall be put in early possession of the details of the reform.—Englishman.

VERY PROBABLE.—The Civil Service Commissioners have declined to award the £100 prize for proficiency in law in the special examination of the selected candidates of 1865. This is, of course, causing great dissatisfaction among the candidates themselves, and general complaints are made that no particular course of legal study was prescribed. We suspect the case is that candidates who have been selected by an examination which is notoriously crammed for are taken aback when they come to be examined on a subject which cannot be "bottled" up in half a dozen lines of impossible doggerel or be written into them by an experienced "coach." If cramming is to decide the first examination then let it be confined to fewer subjects and be of a more thorough nature.—Friend of India.

RAWUL PINDEE, Sept. 1.—Not a little consternation was created one day last week in that portion of cantonments adjoining the native infantry lines, when just as a heavy thunder-storm was about to burst over the station a most terrific peal of thunder crashed over our heads, and the next instant a column of smoke was seen ascending from the roof of the 2nd Goorkha hospital. It was immediately patent to all that the building in question had been struck by lightning, and hundreds of people rushed down to ascertain the extent of the damage. The first thing observed was the native dresser being borne out in an insensible state, whilst several other natives, either standing about the building or passing along the adjoining road, had been struck down by the tremendous force of the concussion. I am glad to say, however, that no lives were lost, the native dresser himself being only severely scorched. This man's escape was so wonderful that I will relate it. He was standing at a table compounding some drugs at the time when the electric fluid struck thero of above him, which it entered in two places, and then running down the legs of the table, buried itself in the ground within six inches on each side of him. I could scarcely have believed it possible that a man could escape with his life under such circumstances had I not examined the spot and seen it with my own eyes.

MORE EXPEDITION.—Our readers will remember that we commented, a short time ago, upon the impolitic measures of the Hill Superintendent in the Chittagong division, in his dealings with the savage tribes on the frontier. The Kookies and Shindoes appear to have imbibed a distrust of the British, which has naturally resulted in a state of warfare along the border, where all the fighting and all the plunder are on one side, and all the loss and all the misery on the other. A state of things has thus been created which has rendered it needful to prove that the superintendent's threats were no idle vapourings. It is reported that an expedition will be sent against these tribes during the ensuing cold weather. Mr. Grey will thus have two little wars on his hands—wars that might have been avoided if his predecessor had shown proper energy in his dealings with the savages. We trust that these expeditions may be taken as indications of a more energetic policy on the part of the Bengal Government. An abiding sense of the power they wilfully provoke is the only basis upon which firmness and tact on the part of the British agents can rest their attempts to better the condition of the tribes, and convert them from a horde of robbers into industrious neighbours.—Englishman.

ANOTHER ILLUSTRATION OF THE WEAK POLICY FORCED ON THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA by the Home authorities is seen in the following letter to a Feudatory who behaves so badly. Writing in reply to the Maharajah of Cashmere's excuse for not doing homage to his Excellency at Simla, Sir John Lawrence says: "I assure your Highness that it was with much regret that I missed the opportunity of meeting you in April last, but there was no remedy. It would have been very unwise had I kept your Highness near Umballa, and exposed you and your people to the dangers of the cholera. I entertain sincere feelings of friendship for your Highness, and shall always be anxious for your welfare. I shall be very happy to see your minister, Dewan Joalla Sahai, who has been an old friend of mine for many years, and whom I look upon as a devoted supporter of your Highness's interests." There is the glove of silk, but oh! for the hand of iron in the interests of oppressed millions.—Friend of India.

HOW TO DEAL WITH LOAFERS.—The European Vagrants' Relief Society at Mooltan has checked the stream of loafers from Kurachee to Lahore, by confining its aid to food, lodging, and assistance in obtaining a passage back to Kurachee. For some years we have followed the same plan in Serampore, inducing sailors and others to go back to Calcutta, but refusing to help them up country to their ruin. The Mooltan Society was required to assist only twenty-eight vagrants in the year ending June last at a cost of Rs. 308. Since the commencement of these arrangements only two instances have occurred of vagrants being found drunk in the station, and the residents have been entirely relieved of the importunities of vagrants for alms. The tide has now turned, and the relief societies between Calcutta and Lahore are sending it up-country and on to Mooltan from Lahore. Vagrancy is to some extent kept up by free tickets being given on the East Indian Railway to destitute Europeans proceeding up country, and by district and police officers employing public money in assisting vagrants into the interior. This should be stopped. The truest kindness is to send loafers back to port—and thence home.—Friend of India.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT ON THE BEEAS.—UMRITSUR, Aug. 31.—I regret to inform you that intelligence arrived this afternoon of a serious accident on the River Beas, at the Wuzcer Borber Ghat, where the Grand Trunk Road crosses that river. My only wonder is that with such rotten old craft as serve the ferry when the bridge of boats is broken up, more accidents do not happen; and it is a great disgrace to the Government that a better description of ferry boats has not been provided than existed, I dare say, for centuries before the Europeans conquered the province. In the present instance a boat, in which were many passengers and two bullock train carts laden with merchandise, came in contact with a boat moored in the river in connection with the telegraph arrangements, swung round and went over. It is said that every soul on board perished, but I trust this is an exaggeration, and shall make further inquiries with the view of obtaining more authentic particulars as to the actual number of deaths.

FOOD AS A MOTIVE POWER.—A very suggestive article on this subject appears in the Quarterly Journal of Science for July. It is from the pen of Mr. C. W. Heaton, the lecturer on Chemistry at Charing Cross Hospital, London. The author reviews very carefully the theories of Liebig and Frankland, and discards both of them as insufficient to explain all muscular power. Looking upon Mayer's view, that the decomposition of all bodies in the blood and tissue gives rise to heat as the most correct one, he extends it by supposing in addition that the blood currents develop electric currents, and thus add to the existing sources of muscular power. This hypothesis, however, is not quite novel. Dr. C. B. Radcliffe has already shown that muscular action is due to electric discharge, and Dr. B. W. Richardson had suggested that the friction of the blood, in passing along the vessels, may give rise to electricity. Thus it seems that Mr. Heaton's theory is a combination of two previously existing views.—Indian Medical Gazette, Sept. 2.

A PUBLIC SPIRITED MAN.—Rao Dhunput Singh Bahadoor, who has just given the liberal donation of Rs. 10,000 to the Famine Fund, has displayed, we understand, a further piece of liberality which ought to meet with due appreciation. He has, in case of a railway from Calcutta to Darjeeling being decided upon, offered as a gift to Government and the railway such portions of his land as may be required. He has a zemindary running from fifty to sixty miles from Purneah towards Darjeeling. We have not heard what reply Government has given to this offer, but the public-spiritedness of the donor deserves recognition.

INDIA RELAPSING TO THE DOMINION OF WILD BEASTS.—Grievous complaints have reached us from Sooburnopolly, a village about thirty miles from Calcutta, in the district of Nuddea, and the sub-division of Rana Ghat. It is stated that, owing to the high jungle round about the place, it has become dangerous to venture out after dark. Lately several inhabitants have been attacked and wounded by wild beasts, one mortally so. Applications have been presented to the Deputy-Collector, but without avail, to have the jungle cleared, as it is daily increasing the insecurity of life and property. The place has a population of about 1,300 or 1,400 souls, and contains some three or four hundred dwellings. Several amongst its residents belong to the monied native gentry, consisting of zemindars and subordinate Government officials, but no effort seems to be made to cut the jungle and rid themselves of their dangerous neighbours.

VAGRANCY AND DESTITUTION.—The Mosulite wishes something could be done in the way of an asylum for the miserable objects one constantly meets in the streets seeking alms, but who ought not to be permitted to appear in public, and thinks that some refuge might be built at Delhi out of the large octroi duties. Unless a law be passed putting down vagrancy and mendicancy an asylum will be useless.

SUDDEN DEATH OF AN OFFICER.—We regret to hear of the death of Lieut. F. L. S. Dyce, of the late 71st Regiment N. I., and attached to the 42nd Regiment N. I., which occurred on Sunday at the Presidency. The cause of death was head apoplexy. He was in a ghari at the time on his way to embark for Assam. His remains were interred with military honours.

CAPTAIN HOLROYD has been gazetted to officiate in the office of Punjab Director of Public Instruction, left vacant by the death of Major Fuller.

MILITARY CHANGES.

The period at which Sir Gaspard le Marchant's tenure of office will expire is fast approaching, and his Excellency seems determined to make as much use of his time in providing for his friends as he possibly can. Notwithstanding that Colonel Primrose, the adjutant-general of the army, will not be required to vacate his appointment until April next, Sir Gaspard has actually nominated his successor to Government; but, taking into consideration the early change about to take place in the command of the army, Government replied that the question of the nomination of a successor to Colonel Primrose might properly be deferred. We hear of further reductions in the number of Madras native infantry regiments. Two, at least, are doomed, and six more are said to be likely to be disbanded. Five single stations are to be given up, and a plan is to be introduced for concentrating the troops. A rearrangement of the present commands, both divisional and brigade, is said to be in contemplation; and the Commander-in-Chief, in reference to this latter question, recently submitted the following proposals for the favourable consideration of Government:—

I. That the Southern Division be converted into a second-class brigade and be designated the Trichinopoly Brigade.

II. The Hyderabad Subsidiary Force to a divisional instead of a brigade command.

III. The Northern Districts to be reduced from a first to a second-class brigade command, and Thayetmeyo, Burmah, now a second-class, to be raised to a first-class brigade.

IV. The Cannanore and Malabar command to be raised from a second-class to a first-class brigade, to include Quilon, and to be independent of the officer commanding Mysore Division.

The several commands would then stand thus: 1 Mysore Division; 2 Centre Division; 3 Pegu Division; 4 Hyderabad Division; 5 Ceded Districts. 1 Nagpore Force, 1st class brigade; 2 Thayetmeyo, 1st class brigade; 3 Malabar and Canara, 1st class brigade; 4 Northern District, 2nd class brigade; 5 Trichinopoly, 2nd class brigade. These arrangements the Commander-in-Chief considered to be very necessary, and they will not cost the State any extra expenditure. The Commander-in-Chief wished also to recommend the re-arrangement of the Divisional Staff if the above changes met with the concurrence of Government. In an order dated 31st August, the Governor in Council says:—"The considerations involved in the arrangements proposed by H. E., the commander-in-chief, appear to be important, but having in view that the anticipated change in the command of the army will devolve on another officer the duty of giving effect to any alterations which might now be sanctioned, his Lordship in Council deems it expedient to defer the discussion of this matter for the present. It may be further observed that the redistribution of commands can be more conveniently disposed of after the plan for the concentration of the troops has been decided on."—Athenæum.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—As might be expected, the Abyssinian expedition is the chief topic of discussion throughout India just now. Considerable disappointment, not to say disgust, is felt by military men in Madras at the treatment the local army is receiving. As yet our soldiers have been asked to do nothing more than garrison some of the Bombay stations, such as Kurrachee, Surat, Dharwar, and others which will be left short of the usual forces by the despatch of Bombay troops to Abyssinia. The army very naturally protests against this inglorious share in the expedition. It now seems highly probable, however, that one brigade of the force will be composed of Madras troops. Four commissariat officers, on the Madras establishment, viz., Major Bardin, Captain Hawkes, Captain Heysham, and Lieutenant Smith are already under orders for the expedition, and Madras has been called on to furnish 500 bearers. The latest news from England makes it appear doubtful whether after all an expedition will be sent, a telegram from London dated the 4th instant stating that the British Embassy at Constantinople had received intelligence that the prisoners had been liberated on the intercession of the Armenian Bishop.—Madras Times, Sept. 6.—In accordance with the telegram dated the 2nd September, from the Commissary General, Bombay, requiring a certain number of smart commissariat officers to serve with the Abyssinian Expedition, the Commissary General, Madras, has placed at his disposal the services of Major Bardin, Assistant Commissary General; Captain Hawkes, Deputy Assistant Commissary General; Captain Heysham, Deputy Assistant Commissary General; and Lieutenant Smith, Sub-Assistant Commissary General. The latter officer will proceed in charge of 500 Dooly bearers for that service, and the officers have the privilege of selecting two non-commissioned officers from the staff of the commissariat to proceed with them for duty with the expedition. Out of the number of bearers required, 200 have been collected at Madras, and the remaining portion will be collected from the Mofussil. They are entertained, after passing a medical examination as to physical fitness, by Dr. J. Keess, Port and Marine Surgeon. The Commissary General, Madras, has on a telegram received from the Commissary General, Bombay, yesterday, requiring bullocks for the expedition, instructed the commissariat officer at Bangalore to purchase 400 bullocks, similar to those used for artillery purposes in Madras, on account of the Bombay Government for service with the Abyssinian Expedition, and 50,000 rupees has been placed at that officer's disposal for this purpose. The bullocks will be sent to Bombay via Beypore.—Athenæum, Sept. 13.

SAILORS' HOME.—The foundation stone of the Bidden Home for Sailors has been laid by Lord Napier with the usual public ceremony. It has been his lordship's good fortune, as he remarked on the occasion, to assist in the prosecution, and promote the accomplishment of several good works which were contemplated and commenced by his predecessors—the Bidden Home is one of them. The new building, which is designed to accommodate sixty-one inmates, or in an emergency many more, will be a handsome structure, and will be completed in a year. Mr. Chisholm, to whom Madras will hereafter owe much of its architectural beauty, is the architect.

THE MAHARAJAH OF MYSORE.—On the 16th of July the Viceroy addressed the following letter to the Maharajah of Mysore:—"You have already been apprised, by my instructions, of the views entertained by her Majesty's Government in respect of the succession of your Highness's adopted son to the kingdom of Mysore; and I now beg to offer my congratulations to your Highness on the occasion. I sincerely trust that the decision arrived at by her Majesty's Government will conduce to your Highness's happiness and that of the people of Mysore. The great point now to be aimed at is that the best arrangements practicable be made for the proper training and education of your Highness's adopted son. Thus, when your Highness's adopted son shall have arrived at man's estate, he may be fitted by ability and right dispositions to dispense to the people justice, and to maintain with dignity the exalted position he has been called to occupy. To this end I trust that your Highness will afford the powerful aid of your assistance in furthering the suggestions and recommendations of the Commissioner, to whom I have already made known my sentiments on the subject."

THE LICENCE-TAX—A SCANDAL.—Mr. Massey has found converts to his Licence-tax in the King of Burmah and the present ruler of Cabul, Afzul Khan, both of whom have introduced a system similar to Mr. Massey's Licence-tax on the traders of their respective cities, thus affording ready and spontaneous testimony to the arbitrary character of the tax, and its adaptiveness to the wants of absolutism. A question in reference to the Licence-tax has created a great stir in Calcutta and Bombay, the collectors there having decided upon issuing licences to prostitutes. The public sense of decency has been outraged at the idea of swelling the budget by such gains, and the women themselves could not refrain from expressing their indignation that such means should be resorted to for increasing the imperial revenue. A memorial is in course of signature protesting against the issue of such licences, and we cannot believe that the Government of India will sanction the levying of revenue from such a source.—Athenæum.

THE GOVERNOR AND SUITE were to leave Madras on the 7th ult. by the ordinary seven A.M. train en route to Erode, Trichinopoly, and the Pulney Hills.

THE MUNICIPAL BILL.—A telegram from Simla to the Madras Government announces that our new Municipal Bill has been sanctioned by the Governor-General in Council. As no mention is made of the petition that was sent in advance of it, it is thought not unlikely that it has met with the fate of the generality of such documents, and been "recorded." If so, the petitioners will have reason to be much dissatisfied; they are so impressed with the unfairness and uselessness of some of its provisions, that if their representations respecting them have not been attended to, they will, as before determined, take it before still higher authority.

THE STAR OF INDIA FOR THE MAHARAJAH OF MYSORE.—On the 2nd September Colonel Fordyce, C.B., who had visited Mysore for the purpose, read to the Maharajah a letter signed by the Queen, intimating her intention of conferring upon him the order of the Star of India, in consequence of the long continued friendship shown by him to the British Government. The letter, borne upon a richly-caparisoned elephant, had been previously carried through the town in state, and the Rajah did all that he could to render the proceedings impressive. The officiating commissioner was present on the occasion. This will not interfere with the formal investiture.—Madras Times.

THE FRENCH SHIP "COURRIER DE MAYAGUEZ," bound from Coconada to Pondicherry, stranded a few miles north of Sadras at about four o'clock this morning. All the crew, we are glad to hear, were safely landed, and the captain is in hopes of being able to save all the cargo. Fears, however, are entertained that the ship will become a total wreck.—Madras Times, Oct. 6.

THE RECENT VELLORE DEMONSTRATIONS have been promptly responded to by the Supreme Government in the wisest way. Collectors of the license-tax in Mofussil towns have been instructed to deduct from the imperial license-tax the cess on trades and professions as in the case of the Presidency towns. The greatest anomaly of the tax has thus been removed.

STOCK AND MONEY MARKET.—There have been some transactions in Four per Cents. at 10½ discount and a few small sales of Five-and-a-Half per Cents. at 11½ premium, but otherwise there has not been much doing. Our present quotations are the same as they were at the date of our last report, viz., for Five-and-a-Half per Cents. 111½, Fives 106½, and Fours 89½. Nothing is doing in Bank of Madras shares, which are quoted at 57 to 58 premium. Money continues very plentiful at 3½ per cent. for demand loans, 5 per cent for fixed loans, and 7 per cent for discount on private bills.

BOMBAY.

DANGEROUS CONDITION OF INDIAN RAILWAYS.

About a week ago we opened up, more fully than had hitherto been done, the subject of the faulty construction of India railways, more especially as illustrated by the recent failures on the Great Indian Peninsula line. The origin of these failures we traced to the false position occupied respectively, during the course of construction, by the contractors and district engineers. Amidst the pressure of home news, and the discussion of exciting topics like the Simla scandal and foreign expeditions, this domestic question—one most essentially connected with the future material prosperity of India—demands the most earnest attention. It is admitted—and we have constantly supported the view—that the Indian railway system, though a costly experiment, has been a successful one; but if it is to turn out that the masonry and embankments, the very foundations of our lines, are unsound, then the gravest doubts may arise as to the permanent and real success of the Indian railways. We would not desire to spread universal distrust, and, for the present, confine our more special criticisms to the Great Indian Peninsula lines; but it is imperative, before new extensions are entered upon, that the resolute will of the Government of India should be exerted, in order to ensure the faithful performance of contractors' engagements, and unflinching fidelity on the part of the engineers in the detailed supervision of the work. If there be no new manifestation of energy now put forth in this direction, there can be little confidence felt in looking forward to the probable condition of Indian railways twenty years hence.

The Great Indian Peninsula Railway constructions are not ten years old, and it is becoming apparent that the whole series is more or less defective, and that there has been some essential and, probably, all-pervading flaw throughout the works. Some, on whose special information and professional opinion considerable confidence may be reposed, go so far as to assert that the necessity of rebuilding every bridge and viaduct on the Great Indian Peninsula line is but a question of a year or two. We trust there will be found important exceptions to this deplorable statement, but the results of the recent professional investigations go far to support this serious view of the matter. The generally insecure condition of the works on the Nagpore extension, long suspected, is now confirmed; the Sukkee Nullee embankment is on the north-east main line, as also the five or six important bridges and viaducts reported as suspected in the Government resolution—which, by the way, has been published since our former remarks on this subject. The fall of the largest viaduct of all, the Mhow-ke-Mulla, on the south-east extension, has excited doubts as to many of the constructions on the Poona line; so that on every portion of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, except it be on the level between Bombay and Callian, the whole of the costly works must at present lie under a ban of suspicion. We must observe, in passing, that the doubts of which we speak are not such as relate to the safety of passengers. The fact that these doubts as to the stability of the works have now been thoroughly aroused, affords the most effectual safeguard to passengers. Every precaution is taken and anxious prevision is exercised; so that at no former period has travelling on the Great Indian Peninsula been so free from danger as at present; but the suspicions now so generally entertained have reference to the permanent durability or otherwise of the works, and the ultimate financial prospects of the undertaking as dependent thereupon.

And not only have the recent accidents occurred in favour of the safety of passengers' limbs, but they have occurred just in time to ensure a thorough reform in the method of carrying out future extensions of the line, and the experience now gained ought to be the guarantee for an effectual renewal of the faulty portions. The portion of the main line now making through the valley of the upper Nerbudda towards Jubbulpore is one that demands the greatest care as to soundness of construction; and there will be no excuse if, after the recent revelations, the permanent way in Central India should not be of workmanship superior to any existing portion of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. We fully believe the present chief engineer is determined to have sound work if it can be obtained, and that he will not hesitate to alter both the designs and specifications on the works of the upper Nerbudda, if such a course should be deemed needful after the terrible exposure of past negligence and mistakes. No one can be more fully conscious of the fatal defects in former management and organisation than Mr. Rushton must be, especially with all the recent information now under his own hand. Of one thing he may rest assured, that if he will stand firmly by his own staff and vindicate the proper position and responsibility of his own profession, the Government, both local and supreme, will stand by him against all opposition, either here or at home, if such should arise. And as he cannot visit and inspect the whole of the line and the works in progress with any frequency, there is imperative necessity for him to have district engineers on whom he can fully rely, and to whom may be accorded that full power of action which is essential to all men who feel a due sense of responsibility. To illustrate the force and significance of this general remark, we would ask, how often did the late chief engineers visit the works on the Nagpore extension, which are now condemned? We dare not say how few visits were paid to the line of the "Seven Shaky Bridges" by those gentlemen who, above everyone else, were responsible to the Government, the company, and the public, for the soundness of the works; but their presence in the Central Provinces could have been dispensed with had they accorded sufficient power to their staff, and encouraged the district engineers in the faithful performance of their onerous duties. A policy the reverse of this was fostered,—a policy of centralisation under which independence and vigilance in the distant mofussil was impossible, because all engineering efforts were subordinated to theoretical supervision from the Bombay offices,—a policy under which the contractors could pretty much follow their own devices. But this policy, we venture to think, can never be permitted full swing again.

We have already referred to the resolution passed by the Bombay Government on the 21st inst., in which is reviewed the report from the Deputy Consulting Engineer to Government and the two principal officials of the G. I. P. As the report itself is not published, we need say nothing as to the inappropriate composition of the committee; but the local Government deserves praise for the thoroughness with which they deal with the scant material laid before them, and also for the proper determination displayed in the call for "a full statement of the condition of the line generally," that demand being founded upon the opinion "that defects are common throughout." This view we have already enforced; but let us just glance through the resolution, and it will be found to support what we have said respecting essential and probably irreparable defects in the present constructions. Thus at the Shahpoor viaduct the fall of a portion of the arch is attributed to the "vibration of passing trains acting on badly constructed masonry;" and it is added that this could not have happened "had the bricks in the arch been properly shaped and laid in good cement." The case of the Mhowlee viaduct is said to be "a very bad one," though the cause of the badness is not stated. As to the fact there can be no doubt, as it is directed that the trains shall be shunted over by hand—we presume, one truck, or one carriage at a time. Then as to the Mendashey viaduct, in which a crack is reported. The Government cannot judge from the report whether the particular crack "is serious or not"—"but," as they add very significantly, "looking to the general construction of these works, any cracks are serious." And, we may remark, a similar crack on the Mhowke-Mulla viaduct was supposed not to be "serious," even after that great work was actually strewn in ruins over the whole valley. The crack itself, indeed, was not serious, but the circumstances which caused the crack were so—namely, "the vibration of passing trains," and the lapse of time (only ten years) acting upon "badly constructed masonry." It is something like the old proverb—for want of a nail the shoe was lost, &c. Because there was not sufficient water on the Bhoze Ghaut wherewith to mix the chunam properly, it was deemed impracticable or unnecessary to take adequate pains to procure an additional supply, so the great work was hurried forward whilst the chief engineers winked very hard indeed. Now they are compelled to open their eyes more widely than ever.

Whilst we believe that the defective construction of the Indian railways is mainly owing to the absence of effective detailed supervision at the time of construction, there were undoubtedly other causes which come more strictly under the terms of engineering defects. Owing to a deficiency on the part of the surveyors as to knowledge of the country and the language, there have undoubtedly been many instances of the selection of inferior routes. There have been also some very faulty designs, but far more serious than these have been the ill-drawn and loosely-worded specifications. All doubtful interpretations were necessarily in favour of the contractor, and all omissions told against the chance of sound construction. This brings us back to the monster evil of all, the false position which the constructors were allowed to attain. The selection of tenders, the disbursements of immense sums for railway material at home, and the general distribution of large patronage by the home boards of the Indian railways, are topics about which much mystery must necessarily hang; but there can be little doubt that Sir C. Wood, with all his circumspection, opened a way for much mischief, when he urged, if he did not direct the boards to accept the lowest tenders for the construction of Indian railways. He seems to have had an exaggerated idea of the excessive profits that would be made by contractors; hence, in some instances, he pushed aside the recommendations of the boards in favour of a more substantial class of men. This was the case, we have reason to believe, with at least three contracts on the G. I. P. which might be specified. Of these three one has had to be re-let, and another is being carried out by the company itself. In other instances the contracts have been in the hands of firms of no previous standing, and so destitute of capital that they have frequently been dependent on advances made on security of materials collected. And yet to weak firms of this kind have been entrusted contracts extending over portions of line from seventy to 200 miles in length. What could possibly come of such ineffectual arrangements for carrying out works which demanded in the execution of them every aid that experience and varied resources could afford? Nothing could come of it but hurried, careless construction, rapid deterioration of the "permanent way," and that sense of general insecurity which the Government resolution so distinctly expresses.

There are various moral and political considerations suggested by these failures and defects in our great material works that will occur to every one, and on which there is no need to dwell. Defective masonry, loose embankments, and other "scamping" constructions, indicate either deficiency in principle and rectitude, or indifference and neglect of duty—some would say both. These things cannot pass unnoticed in those allied and tributary States around us, whose rulers we are constantly exhorting to advance to our high standard of civilisation. Happily, when convinced of our own errors and mistakes we are usually zealous for reform and thorough improvement. This is more evidently the case when our material welfare is also at stake, as it is in this instance. Therefore we cannot doubt that, at this juncture, when railway enterprise in India seems about to make a new start, both the local and supreme Governments will use every effort to secure strict supervision of every new work, and a faithful performance of contract engagements.—Times of India, Sept. 9.

MISCELLANEOUS.

COTTON PROSPECTS IN BOMBAY.—Mr. Rivett Carnac, Cotton Commissioner Central Provinces and the Berars, has addressed the following letter to the Secretary to the Bombay Government, dated Nagpore, 17th Sept., regarding the state and prospects of the cotton crops in these provinces:—"Sir,—As a brief notice of the present prospects of the cotton crops in these provinces may not be without interest to you, I do myself the honour to forward a copy of a letter on the subject, addressed to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner on the 5th instant. I may mention that since the above letter was written we have had ten days of continuous rain. The sun showed itself this evening for the first time during the last week. Where the plant was already drooping for want of sunshine, this heavy weather may, I fear, have done some harm. But in the greater part of the Wurdah country, where Hinglunghat cotton is grown, and in the Berars, on which Bombay chiefly depends for its cotton supply from this part of the country, the plant was so far advanced and flourishing before the recent heavy weather set in that it is not likely to have suffered. We have now a break in the weather, and the warm sunshine and bright days will bring the plant forward, and give the cultivators a chance of weeding and arranging their fields. In future a memorandum on the state of the weather and the crops will be issued from this office every fortnight, and I shall hope to do myself the honour of forwarding a copy to you.—I have, &c." For this letter, and the promise of more, Mr. Rivett Carnac has received the thanks of the Right Hon. the Governor in Council.

THE EASTERN FINANCIAL ASSOCIATION.—There are two appeals by creditors of this association against the terms of the compromise entered into by the liquidators of this association, on special grounds. One of these is by the Bank of Hindustan, and the other by the European Assurance Society. The terms of the compromise were that the assets of the association should be sold for Rs. 600,000, and that another six lakhs should be subscribed by three of the directors, Messrs. Cassumbhoy Dhurumsey, Kessowjee Naik, and Alladinbhoj Hubbiboj, on condition that on payment of such six lakhs the said three persons should be released from further liability. The case for the Bank of Hindustan was heard before the Hon. Sir Richard Couch, Chief Justice, and the Hon. Mr. Justice Westropp, and it was concluded on Saturday. That for the European Assurance Society was commenced on the same day, and, at the rising of the court, the further hearing was adjourned. The decisions in both cases will be given at the same time. Mr. Brayley and Mr. Green, instructed by Messrs. Kelly and Messrs. Leathes, were counsel for the appellants, and Mr. White and Mr. Marriott, instructed by Mr. Hurrell, appeared for the respondents. Dr. Dunbar, instructed by Mr. Rimington, supported the compromise on behalf of the Bank of Bombay.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—In order to expedite the re-opening of the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway for traffic at the place just south of the Nerbudda River where the embankment has been washed away by the late floods, the chief engineer of the company has determined to restore, in the first instance, the embankment at the southern extremity of the viaduct, with earth as it was before the floods, and to pitch and erect in the bank, the iron piles for the extra spans to be added to the viaduct. A large force of men have for the last fortnight been at work, and it is expected that all breaches in the line will be filled up about the middle of the week, when passengers and goods trains will be able to resume passing over the whole line as usual. The piles will be screwed down, leaving the extension of the viaduct for the purpose of affording extra waterway to be completed afterwards, so as not to involve further interruption to the traffic. Through traffic is to be resumed at once.—Times of India.

MAJOR VINCENT, doing duty at Jubbulpore, says a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette, is being tried at that station by a court-martial, on very grave charges, and one cannot but feel compassion for an officer of such high position to be in such straits. It appears Major Vincent travelled from Allahabad to Jubbulpore in unbecoming costume, and some railway official having taken serious umbrage at it, had the matter reported to the Commander-in-Chief, whereupon a court of inquiry assembled to investigate the case, which, proving tangible and involving some other charges, has been referred to a General Court-martial. I believe Major Vincent was once a deputy commissioner in the Assam Provinces, and is second or third senior officer in the Jubbulpore station command.

THE OVER-BRIDGES.—The construction of these bridges under Mr. T. Ormiston, C.E., chief engineer of the Elphinstone works, is progressing rapidly. On the town side the abutment and retaining walls to the approaches of the Carnac bridge are on average about six feet above ground level; the Musjid bridge has not yet been commenced; and the Elphinstone bridge is about four feet above ground level. On the Bunder side the foundations of the abutment of the Carnac bridge have just been finished, and the north retaining wall is about three feet above ground level; the abutment and approaches of the Musjid bridge are about ten feet above ground level, and the Elphinstone bridge still further advanced. We hope to be able in a future issue to furnish our readers with the plans and details.

CHINA & JAPAN.

The China Mail of the 28th August says that great anxiety is felt at Peking, owing to the presence of the rebels in Shantung and Honan. The Chinese Government has been making extensive purchases of rice at Hong Kong and elsewhere, to meet the anticipated famine in the north. A fall of twenty taels in the silk market at Shanghai took place in the three or four days preceding the mail's departure. An overland expedition from Shanghai to Calcutta is being undertaken by two or three gentlemen at the former port.

The United States navy in China is receiving reinforcements. Rear Admiral Stephen C. Rowan is named to command the squadron. The Nienfei are said to be hemmed up in the north-east corner of Shantung. By one report they were making rafts to escape.

The Spanish treaty was ratified on the 26th May last. The Spanish Minister is concluding a convention relative to the Coolie trade. Other Ministers are drawing up a fresh convention uniform with that of Spain.

News had been brought that the rebels were besieging Laiyang, the famous centre of northern Buddhism.

There has been a disturbance in Formosa, the house of a missionary having been looted; order has, however, been restored.

The rice crop in Chusan has failed.

Two seamen of her Majesty's ship Icarus have been murdered at Nagasaki in a tea-house. It is not yet known what steps will be taken.

Some sixty or seventy native Christians have been arrested at Nagasaki and imprisoned; according to another account (not confirmed) they have been put to death. It is expected that the French admiral will interfere.

The natives of Simabarro are being examined by the authorities to see if any of them are Christians.

Everything very dear in Japan, prices rising daily for articles of food, &c.

CLAIMS OF MAJOR GENERAL SKINNER, BOMBAY STAFF CORPS.

No. 883.—The Right Hon. the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to publish for general information, the following financial despatch to the Govt. of Bombay, from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India:—

Financial (Military Fund) No. 98.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Gov. in Council, Bombay.

Sir,—Para. 1. I have received and considered in Council your military letter, dated March 26 last, No. 23, and its accompanying papers, relating to the claim preferred against Major gen. Skinner, of the Bombay staff corps, for payment of the donation and subscription of a col. to the military fund of your Presidency on his promotion to the rank of major gen. of the staff corps, and bringing to my notice the disproportionate increase of donations and subscriptions payable by a married subscriber on promotion to colonel.

2. After a careful consideration of the whole case, I have arrived at the conclusion that Major gen. Skinner does not hold the rank of a substantive col., and should not, therefore, be compelled to pay the donation and increased subscription of an officer of that rank, which have never been made obligatory on officers holding brevet rank.

3. The donation and increased subscription of colonel will in future be paid by officers attaining colonel's allowances, who will be considered for fund purposes as then, and not till then, attaining to the rank of full colonel.

4. I come now to the part of your letter in which you state that your attention has been drawn to the disproportionate increase of donations and subscriptions payable by a married subscriber on promotion to colonel; but this payment, although it may appear large, does not seem to me unjust or out of proportion to the difference of pay received, as shown by Major Chitty in his letter to your Government, of March 25 last; and it must be borne in mind that when the Secretary of State for India in Council accepted the liability and management of the military funds, it was under an express engagement that the rules then in force should be maintained, and I cannot entertain any proposal for their alteration.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) STAFFORD H. NORTHCOOTE.

No. 886.—The undermen. officer of the Bengal staff corps, having completed 12 years' service, is prom. to the rank of capt. from the date specified, under the provisions of G.G.O. No. 808 of Sept. 26, 1866, subject to H.M.'s approval:—

Lieut. F. H. Hood, Aug. 20.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

(By Direct Overland Telegraph.)

BOMBAY, Oct. 3.

Intelligence received here announces that the Ameer Shere Ali, having marched towards Cabul, the advanced division, under his brother, Sirdar Faiz Masotil Khan, was met and defeated by the Cabul troops under Wulee's son, Abdul Rhyman Khan. Sirdar Faiz was killed, and his body taken to Cabul.

An outbreak took place among the Chawulpore soldiery on the 25th ult., which was promptly put down, one of the mutineers being killed. Captain Murchin has proceeded to the spot with an escort.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

HONG KONG, Sept. 11.

Intelligence from Japan states that Sir Henry Parkes and Admiral Keppel were about to proceed to Osaka to demand satisfaction for the late murder of two seamen.

A terrific typhoon has passed over Hong Kong, causing great damage to the shipping.

LOSS OF THE SHIP "TUDOR."—It is now believed in Liverpool that nothing more will ever be heard of the ship Tudor, which sailed from Liverpool for Bombay with a cargo of coals on the 17th of January last. She is supposed to have been lost in the gales which at the time prevailed in the Irish Channel, as a life-buoy with Tudor painted on it in black letters was found on St. Agnes Island, one of the Scilly Islands, on the 8th of February. The Tudor was an old Colonial-built vessel, belonging to Mr. Callan, and chartered by Messrs. G. Laurence and Co.

OFFICERS AND GENTLEMEN AT BARODA.—The Neigherry Excelsior has a letter from Baroda containing a pitiable account of life and habits of the Guickwar. His palace is large, and very filthy in the inside. His chief amusement is elephant fights, which come off twice a week. His army is commanded by British officers, who after keeping a horse and buying cast-off regimentals have scarcely a third of their pay left. Consequently most of them are in debt. They, however, unite with their military duties others of a more remunerative character. "Captain — sells milk and butter, Captain — sells ducks' eggs and fowls, and Captain — sells furniture."

H.M.'s INDIAN TROOP-SHIP "MALABAR," which left Portsmouth for Bombay on July 27, arrived at the latter port on Sept. 28, all well. The Euphrates embarked at Suez on the 4th instant the troops for Calcutta, which went to Alexandria in the Crocodile, and sailed for Calcutta.

HOME.

BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE FUND.

(To the Editor of the Home News.)

SIR,—Will you kindly give insertion to the enclosed statement of the Banda and Kirwee Prize Fund, the original of which has accidentally come into my possession? It is a matter of much interest to all concerned that the exact sum to be distributed should be known, and I estimate that after payment of law costs, commander-in-chief's bonus, commission to prize agents, &c., the probable balance will be £570,000, and it is fair to assume from the small number of troops engaged that each share will be worth over 1,000 rupees.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—The preparations for the expedition to Abyssinia may be briefly summarised as follows:—The two batteries of mountain steel guns are nearly ready. The guns weigh only 150 lb. each. They are rifled on what is termed the French principle, viz., that of three grooves. A committee of members of the Indian Council, general officers, and others, about thirty in number, went down to Woolwich to inspect the battery of mountain guns some days since. Among them were Lieut.-General Sir William Codrington, Lord Clinton, Parliamentary Under Secretary for India, Major-General Pears, of the Indian Army, Sir W. M. Power, Commissary-General-in-Chief, Lieut.-General Sir H. K. Storks, and Sir Edward Lugard, Under Secretary for War. A series of manœuvres and military movements were performed with mules and horses with the view of testing the efficacy of the arrangements. The guns, which had been tested at Shoeburyness, were minutely inspected, and declared to be free from blemish. The guns and gun-carriages were mounted on the pack saddles of the animals and conveyed at walking, trotting, and galloping paces across the parade ground, and were afterwards dismounted and the guns fired with perfect success. An autumnal session of Parliament is rendered necessary by the Abyssinian Expedition. Parliament is, therefore, to re-assemble on the 19th of November, to vote the supplies for the expedition.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM COMPANY.—The recent advance in the shares of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company is understood to arise from the fact that this company's tender for the increased mail service to the East is the only one which has been sent to the Government. At the same time it is believed that the charter by the Government of several of the company's steamers in connection with the expedition to Abyssinia, and the purchase of a large portion of its stock of coal at Aden, where, as a rule, 30,000 to 40,000 tons are kept, will add to the profits of the present half-year. Without the assistance thus afforded the Government would probably have had to buy its stock of coal in England, thus involving both extra expense and delay. A hope is expressed that the official decision upon the tender for the new service, which will commence from February next, will be communicated without delay, in order to allow time for the necessary preparations.

H.M.'s STEAM TROOP-SHIP "SERAPIS," Captain Soady, embarks her first batch of troops for conveyance to Alexandria on Tuesday (to-morrow), and sails from Portsmouth on the following day. Amongst the troops she will embark are the 4th Hussars.

EAST INDIA POLICE FORCE.—A general statement as to this force was published as a Parliamentary Paper last Session, on the motion of Lord William Hay. From this it appears that the towns and rivers of Calcutta, with a population of 377,924 persons, and an area of more than seven miles, have for their protection a total strength of 1,643 police, or one policeman to 230 persons. The suburbs of Calcutta, which contain an approximate population of 238,325 individuals, and an area of 29 1/5 square miles, are supplied with 1,026 police, or one to every 232 1/4 of the population. The town of Madras has a population of 460,000 persons, an area of 27 square miles, and a total of 834 police, including foot, mounted, and marine divisions. The town of Bombay has 1,500 police, which allows one to 544 inhabitants, inasmuch as there is a population of 816,562 persons, and an area of 21 square miles. Each force has among its members many varieties as to sect and creed, including Europeans, Eurasians, Hindoos, Mahomedans, native Christians, and others.

THE KOTAH PRIZE MONEY.—In the London Gazette of Tuesday night were published notifications severally from the India-office and the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, stating that the prize rolls for those of her Majesty's late Indian forces, and of her Majesty's British army who are entitled to share in the first distribution of prize money for the capture of Kotah in 1858 have been received. The distribution is to commence at each office on the 8th of November next. The necessary applications must be forwarded in each case.

THE GREAT SHIP RACE.—The whole fleet of clipper ships engaged in the great race from China to London having arrived, it may be interesting to learn the time taken by each of them in the contest: Ariel, 102 days; Taeping, 102; Fiery Cross, 110; Chinaman, 112; Flying Spur, 115; Maitland, 116; Tait-sing, 118; Black Prince, 118; Serica, 119; Ziba, 120; Yang Tsze, 120. The Ariel, it should be mentioned, met with three days' detention in the chops of the Channel, and some of the others met with very tempestuous weather, losing spars, sails, and sustaining other damage by shipping heavy seas. One of them reports seeing a vessel go down with all hands. The cargoes of teas they brought over were as follows:—The Ariel, 1,268,960 lbs.; Taeping, 1,136,961 lbs.; Fiery Cross, 940,510 lbs.; Chinaman, 856,576 lbs.; Flying Spur, 949,716 lbs.; Maitland, 1,198,708 lbs.; Tait-sing, 1,098,310 lbs.; Black Prince, 1,163,114 lbs.; Serica, 1,030,525 lbs.; Ziba, 742,207 lbs.; Yang Tsze, 875,972 lbs.

THE DRY EARTH SYSTEM.—The Rev. Henry Moule has just received from the Indian Government a gratifying and substantial recognition of the value of his system of dry earth sewage. The following is an extract from a letter addressed to him from the India-office in London, dated Sept. 25, 1867:—"I am directed by Sir Stafford Northcote to forward for your information copies of reports which have now been received from the Government of India, on the successful and general adoption of your dry earth sewage system in India. In consideration of the very satisfactory character of these reports, and on the recommendation of the Government of India, the Secretary of State for India in Council has much pleasure in authorising the payment to you of the sum of £500."

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY COMPANY.—The half-yearly meeting of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company will be held on the 1st of November, when the directors will ask for authority to convert into debenture stock as they fall due bonds and debentures of any portion of the borrowed capital £4,000,000, issued with the sanction of the Council of India, and bearing a fixed interest of 5 per cent. per annum. It will also be proposed that the board shall raise from time to time additional moneys by the issue of debenture stock with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for India.

MUNIFICENT GIFT.—Mr. H. H. Morris, who has recently passed a highly successful competitive examination for the Civil Service of India, has addressed a letter to Mr. Alfred Eames, the Secretary of the Royal Naval School, in which he enclosed a cheque for £500, "in recognition of the advantages received by himself and his brothers, and in gratitude for the way in which his old school meets the wants of professions themselves contributing to the just glory of England." This munificent donation constitutes Mr. Morris a vice-president and life-governor of his old school, and gives him the privilege of nominating a gratuitous pupil during his life.

"We have on many occasions spoken in terms of the highest praise of Mr. T. Wrighton as a vocal composer, and the more often that we have an opportunity of judging of his compositions are we convinced that he is the most successful vocal composer of the present day. His style is simple, unaffected, and expressive—three very important, indeed, we may say, vital qualities rarely found in modern music. The three compositions, the titles of which are given above, freely bear out—nay, even enhance—the reputation this gentleman has already acquired. There is no occasion for us to speak of them separately, for the praise bestowed above is equally deserved in the three pieces now before us."—Vide "Court Circular," August 21. EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

"I am not without a hope that these memoirs may be regarded, in some sort, as a Biographical History of India from the days of Cornwallis to the days of Canning. * * I have not attempted, indeed, to write History; the work has grown up spontaneously out of the Lives of the great men who make history * * and, unless the ability of the execution has fallen far short of the sincerity of the design, I have done something, in these pages, to do honour to a race of public servants unsurpassed in the history of the world. * * I have striven to show how youths, from the middle-class families of our British Islands, have gone forth into the great Eastern world, and, by their own unaided exertions carved their way to fame and fortune." J. W. KAYE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the ATHENEUM.

"We say at once that more admirably-written and interesting narratives are scarcely to be found in any literature. We do not envy the man who could read without deep emotion the lives here given of Conolly, Lawrence, and Nicholson; and we doubt whether the whole range of history can show more perfect characters. Nobler subjects of biography could not have been chosen, and higher praise it is impossible to bestow on a writer than to say, as we do of this author, that he is fully equal to such a theme. * * Mr. Kaye's 'Lives of Indian Officers' will take a high place among the standard books of England."

From the SPECTATOR.

"A cadet, an artillery officer, an editor, an employé of the first rank, a successful historian, Mr. Kaye unites in his own person all the qualifications requisite to the biographer of the great Indian soldiers."

From the EXAMINER.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the
PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art, luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay Mail brings us our usual papers from Calcutta to the 23rd, Madras to the 23rd, and Bombay to the 28th of September.

The Calcutta papers contain a great deal of news, but little of a local character. The Orissa famine is considered at an end, though there are a great number of orphans to provide for. The Governor-General is still up country, and will not be in Calcutta until after the Oudh Durbar.

Sir George Yule is added to the list of high officials who are coming home. His health does not improve at Simla; but it is hoped that six months' leave will set him up. Mr. Mayne's approaching visit to England is, it seems, to be a short one. He was to leave almost immediately, to return in January next. Sir Richard Temple is also to make a trip home after the Akolah Exhibition, and Mr. A. C. Lyall is spoken of as likely to officiate for him at Hyderabad. Mr. R. N. Cust is also leaving India, and is not likely to return. He yields to the urgent advice of his medical attendants, his health being in a very weak state.

One of the most promising young officers in the Punjab is Lieut. Grey, officiating Deputy Commissioner of Dera Ismael Khan, and nephew to the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal. On the evening of the 10th inst., while investigating a criminal case near Tilihee, to the south of the district, he was seized and carried off into the hills by Kowra Khan, Chief of a branch of the Kusranees, whose son was suspected of the murder. A regiment and some cavalry started on the evening of the 12th by boat with the Commissioner and a number of the chiefs. A telegram of the 13th announces the release of the captive. The outrage seems to have been due to the frenzied passion of the moment, and the perpetrators are sure to meet with severe punishment.

A great deal of anxiety has been caused by a report of the murder of Dr. Cayley, the new Commissioner at Leh. The story was originated by the Lahore Chronicle, and went "the round of the press." However, the Delhi Gazette of the 24th ult., the latest date received, contains the following satisfactory assurance:—"With reference to the reported death by violence of Dr. Cayley at Leh, we are glad to have it in our power to state that there can be no truth in the rumour, which it will be recollected we said at the time was to be received with great suspicion. A letter has been received from an officer travelling in Thibet, who, writing from Leh on the 30th August, said that Dr. Cayley had gone to some place across the Shayok river, and was not expected back for some days. The writer said nothing about the report of his murder."

The affairs of native Burmah are still in a very anarchical condition, and the latest news from that quarter reports that the rebel Prince, who escaped from Rangoon, is on the frontiers of the Shan and Karen independent States, endeavouring to raise an army to contest the throne with his father, the reigning king at Mandalay.

The Friend of India publishes an instalment of the Russian accounts of the recent victories in Bokhara. Lieut.-col. Abramoff, at the head of only 600 men, is said to have routed an army of 45,000 placed by the Ameer under the Beg or Governor of Samarkand, at Yany-Kurgan. That is a position in front of Juzzak and thirty-two miles north of Samarkand. As after his crescentade the Ameer could not collect more than 32,000 men at Irdjar last year, even the Russian papers doubt the figures. In the Czar's telegram from Orenburg no mention is made of the seizure of any important trophies from the Bokharians; it is stated only that their camp was stormed, and that, on scattering the enemy, the Russian party returned to Yany-Kurgan. The translations from the Moscow Gazette seem to show that the Turkistan region is very unsettled; that the natives are intractable, and are losing respect for Russian rule. But the battle at Yany-Kurgan was followed by others, and by a treaty of a character most humiliating to Bokhara.

The same journal publishes some accounts from Cabul, which will be found elsewhere. "The Russian question," says our contemporary, "has entered on a new phase. It will be seen from our altogether reliable correspondence that the Ameer Shere Ali Khan has made overtures to the Viceroy, through the Moonshes whom we employ at Cabul. The Ameer's letter is of the vaguest kind, but that was to be expected, and his messenger was entrusted with detailed proposals. Though the Ameer's representations regarding Herat are borne out by the Persian correspondence of Government, to which he refers, no one conversant with the politics of Central Asia will draw the deduction which he so skillfully insinuates. From being the greatest enemy of the Barukzyes under Dost Mahomed, we suddenly find the Shah the greatest friend of his son and lawful successor, and that successor waiting to advance on Cabul until the understanding between them has been completed by the return of Yakoub Ali Khan to Herat. The Ameer's object is evidently to delude us into a continuance of inactivity, and in any case to have two strings to his bow."

It is announced that through communication between Calcutta and Bombay, via Jubbulpore and Nagpore, will be permanently practicable from the 1st of October next, in the comparatively short space of 116 hours, or 4 days and 20 hours. The first part of the journey from Calcutta to Allahabad will be got over in about 31 hours, the fares per rail being Rs. 59-2-6 and 29-9-3, for the first and second classes respectively. From Allahabad to Jubbulpore the journey per rail will occupy 17 hours, first and second class fares being respectively Rs. 21-6 and Rs. 10-11. From Jubbulpore to Nagpore the time of the journey per dak gharry will be 36 hours, and the fare for one seat with an allowance of 80 lbs. of baggage will be 100 Rs. From Nagpore to Bombay the time of the transit per rail is 32 hours, and 1st and 2nd class fares Rs. 50-10, and Rs. 25-5 respectively. The total charge 1st class from Calcutta to Bombay will be Rs. 231-2-6, and 2nd class Rs. 165-9-3.

The attention of artillery officers of the old Indian army is drawn to a letter in another column, ventilating the subject of a regimental bonus or purchasing scheme to accelerate promotion.

The memorial to the late Colonel Baird Smith is now completed, and has been placed in the north-east corner of St. Paul's Church, Calcutta. Photographs of the work are on sale at Calcutta.

The Indian Daily News considers it evident, after what has been reported of the operations of the Wasp and Satellite at Nicobar, that the detachment of the 26th Regiment Native Infantry, under Major Longmore and Lieutenant Forster, lying at Dum-Dum, will not be required to proceed thither. The party sent from the Straits has most successfully carried out the spirit of the orders given to it; and its retaliation upon the savages appears to have been as bloodless as successful.

The Englishman states that in connection with the Abyssinian expedition an effort is to be made to release the crew of the St. Abbs from the hands of the Somalis.

Sir Robert Napier having protested against a division of the Abyssinia expeditionary force being sent from Bengal, that Presidency is only to furnish one mountain train and one mortar battery, the 10th and 12th Bengal Cavalry, and the 23rd N.I., all of which were specially asked for by the Commander-in-Chief.

The Madras papers are principally occupied by the Abyssinian Expedition. The most important items of news from the Presidency will be found elsewhere.

The Abyssinian Expedition is of course the great subject of excitement at Bombay. The pioneer force has sailed. Accounts of the progress of the proceedings will be found under their proper head.

A couple of cases before the Courts have caused a great deal of discussion at the Presidency. Sir Joseph Arnould has sentenced a European to six months' imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 150 for shooting a dog belonging to a native. A strong demonstration has been made in favour of the prisoner. Subscriptions have been raised to pay the fine, and hopes are entertained that the Governor will, in the exercise of his prerogative, annul a sentence which is generally considered far in excess of the crime. On the other hand, Wiseman, the employe whose negligence caused the late melancholy accident on the G.I.P. Railway, has been tried and acquitted, the trial taking place at Poona before a jury of five. The general belief is that, in this case at least, there has been a failure of justice, and an uncomfortable impression prevails that, under existing circumstances, all gross carelessness of the kind cannot be legally punished.

The town of Hoshungabad has been completely inundated by the flooding of the Nerbudda. The water rose to a level with the terrace of the highest building, and large numbers of houses of the best description had fallen. Boats were sailing about the streets, affording succour to the wretched inhabitants. No lives were lost, as the flood came in during the day, but the loss of property must be fearful. What other villages and towns the river has swept away in its career was not known. The line of railway between Khundwah and Hurdwah, adds the Delhi Gazette, "was shortly to have been opened, but no less than six bridges have been swept away by the sudden rise of the streams. A bridge of seven arches has been completely washed away, and not a stone of it left. An iron girder has also disappeared; the girder bridge across the Chota Towah river has been partly washed away, and three other bridges are complete wrecks, and all this within a distance of twenty miles. There is no probability of this extension being open under two years, so that travellers must make up their minds to 'rough it' on the Jubbulpore and Nagpore road."

There have been severe floods elsewhere; and cholera has also been making fatal havoc in several places.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which may be expected in London on Friday next.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

MONDAY, October 21, 1867.

THE PROPOSED RAILWAY BETWEEN BURMAH AND CHINA.

It was stated the other day in an evening journal that Sir Stafford Northcote has declared himself unfavourable to the opening of railway communication between Burmah and China, which it has been for so many years an object of commercial men to effect. We trust there is no truth in the report. Lord Cranborne's policy promised a satisfactory settlement of the question, and we should be sorry to learn that his successor had treated it in a less liberal spirit.

A brief review of the "case" as it stands will give our readers an idea of the importance of the project, which was first set on foot by Captain Sprye, a retired officer of the Indian army, some ten years ago. It was, indeed, soon after the annexation of Pegu and Martaban, in 1852, that it was first proposed that the friendly Shan States adjoining them on the north-east and the west of China should be commercially opened, with the concurrence of the King of Ava, by a railway from the port of Rangoon, across Eastern Pegu and the Birman Shan State of Kiang-Tung, to Kiang-Hung, on the right bank of the Mei-kong, or Upper Kamboja river, near to where it issues from the Chinese western province of Yunnan, a navigable stream for deep-laden boats. It is considered that India as well as England must benefit very largely from the realisation of this design. Without taking into account the rich and well-peopled Shan States, the six most western provinces of China that it is proposed to open contain an area of 551,773 square miles, with a population of 93,651,778, and 428 cities. The two most western of these provinces, and consequently those nearest to British Burmah, viz., Yunnan and Szechuen, alone contain more than thirty-eight millions of people, and are known to yield, with numerous other valuable products, gold, silver, mercury, cinnabar, vermilion, copper, iron, and coal; tea and silk; wool and goats hair; sables and other furs; wheat, rice, and millet; rhubarb and other valuable drugs; indigo and other dyes; insect-wax, bees-wax, the tallow and oil trees, and petroleum; honey, cinnamon, lemons, oranges, and pomgranites; variegated marbles of great beauty; horses and mules; skins and hides; the grass-cloth, or rhea plant; jute and other textile fibres;—products which it is but natural to consider would be provided in any quantities necessary to pay for British and Indian goods, suited both to the people of the north and the south, to whom the Chinese traders would actively convey them.

With regard to the disposition of the people to deal with us, it appears from the report made by Captain McLeod, Assistant-Commissioner at Moumein, to the Government of India, of his mission, in 1836-7, to the Burman Shan States of Kiang Tung and Kiang Hung and the West of China, that the ruling Princes of the two Shan States, their Ministers, chiefs, and people, received him with the most marked cordiality and rejoicing, gave their ready concurrence to the opening of a commercial way from the British Burman frontier to China across their States, and even through their capitals; proffered every facility and assistance that they and their people could render to the work, promised that British merchandise should pass to and fro through their territories free of transit duty, and declared that everything their countries produced should be at the disposal of our merchants—excepting only women and children for sale into slavery, for which purpose they are sometimes carried off by Siamese marauders.

For more than ten years the proposition has been urged by Captain Sprye and his son, now deceased, upon the Indian and Home Governments, and from 1861 to 1865 no less than twenty-six memorials in favour of the proposition, and praying for a survey of the country, were addressed by the principal Chamber of Commerce in this country to the ministers of the day. But Sir Charles Wood, co-operating with the Foreign-office, always discouraged the enterprise, either directly or in an evasive manner, and the replies received were all of an unsatisfactory character. Although the question has nothing to do with party politics, the accession of Lord Derby to power gave hope to the friends of the scheme, and the Chambers of Commerce of Yorkshire and Lancashire addressed a fresh series of memorials to the new Premier on the subject. These were eleven in number, making thirty-seven in all. Upon receipt of the earliest of them the Cabinet took the question into consideration, and the result was a despatch from Lord Cranborne to the Viceroy of India in Council, dated the 29th of September, 1866, directing that a survey of the line should be effected. On the 8th of December Sir John Lawrence answered the despatch, objecting to the survey, upon grounds differing in no respect from those persistently assigned by the old school of Indian monopolists for the policy which so long opposed the opening of the Indian trade, the Overland Route, the introduction of railways, and, in short, all the improvements which have since been adopted with such enormous benefit to the country. Lord Cranborne thereupon again consulted his colleagues, and they generally agreeing with him in dissenting from the Viceroy's objections, his Lordship, on the 7th of February, 1867, addressed a rejoinder to the Viceroy, disposing of his Excellency's opinions, and repeating the order of her Majesty's Government that the survey should be made. Sir John Lawrence had now no alternative but to order a surveying party to be formed. But by this time a good part of the dry season had been lost, and even then the surveying party were not adequately equipped. Their operations, however, up to the setting in of the rains in July, when the party had to return to Rangoon, were highly favourable, the first two hundred and fifty miles having been surveyed with most satisfactory results.

At present there is no direct commerce between the British possessions in the East and the Western Provinces of China, although their borders lie within two hundred and fifty miles of each other. In order to reach those provinces a detour of several thousand miles, by sea and river, is needful; and this, by a direct land communication, would be reduced to a few hundred miles. And not only would such a communication secure immense advantages to both England and India, but it would give to the Chinese visible working proofs of the advantages of railways and telegraphs, without which they are never likely to adopt those inventions. The influence which would be thus exercised upon the China trade generally need scarcely be pointed out.

It is urged also—and we think with good reason—by the friends of the enterprise that the direct line for commerce from the port of Rangoon with the Shans and Western Chinese has become peculiarly important both to India and England on account of the advance of the French to the same parts of Eastern Central Asia from their newly acquired possessions in South Cochin China. In a recent letter of the Times' Calcutta correspondent we are even warned that the French will annex Burmah Proper, or Upper Burmah, as it is often called, but more properly Ava, unless we annex the Shan States, tributary to the King of Ava, situated between Burmah Proper and the Kamboji River, which stream the French appear to have ascended full a thousand miles, from their Cochin

Chinese fortified capital of Saigon, in the Sea of China, to midway between Singapore and Hong Kong. We have no desire here to discuss this part of the question; but we may notice, before concluding, that since the political and commercial importance of the communication has been acknowledged by Government, other routes wholly away from Rangoon are being proposed—one from Upper Assam, for instance, which is peculiarly favoured by the tea-speculators in that district. But we are assured that before Captain Sprye and his lamented son proposed the route which must be called their own, they examined the capabilities and advantages of every other possible route, and chose what there is every reason to believe to be the best. We trust, therefore, that this important project will not once more fall into neglect, either through timid counsels from India or want of proper appreciation at home.

THE PRESERVATION OF TIMBER AGAINST THE RAVAGES OF WHITE ANTS.—I send you a few remarks on the preservation of timber against ravages of white ants. The subject has been a source of much anxiety and inquiry. Several trials were made by boiling the timber in poisonous liquids, but to little or no effect. To see the stack of railway sleepers eaten away by these insects is astonishing, for it was presumed that the vibration caused by the train passing over them would have been sufficient to preserve them. The new sleepers are coal-tarred, but practice is better than precept, and it has been found that coal-tar is no preventative against the ravages of white ants, proved by trials made by the telegraph department. The Government of St. Helena, through the Government of Madras, invited remedies and a reward of £50 for the successful competitor. It is not known who the successful candidate is, but by letters from the secretary to the Government of Madras in the Department of Public Works it rests with Mr. Brown. His specific is "teak oil." The oil is extracted from chips which can be procured at any carpenter's yard where teak timber is used. These chips are put into a pot buried in the ground, with a small hole at the bottom, a small pot to receive the oil is placed below, and a brisk fire laid on; the chips will be found charred, and in the lower pot a small quantity of strong-scented oil. It makes a capital varnish. Timber, coated with this varnish, as reported to the Secretary to the Government of Madras, Department Public Works, by the several executive engineers, even when placed in the nest of white ants was not touched, though timber coated with other specifics was eaten away. In large timber yards this oil would not cost more than ordinary oil. The ends of beams which are embedded in walls should be kept open with a flat tile perforated, to shut out any sparrows making a residence in the apertures. Timber painted hastily before the sap has dried rots rapidly, and some attention should be given to this by all builders, for naturally every one wishes a building to be finished off at once. Timber, though old and in a state of decay, can be renovated by the application of hot linseed oil.—Mofussilite, Aug. 24.

A CEMETERY FOR GAZEEBAD.—We hear that on the representation of the Commissioner of Delhi the Commissioner of Meerut has addressed the Government of the N.W. Provinces, recommending that a cemetery be provided for the European residents at Gazeabad.—Mofussilite, Sept. 14.

BENGAL.

THE ARTILLERY REGIMENTAL PURCHASE SCHEME.

We find the following in the Delhi Gazette of Sept. 10:—

The annual average of mortality in a roll of 208 general officers on the Indian list is about 16.

The number of general officers of Indian brigades of artillery on the promotion of Colonel Whistler to Major-General will be 33, being 9 over fixed establishment. Taking the above death rate, the casualties amongst 33 general officers would be a little over 2½ per annum. Four years from the date of promotion of Colonel Whistler to Major-General the following, who are within 64 of the top in the present Indian list of colonels, would be promoted to major-generals, and give promotion in their respective regiments, viz.:—

BENGAL.—Colonels Broome, Knatchbull, Kaye, Johnson, Carleton, Cox, Smythe, Delamain, Reid, Bouchier, and Olpherts.

MADRAS.—Colonels Simpson, Maitland, Brice, Orr, Rowlandson, and Worster.

BOMBAY.—Colonels Foster, Sealy, and Kembell. Being—Bengal, 11; Madras, 6; Bombay, 8; total, 20 steps.

But if placed on a separate list, with seven supernumeraries to be gradually absorbed, the probable promotion will be as follows. Suppose the separate list formed by the 1st January, 1868:—

Promotions in 1868.—Colonel Simpson, by 1st casualty; Col. Maitland, 2nd casualty; Col. Foster, 3rd casualty.

Promotions in 1869.—4th casualty absorbs a supernumerary; Col. Broome, by 5th casualty; Col. Knatchbull, 6th casualty.

Promotions in 1870.—Col. Brice, by 7th casualty; 8th casualty absorbs a supernumerary; Col. Orr, by 9th casualty.

Promotions in 1871.—Col. Kaye, by 10th casualty; Col. Rowlandson, 11th casualty; 12th casualty absorbs a supernumerary.

Only nine promotions in four years by allowing three instead of two and half casualties per annum.

Here is a dead loss of eight steps to Bengal.

One to Madras and two to Bombay.

The Indian brigades of artillery will suffer immensely by this arrangement. But this is not all, there are two other causes retarding promotion, viz., Regimental colonels on the second list to be absorbed, and the two supernumerary horse artillery lieutenant-colonels ditto.

Promotion in the higher grades must under these conditions be disagreeably and provokingly slow to a degree.

The subjoined nominal roll of colonels and lieutenant-colonels will show exactly the amount of supersession which has taken place, notwithstanding the supposed immense benefits derived by the Indian regiments by the amalgamation.

The ducks are a-head of all, simply owing to the admirable way they have managed their purchase fund.

Now for colonel's allowances.

Succession to off-reckonings has been for some years past since I joined on an average of one vacancy in about twenty-three months. I can give you the names and dates if you wish.

General Lane was the last to succeed to them, vice Augustus Abbott, who died in February, 1867.

General Lane entered the service in 1821; he was thus about forty years before he got his off-reckonings.

Now allowing eighteen months only instead of twenty-three for each of the four next casualties, it will be six years before General J. Abbott, at present third on the roll for colonel's allowances, will get them. One of the four casualties lapses to Government. He will be close upon fifty years' service before he draws his first year's off-reckonings. His juniors in the staff corps, who are entitled to them in the same month (February, 1873) in which he may possibly get them, will average about thirty-eight years' service.

There can be no doubt that we are in a state of absorption; thus:—

There still remain to be absorbed—4 colonel's allowances, one in every four casualties; 7 supernumerary general's, one in every four do.; 2 supernumerary regimental colonel's, one in every three do.; 2 supernumerary lieutenant-col's of horse brigades—I suppose one in three do.

Now it clearly appears to me to be to our advantage to buy at once every offer of retirement we can get, on a bonus not exceeding £1,000. And if our senior officers of forty and thirty-five years' service would only take the £750 and £600 annuities, instead of hanging on £456 for Colonel's allowances, they would not only benefit themselves, but the regiment as well; but it is difficult to persuade elderly gentlemen with strong constitutions, who have weathered forty odd Indian summers, that it will be many years before they can individually obtain the much-wished-for prize.

Mr. Childers' commission may do us some good, but I doubt it. People in England are under the impression that we are deuced well off with our pensions; they don't for a moment consider that these said pensions have been reduced just about one-half by the collapse of our old bonus fund.

THE VICEROY TO THE EX-KING OF OUDE.

MY ROYAL AND ILLUSTRIOUS FRIEND,—My attention has now for many months been anxiously directed to the precarious and embarrassed condition to which your Majesty's financial affairs have been reduced by careless and extravagant management. The debts which have been contracted in your Majesty's name are represented to me as of such enormous and extravagant amount as to be quite beyond the power of your Majesty to discharge, and if the Governor-General in Council should under such circumstances interpose the legal authority of Government to shield your Majesty's property from the ordinary course of law, a great scandal will be created.

The Government of India have accordingly resolved that if no improvement be made by your Majesty within the next six months in the management of your Majesty's finances, and in arrangement for the liquidation of your Majesty's just debts, a commission will be appointed to inquire into those debts, and to make such further legal provision as shall disable your Majesty from incurring further liabilities. In that case I shall be under the necessity of making a large reduction in your monthly allowances to meet the necessary payments.

But before taking any such measures I deem it due to your Majesty to give timely warning, and warning is now accordingly given of the intention of the Government of India. If after the expiration of six months no such improvement shall have been effected as shall afford fair expectation that your Majesty's debts will be liquidated within a reasonable period, and that the management of your Majesty's household and affairs shall henceforth be conducted upon an economical scale, so that no further debts shall be incurred, then at the close of that term it will be incumbent on the Government of India to carry into effect the measures which I have above mentioned. I have fixed the 1st of March, 1868, as the date on which I shall appoint the commission, if by that time the improvement in your Majesty's affairs above indicated has not been accomplished.

I beg to express the high consideration I entertain for your Majesty, and to subscribe myself your Majesty's sincere friend, (Signed) JOHN LAWRENCE.

Viceroy and Governor-General of India.

Simla, Aug. 9, 1867.

The effect of the Viceroy's letter to the ex-King of Oude:—

Our supposition of the use to which the Khuresta of the Viceroy to the ex-King of Oude would be put by the persons about his Majesty appears to have been only too just. On its reception his Majesty is said to have convoked a Council at which its contents were strongly discussed. One man, however, was found to inform the ex-King that the Government of India had no power to interfere in his private affairs, a statement which so pleased the King that he at once raised the salary of the speaker from Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 2,500 per mensem. Without vouching for the truth of this story we may note that it seems to indicate that the Khuresta has given rise to a new grievance on the part of an Indian Prince, which no doubt will, in good time, be duly ventilated in London, provided, of course, that the King is able to pay the expenses of such a course of proceeding.—Delhi Gazette.

PERSIA AND HERAT—OVERTURES FROM THE AMEER SHERE ALI KHAN.

THE FRONTIER, Sept. 3.—I send you the translation of a Purwanah addressed by the Ameer Shere Ali Khan to the Cabul Moonshah of the English Government, dated 11th August. The Moonshah further reports that the Cosid who brought him the Ameer's communication stated verbally that the Ameer gave out that he had only sent his son, Sirdar Mahomed Yakoub Khan, to Meshed to wait on the Shah of Persia as he had come so near to Herat, and had formed no alliance between his Government and that of Persia; that from of old his alliance was with the English, and would continue to be so, and that the English would already have learnt this through their Persian correspondence, which made it the less necessary for him to announce this; that the Persian King had now dismissed his son to Herat with honour and gifts, and whenever he returned safely to Herat, and he (Ameer) had ascertained that he had so returned, he should advance on Cabul. He further announced that he had a force of 16,000 men in seven regiments, 3 of 400 each; 3 of 600 each; 1 of 500 each; Jezailchees 55 Dutehs, each 100, equal to 5,500; Affghan Sowars, 4,000; Heratee and Cabullee Sowars, 2,000; nine troops of regular cavalry; 25 guns, field ("laik sufuree;") Toorkistanee levies as many as were required.

The troops had received five months' pay in cash, and an order for five months' pay in kind. Sirdar Fyz Mahomed Khan was devotedly exerting himself and performing excellent service. The Kokistanee, viz., "Panjsheres," "Saloo Lung," "Ghilzie," "Loghurdee," &c., were all on his side, and in communication with him, and ready to act when ordered. The Ameer evidently preferred sending a full verbal message by the Cosid to committing himself on paper. The letter or Purwanah is genuine. It bears the Ameer's seal:—

TO MOONSHEE MAHOMED BUKHTYAR KHAN.

Be it known to you that I am in ignorance as to the state (or attitude) of your Government. They are great people, if they have forgotten me I cannot forget them. You should occasionally send me news of them, and if occasion should arise for them to require any service performed in this direction, God willing it shall be done.

Camp Tukhtapool, 10th Rubbee-ool-Sanee or 11th August.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE NIZAM.—We have received authentic accounts from the Deccan, which show the baselessness of the reports as to the interference of the Nizam with the courts of justice and the administration. Since the reconciliation of his Highness with Sir Salar Jung, that minister has been left very much alone. The consequence is that, advised and supported by a resident like Sir R. Temple, he is gradually improving the framework of civil government all over the Deccan. It is not true that the Nizam has tried to reintroduce the bad old system into the restored districts of Dharaseo and Raichore. In Berar the administrative improvements have been most extensive. There are now two commissionerships instead of one, and six districts where there were four, while the scale of salaries has been improved and the jails and the dispensaries have been put under inspection. A magnificent cantonment is being made at Trimulgherry, near Secunderabad; the new artillery barracks are described as an architectural spectacle. Sir R. Temple, who does not dream of going home, as has been said, will make a preliminary tour through Berar in November, and after the Akola exhibition will carry out further improvements. The harvest is promising, but till the lakes and tanks are filled the cultivators cannot be free from anxiety.—Friend of India.

MELANCHOLY SUICIDE.—An inquest was held yesterday at 4.30 P.M. on the body of Mr. Charles Crosswell, an assistant to Messrs. Grindlay and Co. The deceased was a member of a chummary of four gentlemen occupying the third or upper floor of No. 4, Chowringhee-road, recently taken by Mrs. Adams, the lodging-house keeper. Mr. Crosswell was found lying on his back in his room with the greater portion of his head blown away. A double-barrelled gun was found between his legs with the ramrod detached, but lying along the barrel, showing that the trigger had been pushed by the ramrod. In a chest of drawers was found a half sheet of note paper, and in the writing of the deceased—"I have been making myself such an absurd fool that I can endure life no longer." Mr. Crosswell, it would seem, had been ailing for some days, and was not generally of cheerful disposition. He was at his office on Saturday evening, and expressed an intention of attending yesterday as usual. His "chums" all left the house at ten o'clock, and immediately afterwards Mr. Crosswell sent his bearer out to the gharry with books to be exchanged and his khitmutgar for something else. These men left him, and immediately afterwards the report of a gun was heard from his room. The paper alluded to above was found under Mr. Crosswell's watch, which appeared to have been placed over it for the purpose of preventing its being blown away.—Englishman, Sept. 10.

ROORKEE COLLEGE.—Our Lucknow correspondent's letter has called to remembrance our omission to notice, as is our wont, the report of the Thomason College, Roorkee, for the session ending August, 1867. The report has lain on our table some days. In the senior department the three first names are those of Lieutenant R. Gordon, 93rd Highlanders; Lieutenant W. S. Lillingston, 7th Hussars; and Lieutenant Landon, General List. We cannot fail to remark that the two first boys in the first English department, Messrs. Nelson and Bird, were educated at the La Martiniere, Lucknow. Our correspondent adds what does not of course appear in the report of the college, that the first of these, Nelson, is the son of a private soldier. He has carried off the college certificate as assistant engineer, the Council of India prize of 1,000 rupees, the Cantley gold medal, Colonel MacLagan's prize for physical science and the Principal's prize for civil engineering! This young man's success is a fact which the rising generation born and educated in this country should ponder over. While the position of the two students of the La Martiniere speaks much for the excellence of that institution, the fact of Nelson being the son of a private soldier ought to have its weight not only with children but with parents too. There may be very many lads capable of doing as well as Nelson, if they will apply themselves and make the best of the opportunities they have, and parents should take heart from this example and endeavour by thrift and perseverance to avail themselves of opportunities of education for their children, such as are very liberally offered in many parts of India. We hope Nelson's example will stimulate many a young lad to fresh exertion, industry and steadiness.—Delhi Gazette, Sept. 10.

THERE IS ONE DRAWBACK TO THE THROUGH ROUTE TO BOMBAY, and that is the arrangement for conveyance of passengers' baggage. Only 80 lbs. can be taken with the traveller on that part of the journey which is made by dak. Now no traveller if he is wise ever sets out for a seaport with the intention of making the overland voyage without taking his luggage with him. Of course if he is very poor he cannot do this, but must depend upon the uncertain destiny of luggage entrusted to a goods train and intermediating agents. We pity the wretch who arrives in Calcutta the day before the steamer sails, and whose luggage is not at hand. He must either give up his passage, wait for a fortnight in Calcutta, buy things in a hurry at an enormous and wasteful price, or set out on the five or six weeks' voyage without any clothes and necessaries. Now a fate of this kind is exceedingly likely to overtake him who tries the through route via Bombay. Never part from your baggage is a golden rule to the traveller from India; but in this case you must, unless you can squeeze it into 80 lbs. This objection will be a fatal obstacle to the general adoption of this route by overland travellers. A follower of Sir Charles Napier, who goes about the world with nothing but a piece of soap, or the adventurer who travels with a shirt in a piece of brown paper, may adopt it, but the generality of mankind who carry with them the ordinary comforts and necessities of life must run the risk of losing their traps. If the dak company would guarantee to convey travellers' luggage by their bullock train in a certain number of days between Jubbulpore and Nagpore, and let people know that they can depend upon getting their things at Nagpore by starting them from Jubbulpore a certain time beforehand, the difficulty may be obviated. But the success of the scheme depends upon a satisfactory arrangement of this kind.—Delhi Gazette.

A CURIOUS RELIGIOUS SECT.—An official account has been recently published of a curious religious sect, called Kubeer Puntees, who are found to the number of about 70,000 in the Belaspore district of Chutteesgarh. The sect is principally composed of the weaver caste, and has converts to its tenets all over India, comprising also a few converts from Hindooism, but these latter seem only to have added Kubeer to the already numerous list of Hindoo deities. Kubeer himself is reported to have appeared on earth about A.D. 1060, and to have continued on earth about 400 years. During his sojourn he performed many miracles, led a life of devotion, and finally disappeared. He left a list appointing forty-four apostles to succeed one another as chief priests of the sect for twenty-five years each after his death, of whom the present high priest is the eleventh only. After the death of the last of these Kubeer himself is again to appear upon earth.

CHOLERA.—A correspondent, writing from Meerut on the 14th, gives the following sad news concerning the cholera:—"The cholera in the Buffs is still very bad, but improving. There have been one hundred and fifty-four cases (men, women, and children) since the commencement of the outbreak, four weeks and four days ago. Of these, I believe, there have been about one hundred and thirty-five or one hundred and thirty-eight fatal cases, and only some ten or twelve who have not actually recovered, but are "in a fair way" to recover. The artillery have not suffered much, and have only had two or three cases since they went into camp. Nearly all the sickness has been confined to the Buffs. The 19th Hussars have only had one case. A Dr.

Gage (lately out from home) who was here analysing the water, but was about to leave for Shahjehanpore, was directed to remain here in case his services were required. He was sent out to the married men's camp to relieve Dr. Gaffney, who had been ordered to Calcutta to join the expedition to the Nicobar Islands as scientific medical officer. Dr. Gage was taken with cholera on Saturday night last and died the following night. Lieutenant Jackson, of the Buffs, also died at the head quarters camp of the regiment on Sunday last. Yesterday (in cantonments), Friday, the 13th inst., Major Fortescue, the cantonment magistrate, was attacked at twelve o'clock, noon, and died at half-past eleven last night. There are no other cases that I know of in cantonments. A sergeant of the Buffs died on Thursday, who had buried his wife the day before and three children two days previously. The whole family swept off!—Delhi Gazette, Sept. 17.

THE LAHORE RAILWAY SCANDAL.—Lieutenant-Colonel N. W. Elphinstone has issued a second series of papers referring to the Lahore Railway scandal. They seem to be still more condemnatory of his conduct than the first. After agreeing to a public inquiry on the 25th of June he opposed it when the commission was appointed, refused to accommodate the members in the railway premises, and would not assent to the examination of his subordinates, though he could not prevent it. Subsequently he did attend, but his refusal, altogether apart from the grounds on which he defends it, was not the act of a gentleman, such as his apologists have represented him to be, too high-minded and generous to be able to conduct the affairs of a public company on strictly business principles. The letter of Mr. W. P. Andrew, the chairman, suspending him and appointing Mr. Harrison, the chief engineer, to act as agent, assigns as reasons, Colonel Elphinstone's "irregularity" in purchasing quantities of waggon ironwork when he was bound to submit all indents to the board; the circumstances under which Mr. Finch, the assistant agent, resigned; and the official inquiry, the result of which, the directors say, they await "with much anxiety." To this, on the 2nd Sept., Colonel Elphinstone angrily replies:—"It is plain, from these facts, that I can scarcely hope to receive from the board even that legitimate consideration and support which, as their agent, I might reasonably have looked for. I shall not, however, the less, but the more, strive to vindicate my conduct against the attack made upon it. Conscious of the integrity of my actions and motives, and that I have served the board and the shareholders faithfully and beneficially, I am not disposed to submit tamely to a course of treatment which I feel I have not in any way merited. My honour and my reputation are of much greater importance, in my estimation, than my office, and I have no desire to retain the latter at any sacrifice of the former."—Friend of India.

BURMAH.—The attitude of Meingoon Mangtha still causes the Burmese King considerable uneasiness. The Prince is said to have collected a force of Shans and Karens at a place called Monay, on the Shan territory. The King has despatched a force of 5,000 men, under his most experienced officers, to hold the former in check, and, if possible, to give a good account of him. The alarm, however, is due to a sense of his own weakness rather than to any strength of his son, and to the fact that his Majesty is decidedly unpopular with the soldiery.

ALL TROOPS WITHDRAWN FROM PROME.—The Government appears so satisfied of the peaceful nature of Burmese politics that it has resolved to abandon the scheme for stationing a regiment of native Infantry at Prome, and has even withdrawn the feeble garrison ordinarily stationed there.

THE NEW THEATRE IN CALCUTTA.—Within the few days that have elapsed since we spoke of the progress made in the construction of the opera-house, a structure has sprung up with wonderful rapidity on the maidan. Mr. Lewis, whose arrival from Australia with a strong dramatic troupe we lately noticed, has determined on a three months' stay in Calcutta, and has accordingly gone to considerable trouble and expense in erecting a substantial building for his performances. It is not yet complete, but, so far as can be seen, it promises to be a commodious, well-ventilated, solid kind of a structure, although only of a temporary character. The weather is just now so uncertain that it may be as well to add that it will be roofed with sheets of corrugated iron, and rendered impervious to rain. A broad flight of steps lead up to the building, from the entrance to which a very good view can be had of the stage, which, by the way, is very ample and imposing. The internal arrangements promise to be very perfect; and, although accommodation is to be provided for nearly a thousand, the reserved seats and stalls will be rendered very comfortable. The structure is a little more than 120 feet long, and of a good height and width. Mr. Lewis expects to have it so far ready to-day that he will throw the temple this evening open for general inspection. Many who feel interested in such matters will no doubt be glad of the opportunity to observe what it promises to be.—Indian Daily News.

CHANGES CONSEQUENT ON MR. CUST'S RETIREMENT.—We believe that it is definitely settled that Mr. Inglis, C.S., now Commissioner of Rohilkund, will succeed Mr. Cust as Junior Member of the Board of Revenue at Allahabad. It is not yet known on whom the much-coveted Commissionership of Rohilkund will be conferred, though rumour suggests the transfer of the Hon. R. Drummond from Agra to the favourite division. If any transfer is to be made we think it ought to be in favor of Mr. Court, the popular and deserving Commissioner of Allahabad, who has more than mere ordinary and negative claims to the consideration of Government. However this may be, a Commissionership will be vacated; and the choice is said to be between Mr. Simson, Secretary to Government, and Mr. Lind, the Judge of Goruckpore.—Pioneer.

WHERE IS CAPTAIN CUNNINGHAM?—The Overland Mail of the 19th August says that "Captain J. M. Cunningham, late paymaster 88th Regiment, who was sentenced by general court-martial in India to be cashiered and to undergo penal servitude for five years, and who was reported in some of the Indian papers to have escaped from custody, arrived at Chatham on August 7, and was delivered over into the custody of the authorities of the convict prison in the parish of Gillingham, to undergo his sentence of penal servitude. Captain Cunningham is well known at Chatham. He was formerly a sergeant in the 18th Royal Irish when the depot was attached to the Provisional Battalion." We need hardly inform our readers that the foregoing is totally incorrect, for Captain Cunningham is still imprisoned at Rawul Pindee.

THE EXPEDITION TO THE NICOBAR ISLANDS.—We learn from the Penang papers that the expedition of her Majesty's ships Wasp and Satellite to the Nicobar Islands has not been attended with any success, so far as the finding of any Europeans in captivity is concerned. A landing was effected in one place, and about three hundred huts, and a considerable number of war proahs, burnt, but no traces of Europeans discovered. The inhabitants fled on the landing of the force.

ANOTHER COURT-MARTIAL ON AN ASSISTANT-SURGEON.—At Morar, Gwalior, on the 8th August, Staff Assistant-Surgeon Fearon was tried by a general court-martial for having been drunk and unable to attend to duty while in medical charge of a detachment of the 93rd Highlanders, and for neglecting to attend Ensign McKechnie, of the 93rd, who died. The court found him guilty of neglecting, Ensign McKechnie, and sentenced him to be severely reprimanded. In commenting on the case Sir William Mansfield "hopes the lesson read to Assistant-Surgeon Fearon will not be lost on him in future and will be carefully applied by the young medical officers of the army, amidst the social temptations, which of all members of the community they are most bound to resist." The sentence is mild.

DEATH FROM AN OVERDOSE OF CHLORODYNE.—A European constable, named Martin, died from an overdose of chlorodyne, taken on Friday, the 13th inst. It appeared that the deceased had been suffering for some time from dysentery, and took the chlorodyne as a remedy. Having, however, taken too strong a dose, the effects soon became visible, and he was removed to the hospital, where he shortly afterwards expired.—Englishman, Sept. 16.

THE KIDNAPPING CASE AT GARDEN REACH.—The case in which the wife of the ex-King of Oude is charged with having purchased two native girls who had been kidnapped from Burdwan has been transferred by Moulvie Abdool Luteef Khan Bahadoor to Mr. Smith, the magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs. An application was first made to have the case transferred for hearing to Col. Herbert (Governor-General's Agent with the ex-King), but this was objected to by the prosecution.

TEA CULTIVATION IN ASSAM AND CACHAR.—We have heard a rumour to the effect that it is the intention of the Viceroy to carry out the scheme which, we believe, he formed some time ago, viz., to send a commission to inquire into all questions affecting the cultivation of tea in Assam and Cachar. It is said that the commission is to consist of a civilian as president, and two non-officials as members. No nominations to these appointments have, we believe, yet been made.

MR. C. MARSHALL.—The Lieutenant-Governor recently represented to the Viceroy the unfitness of Mr. C. Marshall, protector of coolies, for the post he holds. We now hear from Simla that this representation has been concurred in by the Viceroy. Mr. Marshall will be removed on the earliest opportunity, but as he has not exceeded his instructions, the Viceroy considers he should not be dismissed from the service of the Government.—Englishman, Sept. 7.

THE MAHARAJAH OF BURDWAN.—The Governor-General has ruled that the Maharajah of Burdwan is entitled to an allowance of Rs. 10,000 for each season that he has occupied a seat in the Legislative Council as one of its additional members. The Maharajah, as our readers know, has determined to devote the allowance made him to public purposes.—Englishman, Sept. 17.

SALT IMPORTED FROM LIVERPOOL.—A statement recently submitted by the Board of Revenue shows that during the six months ending June 16, 1867, the quantity of salt shipped from Liverpool for Calcutta, on account of private trade, was 90,159 tons, or 24,54,328 Indian maunds. The quantity shipped during the same time in 1866 amounted only to 47,240 tons, or 12,85,978 Indian maunds.

COMPENSATION FOR MAIL ROBBERIES.—We are glad to see the strictness with which Government exacts from native States compensation for robberies of the mail in their jurisdiction. The State of Boondee had lately to pay Rs. 499, which, with similar fees, is to form a general fund for Rajpootana, from which pensions to persons wounded in attacks upon the mails, or to the heirs of persons killed, are defrayed.—Friend of India.

THE MAHARAJAH OF JEYPORE has established a Royal Council at Jeypore, in imitation of the Governor-General's Council, with effect from the 1st of September.

THE MURDER OF MR. FALCON.—The news of the murder of Mr. Falcon, Assistant Magistrate at Tezpor, has been confirmed. As Mr. Falcon slept alone in the house it will be difficult to discover the murderer. A boy suspected of the crime is in custody, and the police are busy endeavouring to unravel the mystery which envelops this tragedy.—Englishman, Sept. 17.

MAJOR LEES contradicts the statement in the Mofussilite that he is a candidate for the office of Director of Public Instruction in the Punjab.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LORD NAPIER is still on his tour through the Southern Districts of the Presidency. On the 8th inst. he reached Caroor, the people there showing an uncommonly lively interest in his visit. Men, women, and children turned out to receive his lordship, and had gaily bedecked the streets, but by a silly arrangement the expectant crowds had to satisfy themselves with a glimpse of his lordship's baggage; his lordship having been driven to his camp outside the town by a suburban road, lest, it was supposed, he might see and feel a little too much of every-day Caroor. Before leaving his lordship held a levee, which was well attended. The same day he again started for Dindigul, in the Madurah District. One result of this visit will probably be that the roads in that part of the country will for some time to come be kept in better order than at present, and receive here and there a bridge or two, as by all accounts his lordship had special reasons for wishing for both.—Madras Times, Sept. 23.

THE STATE OF POOREE AND CUTTACK.—The Officiating Commissioner of Cuttack writes to this Government on the 5th inst. as follows:—"In continuation of my report No. 393, dated August 22, I have the honour to state that all accounts of the country and crops in Pooree and along the Madras frontier are exceedingly favourable. Rain has continued to fall at intervals, and in sufficient quantity. There is a marked and steady improvement in the condition of the people; and the incoming early rice, which has been harvested to a considerable extent, yields a fair average out-turn. Prices of food have slightly improved in Pooree and Khoordah, and considerably so in Cuttack and Balasore. There is a better supply in the markets, and a great reduction in the demand for rice on the Government sale Golabs. The prices of rice continue higher in Khoordah than in any other part of Cuttack division, but this is the result of absence of trade rather than deficiency of stock. Most of the cultivators have ample supply for their own use; and as there are but few rivers in Khoordah, and road traffic at this season difficult, and the people engaged in their fields and cultivation, trade may be said to be stagnant. Cholera has made its appearance in and about Bhoanessur, in Khoordah, but is confined to a limited locality, where the people have been weakened by privations of the past year. Bhoanessur lies between Khoordah and Cuttack, and is chiefly populated by Brahmans and other non-labouring classes. The rivers in Cuttack continue moderately high, but no excessive floods have occurred; indeed, the season has so far been particularly favourable for cultivation, and with continued showers up to the end of this month the crops may be considered as safe, and promising an excellent harvest."

RAILWAY COMMUNICATION BETWEEN PONDICHERY AND CONJEVERAM.—The Pondicherry Government have received intelligence from France, by telegraph, that the Imperial Government has sanctioned the subsidy for the construction of the proposed branch line of railway to connect Pondicherry with Conjevearam. The undertaking will, we believe, be carried out by an English company, and completed in two or three years. Pondicherry will then, perhaps, be linked by railway with all the chief cities of India. Elsewhere our railways are progressing, and the long talked of scheme of connecting Coimbatore and Ootacamund by rail of some kind is again attracting attention. After the railway engineering exploits of Europe and America, a tramway seems more feasible than ever, and, looking at the importance of such a line, nothing but the apathy and indifference of the Government can very long delay it. We fear, however, that with the horror of incurring fresh guarantees before their eyes, our Government will give fresh truth to the old saw that they do these things better in France.—Madras Times.

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS FROM PORT BLAIR.—Port Blair, the convict settlement in the Andaman islands, seems to be far from a secure prison for the desperate Burmese convicts which it is the practice to transport there. In the two years ending July, 1866, thirty per cent. of the Burmese sent to Port Blair effected their escape, in spite of the seemingly insuperable obstacles in the way. Near to the settlement is the large island of Great Andaman; it is covered with jungle, in which pigs, birds, and esculent roots abound, and it is thither the convicts escape. Being accustomed to live in the jungle, they contrive to remain there masters of the situation until fortune brings a passing boat which can be seized or they can construct canoes in the jungle. These latter are of the most fragile construction, but the desperadoes, furnished with a few roots and gourds only, embark in them for the mainland with perfect confidence, though the distance is several days' journey. Reaching land in safety, they become leaders of Dacoits, and commit worse villainies than before. As many as fifty re-captured Port Blair convicts are now in the strong gaol of Rangoon. The number of Burmese convicts transported in any year is about thirty-five. For the future they will be detained in Rangoon, the only gaol in the country that will hold them, until a number being collected, they will be despatched to Bombay, whither the convicts of the Straits Settlements are now sent. These latter are to be transferred to Madras.—Madras Times, Sept. 13.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The conveyance of the Mails is so unsatisfactory that our readers will be glad to learn that there is a prospect of opening a further portion of the North-West Line. It is to the railway that we must look for an amelioration of our present postal shortcomings. We are glad, therefore, to hear that there is every probability of the line being opened as far as Gooty by December next year, when we may look for a considerable acceleration of the Mails between here and Bombay.—Athenæum.

LIEUT. BALDERS.—We regret to announce the death of Lieutenant Balders, of the 18th Hussars, which melancholy event happened at Bolarum on the night of the 10th instant. Deceased had been ill but a short time, and it is supposed succumbed to disease of the liver.—Madras Times, Sept. 23.

FEMALE EDUCATION.—The Supreme Government, at the instance of Miss Carpenter, have intimated that they will be prepared to support any scheme of native female education which may be desired for Madras, provided it has the approval of the natives and their active co-operation. The matter is now in the hands of the Director of Public Instruction, but, as Miss Carpenter's plans are looked upon by the educational authorities here with very little favour, it is more than probable that very little, if anything, will come of it. The notion of a Normal School for training female teachers, on the elaborate plan pursued in the case of males, does not yet accord with the ideas of native Madras; and though several Hindoo gentlemen of enlightened views would be happy to assist in establishing such an institution, there are so many difficulties in the way—the ladies themselves not being the least formidable—that for some time to come the Madras Government, however anxious to undertake the work, will not, we imagine, be able to number amongst its institutions schools for native females. It is believed, however, that when Mr. Arbuthnot, the present Chief Secretary to Government, and late head of the Educational Department, gets into the comfortable seat of member of the Executive Council, he will turn his attention to the subject of female education, and no one doubts that, if he matures a scheme, it will be liberal, practical, and popular.

THE MADRAS CUSTOM-HOUSE.—Public attention has been called to some obstructive innovations at the Madras Custom-House. Hitherto it has been the practice to allow goods to pass through the custom-house on the presentation of the invoice and samples of goods, no packages ever being opened unless an evasion of the duty was suspected. But the collector has suddenly become energetic, and introduced what he is pleased to term "the Bombay and Calcutta system," under which the appraisers have been instructed to open any packages they like. It thus happens that the invoices of British merchants, generally considered above suspicion, are treated as if they were not genuine, and their packages are searched as if the owners were trying to defraud. Besides the annoyance, needless damage is thus caused. The merchants are greatly incensed in consequence, the more so as no explanation is given for the innovation, and is not really in accordance with the practice pursued either at Calcutta or Bombay. Nor is the case made better by the fact that the Chamber of Commerce was not consulted about the change, as it ordinarily is, in anything relating to matters affecting the commerce of the Presidency. Pending reference to Government, a portion of the import trade is at a standstill, the goods accumulating in the Custom-house.—Madras Times.

THE CALICUT EXHIBITION.—In these days of monster exhibitions, when the industrial products of the whole world are displayed, and wondered at by hundreds of thousands of educated people, it seems almost ridiculous to make mention of an agricultural and industrial display made by a small mofussil district in India, whose inhabitants are ignorant of its real intention, and, indeed, almost of the name. It is a fact, however, that such displays which have taken place of late years almost all over the country have added greatly to its material prosperity. A report on the recent Calicut Exhibition exhibits the good they are doing. Its object was, of course, to bring together and expose the products and resources of Malabar, and to show to the people of the district those of other places which they probably would not otherwise see. Prizes were given for the best live stock, grains, wet and dry, woods, fibres, drugs, gums, dyes, oils, machinery, textile fabrics, pottery and clays, and a variety of other subjects. In the staple products of the district the increase that has taken place of late years is in some cases surprising; almost all have considerably increased. From sixty tons of coffee exported from the ports of Malabar in the five years ending 1846, the quantity has gone on steadily increasing till in the same period ending 1866 it has reached nearly 6,000 tons. The export of coir has developed in the same way from about 3,000 tons to more than thrice that quantity, and cocoa-nut oil is now exported to six times the extent it was twenty years ago. In all important points the exhibition was completely successful, and not less so from a social point of view. Such a thing as natives paying for tickets of admission was before never heard of in the district, and was considered preposterous to expect it; the experiment was tried, however, and upwards of 30,000 visitors paid, amongst them three local "Rajahs," with annual rent-rolls of £10,000 a-piece, who had never been in Calicut before, though living but a short distance from it. Mr. Ballard, the collector, to whom, mainly, the success of the Calicut Exhibition is due, has received sanction from Government to hold another at Palghat at the end of the present year. As Palghat is conveniently situated both as regards road and rail, and is of considerable commercial importance itself, while the objects of such an undertaking are now understood by the natives, there is every hope of its proving equally successful.—Madras Times, Sept. 13.

THE FRIGHTFUL SYSTEM OF HUMAN SACRIFICE AND INFANTICIDE which was lately brought to the notice of Government as existing amongst the Lumbadies, or carrier-tribes of interior India, seems on further inquiry to be true. The Inspector-general of Police believes, from personal inquiry in the districts traversed by these unpleasant people, that sorcery, witchcraft, human sacrifice, and infanticide prevail among them. Their social system is entirely distinct from any of the races of India, they allow no outside interference with their laws or customs, and obey no authority but their priests. Each tribe has its own spiritual ruler who is so absolute that his word is obeyed without a murmur and at any sacrifice. Sickness, murrain, or other misfortune occurring amongst the tribe is invariably accompanied by the violent death of one of its members, the execution being "coolly and deliberately carried out in the most summary manner." The Government of Madras have ordered further inquiries to be instituted, and have communicated these facts to the Resident at Hyderabad, and the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, in whose jurisdiction the head-quarters of the tribes are located.—Madras Times, Sept. 13.

CAROLINA PYDDA.—Since the Orissa famine disclosures it has become the fashion rather to consider revenue boards as so many cogs in the Indian Government machine. There is no doubt they can be obstructive when they please, but they can also be progressive. The Madras Board has of late enthusiastically striven to introduce the cultivation of Carolina paddy, and it promises to be of much importance to the country. Professional and amateur cultivators of all sorts have been diligently supplied with seed, and wherever care has been bestowed upon the experiments made with it they have been tolerably uniformly successful. It has proved itself superior to the native kinds now cultivated by requiring less water, yielding greater returns, and arriving at maturity sooner. A point greatly in favour of its introduction is that it is not objected to in the form of rice, as that of Burmah is by the Indian rice consumer. From some recent trials it does not appear, however, to succeed so well in Mysore and in the rice producing tracts of this Presidency.—Madras Times, Sept. 13.

THE LATE FAMINE is, as far as this presidency is concerned at least, quite at an end. Relief committees are now pleasantly engaged in deliberating what they are to do with their surplus funds, and in reckoning up the amount of temporary and permanent good they have effected. It appears from a return just published that in Bellary, during the distress, 261 miles of new roads were constructed, and 216 miles improved; several reservoirs were cleared and enlarged, and 41 towns and villages improved, besides other improvements in the matter of wells, irrigation works, chuttrams, and other permanently useful works. At one period more than 21,000 men, women, and children were thus afforded the means of subsistence, and all at the cost of less than four-and-a-half lakhs of rupees, or little more than double, probably, of the little bill the "bloated aristocrats" who entertained the Sultan in London lately will present to the Indian Exchequer to "propitiate" our Mahomedan fellow tax-payers.

THE COLLECTOR OF SOUTH CANARA has reported to the Government that fever of a very virulent type is prevailing in that district. The mortuary returns show that in May last there were 795 deaths, in June 1,265, and in July 1,434 victims to fever alone, or in the case of the two latter named months more than double the number of deaths which occurred in the most unfavourable months of last year. In some localities the disease has made great inroads on the population, and to some extent has stopped agricultural operations. The outburst is attributed to the peculiar character of the rain-fall; usually the rain comes down in heavy bursts, but this year it has been more evenly distributed, and interrupted by intervals of hot sunshine, very favourable of course to vegetation, but as favourable also to the production of malaria. Vigorous steps are being taken to arrest the mortality by distributing advice and medicines, and affording medical aid. The German missionaries in Canara have, by placing their medical stores at the disposal of the authorities, gained the thanks of the Government, which is prepared to render all the assistance that may be necessary.

THE EXPERIMENTS MADE TO INTRODUCE VALUABLE FISH into the lakes and streams of the Neilgherries about a year ago turn out to have been successful so far as the fish introduced from the low country are concerned. Dr. Day, the experimenter, has reported to Government that several species of carp have flourished and propagated to an extent which leaves no room to doubt that the waters of the Blue Hills can very easily be stocked with low-country fish. Further experiments are being made with the gouramy, a fine fish lately brought hither from the Mauritius. It came originally from China, and breeds readily in warm climates, is exceedingly delicate eating, and at two years old weighs from ten to fifteen pounds. It is altogether an exceedingly accommodating fish, allowing itself, amongst other things, to be transported in a bucket; it is likely, therefore, that it and the valitudinarian by the Willow Bund will ere long grow tolerably well acquainted.

THE ABYSSINIAN AFFAIR PROGRESSES.—On the 15th Sept. the pioneer portion of the expeditionary force left Bombay for Massowah, the few troops of which it is composed exciting unusual interest in their progress through the city to the vessels. It consists of about a hundred infantry, forty cavalry (native) and fifty sappers and miners, conveyed with a full complement of officers and stores in three vessels, the Euphrates, the Coromandel, and the Sind. The Euphrates will make a particular survey of the coast near Massowah. Meanwhile the most active preparations for the departure of the main body are being made. It is now settled, we understand, that it is to comprise between 14,000 and 15,000 men. It will be commanded by Sir Robert Napier, Commander-in-Chief of Bombay, and the troops will be divided into two brigades commanded respectively by Major-General Staveley and Major-General Malcolm. The exploring party is under the command of Colonel Phayre, of Poona, and is accompanied by Colonel Merewether as political agent. The European corps mentioned as having been selected for the expedition are the 4th King's Own, 26th Cameronians, and 38rd and 45th Regiment, besides Cavalry and Royal Artillery, now in India, and a rocket battery from England. The Madras army is still looking for a share in the work, though amongst the many native regiments named as having been selected no Madras corps yet appears. The Commissariat party will leave Madras on the 27th inst. During the absence of Sir R. Napier, Major-General the Hon. Alexander Gordon, now commanding the Poona Division, will act as Commander-in-Chief of Bombay.—Madras Times.

THE RAJAH OF MYSORE AND THE STAR OF INDIA.—We learn that Lord Napier has declined to invest the Rajah of Mysore with the Order of the Star of India at Mysore. Unfortunately there exists no precedent to justify the Governor of Madras in visiting the Maharajah's capital for such a political purpose. It was, we believe, the original intention of his lordship that the investiture should take place at Madras, but he at the same time was willing to meet the Rajah half-way at Bangalore, should the latter be unable to proceed to Madras. Further than Bangalore his Lordship has, we believe, declined to go, and as matters stand at present the Officiating Commissioner of Mysore will have to perform the ceremony. This will not, of course, endow the Order of the Star of India with the same amount of prestige that would accrue to it in the eyes of the Rajah and his countrymen if the "Burra Lord Sahib" were to come from Madras for the purpose of presiding at the investiture. We think this is matter for regret. Precedent is all very well in its way, but Lord Napier has had a bout with it before now, and the present occasion seems to us a fitting one for another. The Rajah is aged and infirm. If he travelled as far even as Bangalore he would probably do so at the risk of his life. It would do much to smooth the declining years of a prince whose career has been only singular from his unflinching attachment to the British name, and whose melancholy story is no alight blot on the history of British rule in India, if the Governor marked such an event with his presence. We hope that Mahomet—we beg his lordship's pardon—will go to the mountain.—Madras Times.

DACOITIES AND ROBBERIES.—An official statement of the dacoities and robberies for the year 1866—a year which will long be remembered as one of much general distress—shows a considerable increase of crime in this Presidency. In dacoity there were 1,025 offences in 1866, against 571 in the preceding year, the average loss by each offence being Rs. 184. The greatest increase occurred in Bellary, the region of greatest distress. In the coast districts of Godavery, Kistna, Nellore, Malabar, and Canara there was an important decrease, as also in Trichinopoly. A marked improvement has taken place in detecting crime, and in some districts gang robbery was thoroughly held in check. The proportion of convictions to offences was 44·4 per cent. in the past year, against 35·3 in 1865, and 27·2 as the average of the three preceding years.

THE NEILGHERRY PUBLIC LIBRARY.—The ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of the new building for the Neilgherry Public Library took place on the 28th inst., in the presence of a large assemblage of eager spectators. The boys of the Ootacamund Grammar School and Lawrence Asylum were marched to the ground, and took an interesting part in the programme of the day. The Rev. S. T. Pettigrew, M.A., chaplain of the station, and Dr. Pope, the energetic secretary to the library, assisted in the ceremony. The foundation-stone was laid by the Hon. J. Arbuthnot.—Neilgherry Excelsior, Aug. 31.

MADRAS TROOPS FOR BOMBAY.—The following are the Madras regiments that have been selected for garrison service in the Bombay Presidency:—The 12th Regiment is to be moved from Kamptee to Poonah, the 17th Regiment from Quilon to Surat, the 39th Regiment from Palamcottah to Dharwar, and the 40th Regiment from Cannanore to Kurrachee. With regard to other movements of the Madras army, the 2nd Regiment is under orders to leave Madras for Waltair; the 7th Regiment is to quit Raipore for Rangoon, the 11th Regiment going from Berhampore to Raipore. The head-quarters and one wing of the 22nd Regiment will leave Bangalore to garrison Palamcottah. The 23rd Regiment leaves Trichinopoly for Quilon; the 26th Regiment comes from Rangoon to Trichinopoly; the head-quarters and one wing of the 31st Regiment proceed from Waltair to Berhampore, the other wing to Sumbulpore. The 35th Regiment, which now garrisons Penang, where they have had a little serious work lately, is to come to Madras; the 38th Regiment, now at Cuddapah, being under orders to take their place at Penang. The wing of the 37th Regiment at Sumbulpore is to be removed to Cuttack. The above changes are probably about the last work (!) that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant will have to do with the Madras army. Sir Gaspard Le Marchant will quit the delights of his Indian hill residence about the 9th of next month, preparatory to his retirement and departure for England by the first P. and O. steamer in October.—Madras Times.

COOLIE TRAINS.—At the suggestion in the first instance of the board of directors in London, the Madras Government have sanctioned the introduction, as an experimental measure, of running coolie trains on the Madras Railway, at the reduced rate of two pices per passenger per mile. The carriages are to be of the most inexpensive character, without seats, and are to be attached to goods trains running at low speeds. The experiment is to be tried for six months.

SHIPWRECKS, like misfortunes generally, never seem to come single on the Coromandel coast; in our last we had to chronicle the wreck of a French ship, near Sandras, and now that of the British ship Douglas, bound from Coconada to Madras, with a large cargo of rice. Four vessels, including the Sacramento, Yankee war-steamer, have now within a short time been wrecked near the same place.

BOMBAY.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.

Preparations for the Abyssinian campaign are being made in Bombay with all the despatch and foresight for which the heads of departments in India, unfettered either by War-office or Horse Guards, have on all occasions been noted. Though it has not yet been officially announced what regiments are to compose the force, it is known that Sir Robert Napier has now made his selection, a task the difficulty of which consisted in determining, not what regiments to take, but what to leave behind, when all were so desirous of accompanying him. The force, as at present arranged, will, we believe, consist of four European regiments—the 4th King's Own, the 26th (Cameronians) from Belgaum, the 33rd Regiment from Kurrachee, and the 45th—and a large force of Native Infantry, the details of which are given below. All the available Bombay native Sappers will also go, assisted by as many from the Madras army as can be spared. Madras was also requested to furnish a certain number of smart commissariat officers, and the Commissary-General has placed at the disposal of the Bombay Government the services of Major Bardin, assistant commissary-general; Captain Hawkes, deputy assistant commissary-general; Captain Heysham, deputy assistant commissary-general; and Lieutenant Smith, sub-assistant commissary-general. The latter officer will proceed in charge of 500 dhooly-bearers, and the officers have the privilege of selecting non-commissioned officers from the staff of the Commissariat to proceed with them.

The force from Bengal and Northern India will consist of one Mountain Train Battery, one Mortar Battery, 10th Bengal Cavalry, 12th Bengal Cavalry, and 23rd Punjab Native Infantry (Pioneers). It was the wish of the Supreme Government that the force should be composed of two columns, one from Bengal and the other from Bombay—a wish in due accordance with the Supreme Government's preponderating Bengal and Punjabee leanings. The probability of half the force being drawn from the most distant parts of India seemed to receive confirmation from a telegram forwarded by Reuter, which, in professing to enumerate the various corps for the expedition, mentioned several regiments of Punjabee and Bengal troops. These proposals to give the Bengal army half the share in an undertaking which, both geographically and politically, strictly pertains to the Bombay Presidency, have been very properly set aside by the firmness of Sir Robert Napier since he has been nominated to the command of the expedition. Although not a Bombay officer, his Excellency protested against this interference with the proper claims in this matter of the army of the Bombay Presidency, and his representations have had their due effect.

The principal staff officers accompanying the expedition will be as under:—

Commander-in-Chief.—H.E. Sir R. Napier, K.C.B.
Military Secretary.—Col. Dillon, Rifle Brigade.
Aide-de-Camps.—Capt. R. C. Napier and W. Scott.

Deputy Adjutant-General.—Col. Kirby, D.A.G.
Deputy Quartermaster-General.—Col. Phayre, D.Q.M.G.

Assistant Quartermaster-Generals.—Major R. Baigrie, Capt. A. G. F. Hogg, and Capt. Pottinger, R.A.

1st Division.—Major-Gen. Sir C. Staveley, K.C.B., commanding.

2nd Division.—Major-Gen. Malcolm, C.B., commanding.

1st squadron 3rd dragoon guards, 3rd regiment light cavalry, 2nd regiment Sinde horse, C.E. royal artillery, E-14 do., 2-21 do., 3-21 do., a rocket battery from England, native mountain train battery from Malligam, mountain train battery and a mortar battery from Northern India, 10th regiment Bengal cavalry, 12th, do., 8 companies Bombay sappers and miners, 3 companies Madras sappers and miners, H.M.'s 4th (King's Own) regt., 26th Cameronians, 33 (Duke of Wellington's) regiment, 45th (Nottinghamshire) regiment, 23rd Punjab infantry (pioneers), the 2nd, 5th, 8th, 10th, 18th, 25th, 27th (Belooches), and 29th (Belooches) Bombay native infantry.

The pioneer force, consisting of forty men of the 3rd Native L.C., nearly one hundred of the 21st N.I., and a company of Sappers and Miners, left for Abyssinia on the morning of September 16th, in the steamers Coromandel and Euphrates—the former under command of Lieut. Hewitt, I.N., the latter in charge of Lieut. Dawes, I.N., as transport officer. The following officers forming part of the expedition proceeded in the Euphrates:—Lieut.-col. Merewether, C.B., Lieut.-col. Phayre, Lieut.-col. Wilkins, R.E., Major Baigrie, Major Mignon, Capt. W. Goodfellow, Capt. B. H. Pottinger, Lieut. R. A. Jopp, R.E., Lieut. J. Mortimer, Assistant-Surgeon H. T. Martin, and the men of the 21st N.I., and twelve horses; Surgeon Lumsdaine and Lieut. Hannell proceeding in the Coromandel with the men of the 3rd L.C., 154 mules, and 50 horses. The steamer Scinde likewise proceeded with the force as a despatch boat, but was obliged to return after being three days out, in consequence of having met with contrary winds and an unusually heavy swell. Her place will be supplied by the P. and O. Company's steamer Norna, Captain Barlow, which proceeded to Aden this morning. On Sept. 21st the screw steamer Great Victoria proceeded to Massowah with despatches and stores, whence she is to go on to Suez for mules.

The next portion of the expeditionary force, consisting of 3rd Light Cavalry, the 10th Native Infantry, the 3rd and 4th Companies Sappers and Miners, and No. 1 Company Native Artillery, with Mountain Train, will sail from Bombay on the 5th or 6th of October. The 3rd Light Cavalry will embark in the sailing transports Star of the North, Queen of Australia, Atmosphere, and Hydree. The strength of the 3rd Light Cavalry will be nine European and fourteen native officers, 390 non-commissioned, rank and file, 480 followers, and about 450 horses.

The 10th Native Infantry will embark in the steam transports India and Dalhousie, and the 3rd and 4th Companies of Sappers and Miners in the steam transport Ottawa. The above details will leave Poona and Kirkee by a special train on the 3rd proximo, arriving at Bombay on the evening of the 4th idem. The 10th Native Infantry consists of seven European and fifteen native officers, 663 Native Cavalry and rank and file, and seventy-two followers. The 3rd and 4th Companies, Sappers and Miners, consist of two European and four native officers, twelve Native Cavalry rank and file (European), 228 Native Cavalry rank and file (native), and fifty-four followers. The Native Artillery, with Mountain Train, consist of three European and three native officers, one Native Cavalry European officer, seventy-three Native Cavalry rank and file (native), eighty-two followers, three horses, and forty-seven mules. The company will leave Munmar on the 3rd October, reaching Bombay on the 4th.

We believe it is not yet settled where the point of debarkation will be, but it is tolerably certain it will not be at Massowah. In all probability Amphilla Bay, further south than Massowah, will be chosen, on account of its more spacious anchorage, which at Massowah is far too limited to accommodate so many ships. The march to the highlands of Abyssinia from Amphilla would also be somewhat shorter than it would be from Massowah, though it would on that account probably also be more abrupt than the latter. But no such dread of the journey and of its hardships is experienced on this side of Suez, as, judging from the newspaper correspondence, appears to be entertained at home. Visions of whole regiments perishing before the attacks, not of Theodorus and his disaffected army, but of the guinea-worm and the tsetse fly, are regarded as the dreams of people whose knowledge of the country is by no means commensurate with their powers of imagination. Of course difficult and trying marches, scarcity of water and provisions, and an intensification of the other hardships incidental to almost every campaign are expected; but being forewarned our officers are forearmed, and these difficulties will be overcome.—Times of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LATEST FROM THE PERSIAN GULF.—The storm which when our last overland summary was despatched was hanging over the Persian Gulf has broken, and, after threatening to sweep the Imaum of Muscat from the throne to which he had waded through the blood of his father, has passed away, leaving the political atmosphere tolerably clear for the present. Syud Thoorkee, brother of the murdered Imaum, who, at the head of a large force, had long been watching his opportunity to avenge the death of his brother, took possession of the town of Muttra on Aug. 31. This Muttra is a town of considerable importance and wealth, situated at the bottom of a bay of the same name, and only some two and a-half miles from Muscat, with which place it is connected by a road. Notwithstanding that it is thus a position of some consequence, Thoorkee met with but slight resistance from the friends of Syud Selim, if indeed that arrant coward can be said to have friends. Having once secured a footing, there is no doubt but Thoorkee would have immediately advanced upon Muscat itself, and made it an easy prey, but for the presence of Colonel Pelly in the Gulf. As the avenger of blood, Thoorkee is without question the favourite of the people; indeed one dauntless dame, Selima by name, is said to have put herself at the head of 100 of her female retainers, and to have marched under the blood-red flag against the effeminate and parricidal Imaum. On the opportune arrival of her Majesty's steam frigate Octavia in the gulf on a cruise, Colonel Pelly held a consultation with Commodore Heath, the result of which was that the vessel steamed up to Muttra, when an ultimatum was despatched to Thoorkee informing him that, unless he gave up possession of the town, the Octavia would open fire upon him. Thoorkee at once confided himself in the hands of Colonel Pelly, for whom he professed to entertain a profound respect, and, being accommodated with a passage in the Octavia, came to Bombay, intending, it is believed, to have a conference with the Bombay Government. Negotiations entered into between the rival Syuds have secured to Thoorkee an annual pension, though it is doubtful whether he will rest satisfied with this, knowing that the whole of Oman favours his claims, and detests his nephew; but the British Resident will doubtless insist on the maintenance of the settlement now made.—Times of India.

OUTBREAK OF CHOLERA IN SCINDE.—The following notification appears in a Government Gazette extraordinary of Sept. 12:—"His Excellency the Governor in Council having received a report of cholera being prevalent in Scinde, it is needful to take precaution against its introduction by vessels coming thence to this port. The conservator of the port will give immediate notice to the health officer of the port of the arrival of any vessel from the Indus and Kurrachee; and the health officer will immediately inspect the vessel and question the master as to the sanitary condition of the vessel, and of the persons on board; and if there be sign of the disease on board he will take such steps as in his judgment shall seem needful for isolation of the vessel, or of the whole or any of the persons on board. No one should be allowed to leave the vessel before the health officer shall have given his permission. In case of a vessel from the Indus and Kurrachee touching at any other port within the presidency of Bombay, the chief civil officer present shall take corresponding means to ascertain if there be any sign of cholera on board, and to prevent such communication as would be liable to introduce it on shore."—Bombay Gazette.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.—By the Koina which arrived in Bombay harbour on September 18th, we have additional news of the Abyssinian captives, and as so many unfounded rumours have been published regarding them we may as well here state in passing that the information we are enabled to lay before our readers is authentic, and may be implicitly relied on. The former intelligence which we published on September 7th brought down our knowledge concerning the Magdalla prisoners to the 1st July, at which date they were "all well." Our intelligence received yesterday comes down to July 27th (nearly a month later), with the same favourable report of their health. We are also informed that the rains have set in. The latest date from King Theodore's camp is July 11th, at which date his Abyssinian Majesty was at Debra Tabor; heavy rain was then falling, and those prisoners who are with Theodorus were "all pretty well" and were "well treated," but the king's manner had "become cold and indifferent." The country round about Debra Tabor was much disturbed, and direct communication between the king's camp and the coast was entirely cut off. All communications from the king's camp reached the coast by way of Magdalla, which shows that the rumour so industriously spread abroad about the Magdalla captives being cut off from Theodorus has no foundation in fact, or if it ever had the separation was only temporary. No letters have been received by Government from the king himself, but Theodorus states that he has no intention of giving up Mr. Rassam "unless he is obliged to." This of course means nothing more nor less than that he will fight, and we are informed (though we do not state this with the same certainty of accuracy as we give the preceding intelligence) that Theodorus fully expects that he will bring about a coalition between himself and the chiefs, so that the whole may fight in a common cause. The expedition, therefore, if the King can carry out this expectation, will not walk through Abyssinia without trying the mettle of Theodorus and his soldiers. Of course there is only one issue to it in the end, his entire defeat and the annihilation of his power. His infatuated resolve to try the chances of war only shows that the King knows nothing of the irresistible might of the British empire, the leniency and imbecile coaxing of whose Government he has evidently regarded as synonymous with weakness. It demonstrates also the error of that policy which extends to Oriental tribes and potentates the courtesies that are practised between the civilised nations of Europe and are certain to be mistaken in Asia, instead of addressing their intellect or ears in a language that admits of no misinterpretation, and that will at once preserve our national honour and make the extent of our power known through all the East.—Bombay Gazette.

ACQUITTAL OF THE ENGINE-DRIVER WISEMAN.—The trial of James Wiseman, the driver of the runaway engine by which the late lamentable accident near Lanowlee—resulting in the death of the late E. I. Howard, Esq., and two other persons—was caused, was heard on Tuesday last (the 24th ult.), in the Sessions Court, Poona, before F. Lloyd, Esq., Judge and Sessions Judge, and the following jury:—Mr. W. Lester, foreman; Mr. J. Poyntz, Mr. C. Swansegar, Mr. S. Swansegar, and Mr. C. Mendonca. The members of the jury were not sworn before the case was proceeded with, this formality not having been as yet, we believe, introduced into the criminal procedure of the Mofussil Courts. The Court was crowded throughout the day, and the proceedings lasted from ten in the morning until six o'clock in the evening. The prosecution was conducted by the Crown prosecutor; and the prisoner was defended by a native vakeel. The charge against the prisoner was, "that he, on the 29th

August, at Lanowlee, negligently omitted to do what he was legally bound to do. The charge having been read to the prisoner, he was asked by the Judge "if he pleaded guilty, or if he wished to be tried." The prisoner replied that he wished to be tried. The counsel for the defence on behalf of the prisoner said that the prosecution had failed to prove anything against his client; that the accused had been prosecuted simply because the company were afraid of the heavy damages likely to be obtained from them in a suit already filed by the friends of the late lamented Mr. Howard. The counsel concluded a long speech by saying that his client had not been proved guilty of the offence with which he had been charged. The Crown prosecutor, in reply, ridiculed the statement of prisoner's counsel that the prosecution had been got up in order to avoid the infliction of damages upon the company. The Judge then briefly reviewed the whole evidence, and explained the law as bearing upon the charge against the prisoner. The jury then retired to consider their verdict. Their deliberations lasted forty minutes, when they declared "that, in the opinion of the majority (four in number) of the jury the prisoner was not guilty." The prisoner was therefore discharged. The verdict has caused a great deal of surprise. The Bombay Gazette says:—"We should be sorry to affirm that there has been a miscarriage of justice in connection with the Lanowlee accident; but until the full notes of the Judge's summing up are published the report of the trial will be unintelligible. Perhaps the jury had come to the conclusion that three or four more people besides Wiseman should have been placed at the bar, and that it was not worth while to make a victim of one offender only. It has yet to be shown that Wiseman had sufficient assistance, though if he had not, it might be his particular fault at the time that he was short-handed. So far as at present appears, the public must regard the whole investigation as exceedingly unsatisfactory."

THE PECULIARITIES OF THE ABYSSINIAN CONFESSION.—The British Ambassador to the Court of Shoa in 1842, who seems to have used every endeavour to obtain the most accurate information regarding the manners and customs of the people, the policy and Government of State, and the religious ceremonies and discipline, thus enunciates the peculiarities of the Abyssinian Confession:—"That the Alexandrian faith is the only true belief. That faith, together with baptism, is sufficient for justification; but that God demands alms and fasting as amends for sin committed prior to the performance of the baptismal rite. That unchristened children are not saved. That the baptism of water is the true regeneration. That invocation ought to be made to the saints; because sinning mortals are unworthy to appear in presence of God, and because if the saints be well loved they will listen to all prayer. That all sins are forgiven, from the moment that the kiss of the pilgrim is imprinted on the stones of Jerusalem; and that kissing the hand of a priest purifies from all sin. That sins must be confessed to the priest,—saints invoked,—and full faith reposed in charms and amulets, more especially if written in an unknown tongue.—That prayers for the dead are necessary, and absolution indispensable; but that the souls of the departed do not immediately enter upon a state of happiness, the period being in exact accordance with the alms and prayers that are expended upon earth."—Powla, Sept. 5.

THE "WAUBOJEEG," Captain Kennedy, of Liverpool, was destroyed by fire in Bombay harbour on the morning of September 24.

SHOOTING A DOG AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.—Charles O'Brien Peacocke has been sentenced by Sir Joseph Arnould to imprisonment for six months and to pay a fine of Rs. 150, or undergo a further imprisonment of six months, for having fired at and killed a dog at Tannah on the 4th June last. The sentence has created great dissatisfaction in Bombay. The Gazette says:—"We have received a great many letters, some of which we publish to-day, in reference to the case of dog shooting disposed of last week by Sir Joseph Arnould. While we think the punishment very severe, we are also bound to say that Peacocke has been guilty of an act of gross and wanton cruelty for which he should be severely punished. There is no ameliorating circumstance in the case whatever; the animal, apparently a well-favoured brute, was simply passing Peacocke's compound gate with his master, and as dogs will do, trotted quietly a few paces inside the gate, whereupon he was shot by Peacocke, who by that act proves himself to be a hardened ruffian. We should not therefore be unjust to Sir Joseph Arnould, but at the same time we consider the penalty greater than the offence, and have willingly thrown our columns open for subscriptions that the fine may be paid, and the second six months' imprisonment avoided. The amount we acknowledge to-day shows the strong general feeling on the part of the public that the sentence far exceeds the crime."

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.—Mr. T. J. Dewar, C.E., of the G.I.P. Railway, at present engaged on Bhoore Ghaut works, has had a most miraculous escape. About a fortnight ago, while coming down the Ghaut, the lorry on which he was travelling acquired a speed of about twenty-five miles an hour, and in going round a curve it was shot off the line, and Mr. Dewar and a native, who was on the lorry with him, were precipitated over a retaining wall twenty feet high. The native died from the injuries he received the same night, but beyond a few bruises Mr. Dewar suffered no harm.—Builder, Sept. 5.

REFUSAL OF GOVERNMENT TO APPOINT A COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE THE AFFAIRS OF THE BANK OF BOMBAY.—We understand that the Government of Bombay, in answer to the petition presented some time ago by shareholders of the Bank of Bombay, praying for the appointment of a commission to investigate the causes of the loss of the greater portion of the Bank's capital, has expressed its willingness to aid the shareholders in any steps they might take of themselves with such an object in view—as by the appointment of a committee for instance—but has intimated that it feels itself precluded from complying with the terms of the petition.—Bombay Gazette.

THE REPORTS OF THE COTTON CROP in the Central Provinces and Khandeish are very favourable, the area under cultivation in the district being estimated at about one-fourth more than last year. In the Ahmedabad district (Gujarat) the crop does not promise very favourably, owing to the lateness of the rainy season.

THE THIRD ANNUAL "SOLDIERS' INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION" was opened at Poona on the 13th of September, under the auspices of H.E. the Governor of Bombay and H.E. Sir Robert Napier. The exhibition was most successful.

THE POONA FRAUDS.—The trial of the prisoners implicated in the enormous frauds on the Poona branch of the Bank of Bombay has already lasted a fortnight, the case for the prosecution not yet being closed.

OWING TO THE PREVALENCE OF CHOLERA IN IND all vessels arriving at Bombay from Kurrachee have to be inspected by the health officer of the port, before communicating with the shore.

THE STATE OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH in Bombay continues very satisfactory.

CHOLERA has been very prevalent in various parts of India, and in Cabul hostilities between the sons of Dost Mahomed have been suspended on account of its ravages among their troops.

MR. R. H. SHOWELL.—We are glad to state with certainty that Mr. R. H. Showell, second magistrate of police, though seriously injured in the late railway accident near Lanowlee, is progressing favourably.

NO MESSAGES CONTAINING FIGURES are to be received for the future by Indo-European Telegraph unless they also specify the stocks to which they refer.

THE COMPROMISE WITH THE CREDITORS OF THE EASTERN FINANCIAL, under which the creditors will receive six annas in the rupee, has, on appeal, been confirmed by the Bombay High Court.

CHOLERA of a virulent type has appeared among the Royals at Nusserabad, but telegrams of 24th, 25th, and 26th, report a great improvement.

THE BOMBAY SHAREHOLDERS of the Commercial Bank are taking steps for resisting payment of the proposed £10 call.

Para. 1. I have received and considered in council your letter dated May 16 last, No. 128, forwarding copy of a general order which you have issued in accordance with the instructions contained in my despatch No. 95 of March 30, regarding the line promotion of officers of the Indian army belonging to cadres who have decided not to join the staff corps.

2. In that despatch I referred to the position of the younger officers on the general lists of the three presidencies, and expressed an opinion, although I did not desire to interfere with the immediate prospects of these officers in the matter of promotion, that it would be fair and reasonable to introduce some rule with a view to regulating their rise to the higher grades in such manner as to secure the officers of other branches of the service from supersession to any serious extent.

4. I have determined that the officers of the general lists of cavalry and infantry in the three presidencies shall remain on the general list, and shall rise to the substantive grade of captain under present regulations, but that their promotion to the higher grades shall be regulated by length of service under the staff corps rules, without reference to any special service. These officers, however, will continue to be eligible for appointment to the staff corps under the ordinary rules.

Court Martial.

STAFF ASST. SURG. G. FEARON.

Head Quarters, Simla, Sept. 7.

At a general court martial, assembled at Morar, Gwalior, on Aug. 8, Staff asst. surg. G. Fearon, doing duty with a detachment of the 93rd regt. of foot (Sutherland Highlanders), was arraigned on the following charge:—

Charge.—With conduct highly unbecoming the character of a med. officer, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in the following instances:—

1st. In having at 'Seepree, on the night of June 10, when in med. charge of a detachment of the 93rd Highlanders, been drunk, and unfit to perform his professional duties

2nd. In having, at the same place and time, as stated in the first instance, neglected his duty, by failing to attend upon the late Ens. W. B. McKechnie, 93rd regt., a patient under his charge, and dangerously ill, from about 7 p.m. until about 11 p.m., at which time the said officer died; he, Asst. surg. Fearon, being, at the time, resident in the same house as the deceased, and having previously given orders that no food was to be administered to him until he, the asst. surg., came in person to administer it.

Finding.—The court is of opinion that the prisoner, Staff asst. surg. G. Fearon, is Not guilty of the 1st instance of the charge, and does acquit him thereof.

Guilty of the 2nd instance of the charge, with the exception of the words "and having previously given orders that no food was to be administered to him until he, the asst. surg., came in person to administer it," of which it acquits him.

Guilty of the preamble of the charge.

Lieut. col. Royal Art., President.

Morar, Gwalior, Aug. 14.

Approved and confirmed.

Gen., C.C. in India.

Head Quarters, Simla, Sept. 2.

REMARKS BY H.E. THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

The broad issue placed before the Court, as developed in the two instances of the charge, is, whether the death of the late Ensign McKechnie was accelerated by the neglect and alleged intemperance of the prisoner.

The C. in C. in India understands the verdict, while acquitting the prisoner of drunkenness on the occasion forming the basis of the charge, to relieve him of the grievous imputation of having been the cause of the acceleration of death of his patient and brother officer; but it finds him guilty of conduct highly unbecoming a medical officer, in failing to give sufficient attendance to a patient dangerously ill, when under his medical charge.

Notwithstanding the very positive and consistent evidence afforded by the prosecution, H.E., after the most patient consideration of the proceedings, arrives at the conclusion that the Court has fairly and rightly appreciated this difficult and most painful case, and has acted justly in relieving Assistant surgeon Fearon from so much of the charge as it acquitted him of, while it has shown a proper discrimination in the remainder of the verdict.

H.E. considers the sentence very lenient; but he is willing to hope that the awful lesson, thus read to Assistant surgeon Fearon, will not be lost on him in future, and that it will be carefully applied by the young medical officers of the army, amidst the social temptations, which of all members of the community they are most bound to resist.

The prisoner is hereby severely reprimanded, according to the sentence of the Court. He may now be released from arrest and return to his duty.

C. in C. in India.

THE OUTWARD CALCUTTA MAIL STEAMER ON A REEF.—On Monday, Sept. 16, intelligence was received at the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation office that the steamer Surat, which was timed to leave Suez on the 5th Sept. with the outward Calcutta mail, had struck on a reef to the northward, about 90 miles from Suez, to the northward of Torr. Assistance having been sent for to Suez the steamer Nubia, which was lying in harbour, was at once despatched to the stranded vessel, and on the 11th took off the passengers and mails, and conveyed them back to Suez. The vessel, we believe, is not seriously injured, and will very probably be got off.—Bombay Gazette.

HOME.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—We understand that Lord Stanley has addressed an ultimatum to King Theodore, intimating that all friendly relations with him are broken off by the British Government.—An order has been received at the head-quarters of the Royal Engineer establishment, directing a party of non-commissioned officers and sappers to be selected for service in Abyssinia, where they will be employed in well-sinking operations to provide water for the troops composing the expeditionary force. The non-commissioned officers and sappers selected for this service are ordered to undergo a course of instruction at head-quarters, with the other detachments ordered to proceed to Abyssinia. The whole of the apparatus to be used by the various parties of Royal Engineers will be tested at the Royal Engineer establishment, under the direction of the officials connected with the various departments, before they are sent to Abyssinia.—The Euphrates and two other steamers, the Coromandel and the Scinde, having on board the exploring party, under the command of Colonel Merewether, left Bombay on the 15th ult. The Euphrates and Coromandel reached Aden on the evening of the 26th, after a bad passage, the latter vessel having lost ten mules out of 149 on board. The Scinde, having the tent equipage on board, had to put back to Bombay through stress of weather. The principal objects are:—1. To find a suitable harbour and shore for debarkation, and location of some 200 steamers and transports. 2. To find a good route and post inland on the high land some sixty miles from the shore. It is probable that the landing-place will be fixed in Annesley Bay, which is some distance south of Massowah.

THE ANGLO-INDIAN TELEGRAPH COMPANY.—Having regard to the entire absence of public confidence in joint-stock undertakings, it is perhaps hardly to be wondered at that even a company so well introduced and possessing so many claims upon public support as "The Anglo-Indian Telegraph Company" should not have succeeded in raising sufficient capital to justify the directors in commencing operations, although, under the circumstances, a very liberal amount of money was subscribed. We learn, however, that the correspondence which has taken place between the directors and the Secretary of State for India shows that the authorities are desirous to have a line of telegraph by the Red Sea, but that the principle of giving a Government guarantee could not be recognised. That the line, when constructed, would be of material advantage to the Government is shown by the fact that the traffic on the Malta and Alexandria line leased to the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company has recently been nearly trebled by the Government messages in connection with the transport of troops for the Abyssinian expedition; and that if the cable were laid between Suez and Aden the Government and the public would be informed of the arrival of our troops from Bombay for debarkation, and of the progress of the expedition from time to time. The directors have the fullest confidence that, when the public mind shall be reassured in regard to joint-stock enterprise, this project, which holds forth the most encouraging results for investment, will be warmly supported; and, so soon as the proper moment arrives, the applicants for shares who have had their deposits returned without deduction will be again invited to subscribe as well as the public at large.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 16th inst., at the Bank of England. The amount allotted was £100,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11½d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders at 1s. 11½d. on Calcutta will receive about 80 per cent., those above that price in full. No tenders for bills on Bombay were invited. The result shows a material falling off in the demand for remittances.

NEW PACK SADDLES FOR ABYSSINIA.—On Saturday some trials were carried out at Brompton Barracks, under the direction of the principal officers connected with the Royal Engineer establishment, for the purpose of testing the new pack saddles about to be sent out for use by the Abyssinian expedition. During the trials Colonel Fitzroy Somerset exhibited a saddle of a Moorish pattern, improved by himself, the plan of which was highly approved of.

MALTA.—(VALETTA, Oct. 19.)—Forty thousand sovereigns have arrived here from London for the commissariat department, by the Ada. The steamer Atlantic is here, loaded with 300 mules. The transport Parast, from London and Valentia, has arrived here with stores and 246 more mules. Both have left for Alexandria. The cholera is decreasing. Yesterday there was only one death.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.JULY, 1867.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Calcutta mail brings us no later news from that Presidency, and only four days later from Madras—the date of departure being the 27th September.

Madras was busy discussing the news from Afghanistan, including the alliance of Shere Ali with Russia and Persia, the fall of Herat, and some other events which have not yet come to pass. The local news may soon be summed up. Lord Napier was still away on his tour of inspection, and the papers were occupying the time he was keeping them waiting, in the proverbial manner—by discovering his faults. One writer good naturedly hopes that his lordship is really engaged on the work of inspection, and is not staying away merely for the benefit of his health. As nearly all the members of Council are absent, the Presidency is almost without a Government—a state of things which has led to some remonstrance, as may be seen from an extract elsewhere.

Some dissatisfaction has also been expressed at the order by the Government of India, for "smart commissariat officers" from Madras for the Abyssinian Expedition, being countermanded; and matters are not made pleasanter in the department by the fact that three clerks, when under the impression that they would be wanted, refusing to go. The latter have been requested to resign in consequence, but have respectfully but firmly declined, throwing upon their superiors the onus of dismissing them, and reserving to themselves the indefeasible right of appeal. There will, of course, be a terrible storm in the official teapot, and what may be the consequences no man can foretell!

A scheme for providing industrial training and education for the children of the poorer classes of Europeans and East Indians has been brought, in a very practical shape, to the notice of the Local Government, by Mr. Doyle, the Roman Catholic chaplain of Bellary. The Madras Times, in noticing this subject, says:—"The condition of the lower classes of Europeans and Eurasians throughout India, at all times none of the best, is year by year becoming worse; the general rise in the price of provisions of all kinds presses heavily upon them, and their number is increasing, while their opportunities of finding employment grow less. Owing to the poverty and carelessness of their parents, many of the young are allowed to grow up in ignorance and idleness, and unless Government educate and employ them, they will, to a certainty sooner or later crowd the jails of the country. The evil is one which has been growing for many years, and if some speedy remedy be not applied will become incurable. Every effort to raise Eurasians as a class and to give them truer notions of life ought to be encouraged by Government. Mr. Doyle, whose scheme relates only to Bellary, but of course is everywhere applicable, proposes to establish educational and industrial institutions both for boys and girls, under the management of monks and nuns, and to make them self-supporting. To effect this he asks Government for a grant of 20,000 rupees, the loan of 40,000 more, and 600 rupees per mensem till the working committees are fairly established. Though they have not granted the sums proposed, Government look with much favour on Mr. Doyle's philanthropic scheme, and have promised to otherwise assist him in effecting it. The plan would no doubt prove as successful in operation as it is sensible in theory, and it is to be hoped it may meet with general support. Mr. Doyle advocates non-interference with the religion of the pupils attending the proposed establishments."

The Madras Government, in common with the other local Governments, has been asked by the Supreme Government for their opinion upon the following points:—I. To what extent would a Court of Divorce, consisting in effect of a branch of the High Court, but having jurisdiction over the whole Presidency, afford the desired relief? II. If the relief would be inadequate, would it be safe to confer jurisdiction on the District or other Local Courts, the issue triable by such Courts being, not simply the fact of adultery, but such defences on the part of the respondent as condonation or cruelty? III. If this last expedient seems inadmissible, would it be preferable to confine the jurisdiction to the High Court, but to allow it to delegate all or part of its jurisdiction to Local Commissioners specially selected? IV. And, generally, in what way can a system, affording ready and inexpensive relief as nearly as possible on the spot, be combined with the securities for justice demanded in a class of cases of peculiar difficulty and delicacy?

The Supreme Government, it appears, being tired of waiting for the report of the Royal Commission, have determined to deal with this subject themselves. The same judicial machinery is to be provided for all classes of Christians in India. The Madras Government have submitted the above points to the Judges of the High Court and the clergy for their opinions.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which is due in London on the 6th November.

AFTER an unusual amount of delay the payment of the Great Banda and Kirwee Prize to the numerous officers and troops entitled to shares, commenced yesterday at Chelsea Hospital. The greater portion of the prize money due to the estate of the late Lord Clyde, £21,600, was, we understand, paid over to the army agents by the Commissioners of Chelsea Hospital yesterday. There is yet to be received by the estate between four and five thousand pounds additional in full settlement of Lord Clyde's claim. General Whitlock's shares, regimental and staff, will be paid by the India Office. The amount of his claim we hear exceeds £10,000. The Earl of Longford, who was on the staff at the seat of war in India during the mutiny, claims shares amounting to about £2,400.

CHOLERA ON BOARD THE SCREW STEAMER "BURMAH."—Two cases of cholera occurred on board the screw steamer Burmah among the troops on 20th Sept.; one of these proved fatal, and the other is recovering. A third case occurred on the 21st, and a fourth on the 22nd Sept. Both these cases were in a precarious state when the troops on board were inspected on the afternoon of Monday, Sept. 23. Assistant-surgeon Wade, in medical charge of the troops, reported to the deputy inspector-general, British medical service, that four cases of cholera had occurred on board between the 20th and 22nd Sept., and, on the receipt of this information, it was decided by Dr. Haddaway, in concurrence with the Sanitary Commissioner, that the troops should not be allowed to land at Madras. The Burmah was, accordingly, directed to proceed to Ennore and land the troops, for whose accommodation a camp has been formed, and precautions will be adopted to prevent all communications with it. On the return of the Burmah to Madras she will be thoroughly cleaned and purified before proceeding to the southern ports and Bombay. It is not, of course, known how long the troops will be kept in quarantine at Ennore; this will depend on circumstances. They will be kept in camp until cholera disappears. — Athenæum.

THE ACCIDENT TO THE PONTOON BRIDGE AT CAWNPORE.—The damage done to the pontoon bridge at Cawnpore is much greater than at first reported, and it is a question whether communication will be restored in time for the Viceroy's visit to Oude. — Cawnpore Advertiser, Sept. 21.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

OUR OPPORTUNITY AT CABUL.

THE death of Afzul Khan, just when his brother is advancing at the head of a powerful force upon Cabul, will probably reduce the political chaos in Afghanistan into something like order. It may be supposed that there will now be no further opposition to Shere Ali mounting the Musnud. He is the legitimate heir to Dost Mahomed, who excluded Afzul from the succession, no doubt advisedly, and with a full knowledge of his character. And the short experience of his rule might well justify the most unfavourable anticipations. A letter said to have been addressed by Shere Ali to his brother only the other day contains a picture of the late usurper's government which is not likely to be overdrawn. "Oh! Walee of Cabul," says the writer, "you are my legitimate brother; divest yourself of all malice and answer me. Which of us is legally entitled to occupy the throne of Afghanistan? Let justice guide your answer. I do not say that I have the best right; let the Cazees and Mooftees of Cabul decide the question. They will find who among us is the legal heir, and who the usurper. Better do this than cause the ruin of Cabul. I have learnt from Meer Hajee Sahib of your oppressions of the subjects of the State, far surpassing everything that had been done before, and the whole country, great and small, rich and poor, is crying out against you. The Treasury, which was full of gold and silver, the accumulation of five or six generations, you have squandered. The allowances of the Begums and others are no longer paid. The Meer Hajee, who had always received the highest honours, was compelled to preserve his life by flight. The numbers whom you have doomed to death were guiltless. If they were not, point out their guilt. Members of our family, who are innocent of all crime, have been cast into prison; they who refused you assistance have been punished with fines and penalties. My reason for having imprisoned you was that you acted contrary to my wishes.

You embezzled the whole of the revenue from Turkistan, amounting to twenty lacs, with the exception of thirty thousand which was paid into the Cabul Treasury. When my son, Sirdar Mahomed Ali Khan, was killed in battle at Kandahar, you made his death the occasion for rejoicing, forgetting that his blood ran in your veins and mine. Notwithstanding these things, I am willing that the past shall be buried in oblivion, on condition that you turn from your evil ways. Do not fail to reply to this letter. Sickness in Cabul has alone dissuaded me from advancing to and taking possession of it."

There is a moderation and fraternal feeling in these sentiments altogether un-Affghan, leading to the supposition that although Shere Ali may not be a man of such strong character as his brother, he will make a far better ruler and a far more safe ally. And if we are to have an alliance with Cabul, which is absolutely necessary, unless we are to allow Russia to have everything her own way in Central Asia, there could not be a better opportunity than the present. Shere Ali is said to have Persian proclivities, but his present overtures to England are no indication of such a fact; and he positively denies, through his agent at Cabul, that there is any truth in the story of the compact with Persia and Russia, with the cession of Herat to one of those Powers as the price of her support. But if England does not come to a good understanding with Cabul, which can be done only by giving effectual support to Shere Ali, a complication of the kind will certainly arise before long—and after that there will be the deluge indeed. While the throne of Cabul was being contested there was of course the obvious difficulty of knowing with which party to treat; and, short of the rash course of dashing in and deciding the civil war, there was perhaps no stronger part for us to take than that which we took—namely, recognising Shere Ali as the de jure ruler, and Afzul as the de facto ruler when he got the upper hand. But now the time has come for more decided action, and we shall commit a fatal error if we do not seize it. An alliance with the Ameer must give us strength, and a really cordial understanding might result before long in our obtaining the protectorate of Herat, which will be absolutely necessary one of these days, unless we are prepared to see Persia or Russia holding the "key to Hindustan"—arrayed against us with their diplomacy in the first place, and their arms to follow.

THE NEW ROUTE TO CHINA.

SINCE referring to this subject in our last number we have received some particulars of the results of the survey—as far as it has yet extended—of the country proposed to be traversed by Captain Sprye's route, which, our readers will remember, lies through part of British Burmah and the Shan States.

The officer selected for the work of exploration by the Secretary of State was Captain Williams, military engineer, and associated with him was an engineer appointed by the Indian Government. These officers started late in the season, owing to the opposition of the local authority, and were stopped by the setting in of the rains; but their operations extended to about 250 miles of the route, and the result is the discovery of two passes, each practicable for a rail or tram-way across that portion of the country which official opponents of the plan, not only at home but in Burmah, had persistently maintained to be wholly impassable for commerce. One of these routes, the identical line proposed by Captain Sprye, was found to measure 235 miles of line from Rangoon, of which only 58 miles are difficult, 144 miles being perfectly easy, and 31 moderately so. The other route, being the more southern line from the Sittang river, though measuring ten miles more, namely, 245 miles from Rangoon, was found to have 169 miles quite easy, 35 moderately so, and only 40 difficult. This includes all the worst part of the line—the part especially condemned by anticipation as impracticable. It was declared to be intersected by mountain ranges which could never be either levelled or tunnelled, and rivers which no man alive would be able to bridge. The facts are that the mountain ranges present no engineering difficulties which may not be easily surmounted. The longer route will furnish occasion for only one tunnel, and a bridge of 1,300 feet; while the shorter route will need only a bridge of 700 feet, with two tunnels. In no case, we are assured, need the tunnels on either line be more than a mile in length. As for rivers, none were encountered of a nature which could be considered obstructive to a railway. The broadest is the Sittang itself, which, when crossed by the north line, measured 1,000 feet, and at the more southern point of crossing, 1,500 feet. The other streams by both routes varied from 200 to 450 feet wide only. It is added that abundance of teak and iron-wood timber, with good building stone, was found along both routes.

With regard to political difficulties, we believe them to exist only in the imagination of the Viceroy and a few timid advisers of the Secretary of State—the Viceroy, because he is wedded to the pleasant policy of “masterly inactivity,” and intends to make it carry him safely through his term of office; the timid advisers because they are timid, and fail to appreciate the requirements of the age. If, however, Sir Stafford Northcote is, as he is understood to be, favourable to the plan, he may, with the support of the Indian Committee of the Cabinet—which is the authority in the last resort—place upon it the stamp of Government approval. Such a concession would add not a little to the popularity of the Ministry among the commercial classes in this country, who have been agitating the project for years past, and are bent upon having it carried out sooner or later.

WANT OF WATERWAY FOR RAILWAYS.—So many accidents have of late happened from this grave fault in the construction of railways in India that we are induced to offer the following brief remarks, furnished by a friend, pointing out what he believes would in a great measure act as a remedy for all, excepting the most extraordinary, floods. He would then suggest that a line of levels be run parallel to the existing railways, and at a distance of about one to two thousand feet from them on their up stream side, and that cross sections be taken from it to the line of railway at each dip in the land, and particular inquiries made from the neighbouring villagers as to whether at any time within their memories water has lodged there or run off from there in the direction of the line of railway, and also let them point out the width, from which of course the depth could easily be ascertained. By this means an accurate knowledge of the fall of the land towards the line of railway would be obtained, as well as the probable quantity of water running in that direction, enabling the engineers to fix upon a proper width for their flood openings. It would be quite sufficient if a “check line” were run by the most convenient route, avoiding any interference with private property as much as possible. The present assistant engineers would be quite sufficient for the work, and but slight extra expense (in the shape of tentage) need be incurred. The cold season is soon coming on, and they could easily be spared for about ten days out of the month without detriment to their other pursuits, and, as two trips would suffice, they could not well complain of any hardship in the case. A great mistake is made in trying to narrow the waterways. This should never be attempted, and the Government engineer ought not to allow such a proceeding, or results similar to the late accident at the Sae, on the Lucknow and Cawnpore line, will always happen. Had thirty-feet openings instead of twenty been adopted it would never have occurred. Far better and safer, and cheaper in the end, to have too much waterway than too little. For such errors the contractors are blamed by the public, whereas they are entirely caused by the carelessness of the engineers of the railway companies in getting out their plans and sections, and not sufficiently well examining the country, and in putting in the minimum number of openings, in order to make each one his own piece of work appear the cheapest, and consequently to the best advantage, and apparently ignoring all consequences that an embankment may have on the usual drainage channels of the country.—Delhi Gazette.

JOURNALISTIC AMENITIES.—The following choice extract is from the Mofussilite:—“A correspondent at Murree informs us that both Dr. Leitner and Mr. Lepel Griffin have been warned by the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, under pain of penalty, against writing for Indian Public Opinion. His Honour is reported to have observed that what a chignon is to a woman's head, Indian Public Opinion is to the press of India, a false and disgusting addition.”

BENGAL.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE.

Before the Imperial order directing the formation of an expedition to Abyssinia had reached this country the public feeling had spoken impatiently. Indignation was expressed at the cold-blooded, cotton and calico policy of the Home Government, and offers of money and volunteers for the purpose of rescuing our countrymen were freely made. A single correspondent of this journal tendered 20,000 rupees, and was followed by others. Filibustering as the proposal may have sounded in the ears of officialism, it appeared not quite impossible that the strange scene might have been presented to Europe of a distant British dependency vindicating the honour of the mother country.

Fortunately this national disgrace—for such it would have been to her Majesty's Government—was spared to Great Britain, and the adventurous spirit of our countrymen was turned, by a formal declaration of war with King Theodoros, into more legitimate channels. Instantly the civil and military authorities were overwhelmed with the applications of officers anxious to win their spurs among the Abyssinian steppes. Men who had looked wistfully to six months' leave to Bombay on “urgent private affairs” as the only means of getting across the straits of Babelmandeb with a small force of picked volunteers, now sat down to their desks and requested the honour, et cetera, upon foolscap paper. Warriors, ensigns of marching regiments and engineers serving among the Himalayas—sprang from the ground, ready armed, and demanded to be led against the enemy. The difficulty now became, not so much who should go, as who should stay behind; it appeared as though, in the desire to reach Abyssinia, India would be depopulated. A regiment of native horse made it a matter of special request to be stationed at Gondar or Debra Tabor. Charles Johnston, Dr. Beke, Major Harris, Baker, Maunders's Treasury of Geography, and old atlases, were now surreptitiously consulted, and soon Magdala, perched upon lofty heights, Lake Tsana, and Massowah, the port of debarkation, became familiar as household words in half the Messes of India. If Mr. Rassam's captivity has done nothing else, it has at least improved our geographical knowledge by several degrees of longitude. Rarely, if ever, has a military expedition proved so attractive. The causes of this popularity are simple enough—an ardent desire to free our countrymen, apparently abandoned to their fate by England; the comparative proximity of India to Magdala, the highland eyrie, whence came the cries of the captives praying to be rescued at any risk; the charm of embarking in a used-up age, upon an enterprise the difficulties of which were little understood against a people and country almost unknown. And last, but far from least, there was the wish to escape from India, even temporarily, under any conditions, with the chance of a friendly shot through a safe part of the body, sick leave, a Peninsular and Oriental steamer touching at Massowah, and so home. With China and India as well known as Hyde Park, Australia and the Cape mere drugs in the market, the North-West Passage and source of the Nile riddles of the past, Paris full of fruits of Mexico, and Egypt traversed by a French ditch, it would seem that a war in Abyssinia was the only sensational novelty left to the nineteenth century.

The Bombay army, which has been excluded by its local position from any share in recent “little wars,” is naturally looking forward to furnishing the bulk of the troops. The system of that army has without doubt developed to the utmost such soldierly qualities as are possessed by the Hindoos and Mahomedans of India proper. For smartness in duty, steadiness in the manoeuvres of the parade ground, and general good behaviour and attachment to their salt, they will probably compare most favourably with any description of native troops which India at the present day can furnish. They have the further recommendation of being accustomed to go to sea, and therefore their employment in an Abyssinian expedition will disturb no prejudices, and require no beating-up for volunteers. That system was most unnecessarily, as many of our best officers think, inaugurated in the new Bengal army when native troops were wanted for China in 1859. In addition to the Hindoo-Mahomedan regiments recruited in India proper, the Bombay army possesses at least two exceptional corps, known as Belooch regiments. One did admirable service at Delhi in 1857; the other returned not long since from prolonged service in the north of China. These two regiments are, we believe, recruited largely from the Belooch population of Scinde, and from warlike tribes west of the Indus, and are probably little inferior in hardiness and military qualities to what are known as the Punjab regiments of the present Bengal army.

Though the material available from the Bombay army is good, we hope to see it supplemented by at least one brigade of troops the best that the Punjab, and in particular the Punjab Frontier Force, can furnish. Abyssinia is a country of mountains and table-land. That most original traveller, Mansfield Parkyns, notices that it abounds in the most inaccessible mountain fastnesses, which from time immemorial have played an important part in the warfare of which the country has ever been the scene. "Mountains almost impregnable by nature are common in this country. Many are in the hands of priests who have on their summits a monastery and sanctuary, such as Devra Damo and many others; and to these the people of the neighbouring provinces send their property for safety in times of war or other disturbances. Almost every great chieftain has likewise his mountain to which he retires in a moment of need. Cisterns, either naturally or artificially hollowed, are on the summit of each, and large supplies of provisions are generally kept ready for any emergency. Many of these rocks cannot be ascended except by the aid of cords or ropeladders, which are let down and drawn up at pleasure." It seems, therefore, most desirable that in selecting the troops for a campaign in such a country we should have an eye to their capacity for hill warfare. No Indian troops have the advantages in this respect possessed by the Frontier Force, which in the last eighteen years has fought through almost all those endless mountain ranges which divide the Punjab and Afghanistan. There is a further reason why a portion of the Frontier Force should take part in an Abyssinian campaign. Its infantry regiments already possess an organised cattle establishment of camels and mules, sufficient to make them thoroughly mobile on a campaign. The camels indeed might not be worth the trouble and risk of transporting to Kurrachee, and thence by sea to Abyssinia; but the regiments destined for the expedition might transfer their camels to the regiments remaining behind, and take their mules in exchange. The efficiency of regiments so provided, and accustomed for years to the care of their own transport animals, would be infinitely superior to that of regiments supplied for the first time and for the occasion only with even a larger number of animals, hastily collected by agents of the commissariat.

We would deprecate the employment of too large a British contingent. There is no doubt that the presence of English soldiers in the Umbeyla campaign—admirable service as they on several occasions rendered—was a principal cause why the force was originally halted on the crest of the pass, and why the original programme of the expedition could not be carried out. In none of Neville Chamberlain's previous expeditions had it been thought necessary to employ them, and yet the most brilliant successes had been achieved. The Abyssinians, from all accounts, are a very despicable enemy, not to be spoken of in the same breath with Wuzerees or Afreedees. Our object is more likely to be speedily obtained by the employment of native troops, infantry and artillery, trained in the irregular warfare and rough school of the Punjab frontier, supported by a few of the choicest battalions of the Bombay army, than by the march of an imposing force of British regiments with all the paraphernalia of commissariat and hospital comforts deemed essential at the present day whenever British soldiers take the field.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE VITAL STATISTICS OF THE ENGLISH ARMY IN NORTHERN AND CENTRAL INDIA during 1866 may well form a subject of congratulation. The death rate per thousand was only 20.11, and the sick rate per hundred was 5.81. In a force of 35,013 the deaths numbered 704 and there were 2,033 daily sick. The mortality has thus gradually and considerably fallen, from the notorious 69 per thousand of the Royal Commission during the half century which ended with the mutiny campaigns, to 32½ in the three years ending 1862, to 23½ in 1863, to hardly 24 in 1864, to 24½ in 1865, and now to little more than 20 in 1866. The death rates of women and children continue high—or 25.46 per thousand and among 2,789 women and 76.11 among 4,367 children. This, however, is a considerable improvement on the figures of 1865, which were 42 and 83.15 per thousand respectively. Dr. Bryden's tables, when published, will doubtless give us the usual elaborate and accurate details of which these are the results. The Sanitary Commissioners in the three Presidencies should publish the statistics of invaliding side by side with those of mortality for a series of years, that the number of lives due to improved sanitation may be seen. It is a noteworthy fact that the strength of the English army in Bengal has fallen from 40,305 at the beginning of 1865 to 34,853 at the close of 1866—a loss of 6,452 in two years. The same is true, proportionally, of the two smaller Presidencies. Yet Sir W. Mansfield declared that the reduction in the whole army in India should not exceed 5,000. A European or frontier war will come, and then there will be the usual reproaches and nobody to blame. The extra twopence a-day has removed the recruiting difficulty to a great extent, and the Commander-in-Chief must insist that the army in India shall be kept up to its full strength, already too much reduced even at its present maximum.—Friend of India, Sept. 12.

THE OPIUM REVENUE.—Now that six months have passed since Mr. Massey fixed the estimate price of opium at Rs. 1,150 per chest, we may see what results the past six sales have yielded:—

Month	Estimated Average.	Actual Average.	Estimated Yield.	Actual Yield.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
April	1,150	1,228-15-104	46,00,000	49,16,680
May	1,150	1,248-11-91	46,00,000	49,95,450
June	1,150	1,271-9-53	46,00,000	50,66,375
July	1,150	1,336-5-1	46,00,000	53,41,275
August	1,150	1,314-4-104	46,00,000	52,97,225
Sept.	1,150	1,317-5-101	46,00,000	52,69,475
Total			2,76,00,000	3,08,85,880

This gives an increase on the six months over the estimated yield of Rs. 32,85,880, or £328,588, towards the £500,000 which Mr. Massey desired to add to the revenue by the Licence-tax. But we suppose it is useless to hope that the Financial member of Council will profit by the lesson this result should give him.—Englishman, Sept. 11.

MR. A. SIEKLETON has been appointed to officiate as Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce during the temporary absence on leave of Mr. H. Wood.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION.—That religious persecution is in vogue amongst the followers of the Grand Lama appears from a letter recently forwarded through the British resident at Nepal to the Governor General from several Catholic missionaries in Thibet, who have been expelled and persecuted by certain chiefs of that country. The narrative mentions how they have been driven from place to place, and had one of their mission (M. Durand) killed, together with several Christians, and that they are now in the Batang district, waiting for better days. The Governor General has addressed the resident, and desired him to state that he views the position of these unfortunate missionaries with lively commiseration, and much regrets his inability to afford them any direct assistance; the only means open to him to effect anything in their behalf would be by the intervention of the Maharajah of Nepal and the British Envoy at Peking. The envoy will be communicated with direct from the Foreign-office, and the resident has been requested to call on Maharajah Jung Bahadur to do what he can for these gentlemen. As they appear to be Catholics of France, the Secretary of State has also been written to with a view that the matter might be communicated through Lord Stanley to his Majesty the Emperor of the French.

ATTORNEY'S CLERKS IN TROUBLE.—Mr. Camell, articulated clerk to Messrs. Watkins and Stokoe, and two native clerks, one articulated to Mr. Fenn, and the other to Messrs. Goodall and Leslie, have been called upon to show cause before Mr. Justice Norman to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock why they should not be punished for contempt of Court in having, without the authority of Mr. C. J. Wilkinson, sealer, sealed three documents. It appears that the three clerks went in company to Mr. Wilkinson's residence, the Bengal Club, and demanded the seal of the Court from Mr. Wilkinson's bearer, and, after sealing the documents they had brought with them, left a memorandum, stating that they had done so.—Indian Daily News, Sept. 12.

INCREASE OF SALARIES.—In March, 1867, the Governor-general submitted for the sanction of the Secretary of State a scheme for increasing the salaries of officers employed in the civil administration of British Burmah and the extra Regulation Provinces of Bengal—Chota Nagpore and Assam. Sir Stafford Northcote, in reply, observes that as the scale proposed does not exceed those which have already been proposed for Oude and the Punjab, he has sanctioned it. At the same time, he has given a provisional authorisation to the additional expenditure which it may be found necessary to incur on account of the travelling allowances of the Judicial Commissioners of Assam.—Englishman.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.—The Government of Bengal, at the suggestion of the Director of Public Instruction, has requested the Government of India to move the Secretary of State to select two University men in England to fill vacancies in the Educational Department in Bengal. Both these men must possess the high mathematical attainments of a Cambridge wrangler; they will enter the service on £600 a year, rising in five years to £900, and will further be eligible for promotion to superior grades. Their services are required in January next.

REGIMENTS TO BE EMBARKED FOR ENGLAND IN THE WINTER OF 1868-69.—Intimation has been received in India that the regiments to be embarked for England in the winter of 1868-69 are the 2nd Dragoon Guards, the 33rd, 46th, 82nd, 90th, and 91st Foot, and the remainder of the 21st Brigade Royal Artillery.—Pioneer, Sept. 20.

FLOODS IN CHUPRAH AND TIRHOOT.—The River Gunduck has burst its embankments, and a large portion of Chuprah and Tirhoot is under water. The Ganges, too, is unusually high for this season of the year.

COUNSELS' FEES IN CALCUTTA.—A very unseemly quarrel has taken place between Mr. Jackson, a junior member of the Calcutta Bar, and Mr. Stack, the Government Solicitor. It appears that during the trial of the case of the Queen versus Captain Taylor, in January last, the Advocate General did not find it convenient to attend the High Court all the time the trial lasted, and therefore he was present on the first day only, when he opened the case on behalf of the prosecution. During that day Mr. Cowie wrote on his brief the following words, and handed it over to Mr. Jackson, who was present in Court: "Stack is going to give you a brief, but it will not be ready before to-morrow." This brief was given to Mr. Jackson on the following day, and he assisted Mr. Graham, Standing Counsel, in conducting the case for the prosecution for three consecutive days. He accordingly charged twenty gold mohurs as his fee during that time. Mr. Stack sent Mr. Jackson ten gold mohurs only, upon which the latter gentleman requested his Baboo to write to Mr. Stack and ask him "to put the matter right, as the fee was not in accordance with the usages of the Bar." On this letter being received by Mr. Stack he wrote across it with a blue pencil, "Inform Mr. Jackson that I am not in the habit of receiving communications like this, and that if he has anything to say, he must communicate personally." Mr. Jackson then wrote to Mr. Stack and stated that he had received ten gold mohurs, but he requested the further payment of the remaining ten. Mr. Jackson also said in his letter that were it not for Mr. Stack's age he should say that his reply to the Baboo's letter was an impertinent one. We wonder whether Mr. Stack's age prevented his acquiring any knowledge of Mr. Jackson's ideas. The Government Solicitor was also told that unless he paid over the fees by a certain day the matter would be represented to the Bengal Government. He replied and said that he considered five gold mohurs a day sufficient, and that if Mr. Jackson was of opinion that it was not, he was at liberty to apply to the Government, but Mr. Stack advised him to apply to the Home Secretary, stating that his correspondence was with that department. Mr. Jackson, however, kept his promise, represented the matter to the Bengal Government, and forwarded all the correspondence connected with it. He states in his letter to the secretary that he is willing to abide by any statement of the Advocate General or Standing Counsel as to what his remuneration should be, but he objects to being treated in this manner by a solicitor. He adds that Mr. Stack once before behaved in a similar way with him while he was engaged in conducting a case in one of the suburban courts. In conclusion Mr. Jackson states, and we agree with him, that although the amount in question is comparatively trifling the principle involved is of importance. The matter is yet under investigation of the Government.—Morning Star. A later number of the same journal adds:—"We understand that the result of Mr. Jackson's application to the Bengal Government with reference to the dispute between him and the Government Solicitor regarding the payment of fees has been the payment to the former of the ten gold mohurs he demanded. The Lieutenant Governor did not see why Mr. Jackson should not obtain a fee of twenty gold mohurs, and accordingly requested Mr. Stack to send that gentleman a cheque for the ten due to him.

THE KUBEER PUNTEES.—The Supplement to the Central Provinces Gazette contains an account of a curious religious sect called Kubeer Puntees, who are found to the number of about 70,000 in the Belaspore district of Chutteesghurh. The sect is principally composed of the weaver caste, and has converts to its tenets all over India, comprising also a few converts from Hindooism, but these latter seem only to have added Kubeer to the already numerous list of Hindoo deities. Kubeer himself is reported to have appeared on earth about A.D. 1060, and to have continued on earth above 400 years. During his sojourn he performed many miracles, led a life of devotion, and finally disappeared. He left a list appointing forty-four apostles to succeed one another as chief priests of the sect for twenty-five years each after his death, of whom the present high priest is the eleventh only. After the death of the last of these, Kubeer himself is again to appear upon earth. The history of Kubeer has evidently been founded by some clever fanatic upon the New Testament, which has become gradually degraded with Hindoo superstition.

PROFITS OF THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—In 1854, when the East Indian Railway was first opened to the public, the profits amounted to Rs. 35,275, or about 5 per cent. on the capital expended. In 1866 the profits rose to the enormous sum of Rs. 1,22,60,564, or 5·7 per cent. on the capital expended, and 5 per cent. on the capital on which the Government guarantee is paid, showing how prosperous this great undertaking is becoming. The number of miles first opened to traffic was only thirty-eight, the profits were therefore Rs. 928 per open mile. The number of miles now open is 1,129, and the profits have reached Rs. 10,857 per mile. Throughout this period, the working expenses have almost always been 50 per cent. of the gross earnings; but for the last few years there has been a slight improvement in this respect; and in 1866 the working expenses were reduced to 44·2 per cent. of the gross earnings, showing that the management is now conducted on more economical principles.—Hurkaru, Sept. 14.

THE WEATHER IN LUCKNOW.—Should the Oude Gazette reach the hands of its constituents somewhat later in the day than usual, the blame must be laid upon the tremendous fall of rain we have had since Wednesday evening. All Thursday it poured in torrents, and we got no dawn; in fact we received no papers or letters until yesterday late in the day, on account, as we imagine, of the swollen state of the Ganges and the difficulties of crossing. The rain has caused very great damage everywhere, several houses having been fairly washed down. It lasted steadily for nearly thirty-six hours without a lull, and we fancy has again flooded the country, as before, between this and Cawnpore. It has certainly cooled the atmosphere a great deal, and we may shortly look forward to the welcome advent of our winter.—Oude Gazette, Sept. 21.

SALARIES OF THE INSPECTORS-GENERAL OF PRISONS.—At the instance of the Bombay Government, the Government of India has recommended to the Secretary of State to equalise the salaries of the Inspectors-general of Prisons serving under the several presidency Governments and local administrations. The pay of those officers is, in future, to be fixed at Rs. 2,000. The salary of the posts to which a higher pay is now attached will be reduced on the retirement of the present incumbents, and that of officers drawing a less amount will be augmented.

MADRAS.

THE MADRAS COUNCIL.

We desire to know what Council there is at Madras during the present Abyssinian era. Lord Napier is absent on a tour of inspection, but not we trust for mere change of air. Sir Thomas Pycroft is, we hear, also absent. He has had his work, and, like a good State horse who has done good service, we should be glad to see him, if the interests of the Madras Presidency permitted it, have rest and peace. We observe that his Excellency Lieut.-general Sir Gaspard Le Marchant took his seat as second in Council on the 25th May, 1865. Among these distinguished members of her Majesty's Indian covenanted servants of the Madras establishment we believe not one is present at this moment at the seat of Government. We then have to consider what the Government really is represented by. We discover by a reference to the Civil Service list that the only member of the Council who can possibly be present (when three are absent) is the Hon. Henry Dominic Phillips. Now we do not think this is fair to Madras. We protest against such a system both in the interests of her Majesty and the public. The telegraph is of course called in as the sinful agent who arranges the apparent absurdity of a divided council; but this argument will not go down any longer with an intelligent people, European and Native. It must be remembered that India is in a continual state of transition. Its councillors cannot, as in England, meet for the session, eat white-bait, and go off in crowds to shoot grouse in the Highlands. Questions regarding Abyssinia may come before them every council day, and unless the members are present have to be referred to the absent ones. Delays injurious to the public service are not to be tolerated because a Commander-in-Chief finds it convenient to be absent from the Presidency. We never would grudge a subaltern as much leave as he could get, but we must protest against the ruling element being scattered over the country. Union being strength, it is painfully clear that disunion in the Madras Council, or any Council, must be weakness. What union can there be, what consultation, what healthy and well-digested decisions with (so to speak) one councillor here, one councillor there, one councillor everywhere, and one councillor nowhere? These things must not be. The press must take notice of them, drag them to the light, and apply the remedy, which after all is invariably brought about by public opinion and endorsed by the common sense and intelligence of a nation. When the governor is absent, either on business or pleasure, the remaining members should be present. If the Commander-in-Chief takes no interest in the Government, he should be recalled. The absurdity of a State paying high salaries for such a result as is apparent in the Madras Council is simply humiliating; it is, we venture to say, a disgrace to the intelligence of a community, and ought not to be tolerated. We have noticed of late that on the arrival or departure of the governor and members of council the usual salute is not fired. Is it considered best that these absences should be private? If so, it is a mistake. The powder is worth the money. By all means let everyone know when he is plus or minus a Councillor; it will discourage absenteeism. The Madras members of Council must not be allowed to drift into the idea that they are private individuals, who can do as they like. They are component parts of a mighty fabric of Government, in whose hands the happiness of millions depends; and if they do not appreciate the responsibility of their positions, it is the duty of the press to come forward and tell them so. With regard to Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, who is so soon to leave the Presidency—or, rather, the best part of the Presidency, the Neilgherry Hills—the question will probably be brought before Parliament. It will be asked, is a Commander-in-Chief, even if he should possess interest of the highest order, with the halo of royal favour, and the sacred protection of the Horse Guards, hereafter to make a convenience of high command in India and sacrifice the public service? It is advanced by some persons that after all there is no necessity for a Commander-in-Chief to be anywhere except where he pleases, until the cold weather comes round, but if so why should the State be burthened with a high salary for a functionary who is not wanted? If the command of the Madras army is henceforth to be carried on from the shores of the Ootacamund Lake, in Heaven's name let the senior officer of the army, whoever he may be, carry on such a remarkably pleasant duty on the salary of a divisional general. We have no hesitation in saying that we are taxed too heavily to submit any longer without protest to any high officials in India receiving enormous salaries for going through imaginary tours and consulting their own convenience at the expense of the State.—Times.

THE EXPEDITION AGAINST THE PIRATES OF THE NICOBAR ISLANDS.

This expedition, as we mentioned in our last, has led to but few results, except as far as reprisals are concerned. The following is a description of books found at Inaka by the Satellite:—

A portion of an English Bible and Testament, part of an English dictionary, book entitled the "Vehicle."

AT TA-KA-SHIM.

"Christopher Tadpole," on the fly leaf of which is written in a lady's hand, whose name is apparently "Mary Findon," "When shall we meet again? Perhaps never!" An address, H. B. LORD NAPIER is still absent from Madras. He left Dindigul—a name familiar to the smokers of elephantine cheroots—on the evening of the 10th inst., en route to the Pulney-hills, which his lordship is supposed to be exploring. During his stay at Dindigul Lord Napier was the guest of the Sub-Collector of Madura, Mr. J. R. Arbuthnot. The inhabitants appear to have given the Governor a flattering welcome, calling him among other things, according to the street banners and inscriptions, "England's Peer—the World's Pride," "the People's Friend," "the Gaujam Saviour," &c. Colonel Orr, the Secretary to Government in the Public Works Department, has joined Lord Napier, and it is hoped that the visit will result in an extension of irrigation works in the district of Madura, which suffered rather severely last year from the drought. With the Governor, the Commander-in-Chief, and Sir T. Pycroft all absent, Madras may be almost said to be without a Government. At the present moment, when important questions are continually arising in connection with the Abyssinian Expedition, this is a source of much inconvenience, and might obviously lead to serious consequences. The Madras Council is represented by the Hon. H. D. Phillips alone, and the business of Government appears just now to be carried on by him and the Chief Secretary. This circumstance cannot fail to suggest various reflections, and among others whether it would not be possible to govern this Presidency at all times at considerably less expense than it costs at present.—Madras Times.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—The Madras Commissariat officers who were ordered to proceed to Alexandria and Suez have now had their orders countermanded, of course much to their disappointment. It appears that commissariat officers are to be sent to the above-named stations from England. The G, H, and K companies of the Madras Sappers and Miners have been selected for Abyssinia. The officers attached to these companies are Captain Foord, Staff Corps; Captain Christie, R.E.; and Captain Elliott, Staff Corps; Lieutenants Morris, R.E., Coaker, R.E., Cunningham, R.E., Mainwaring, R.E., Pennycook, R.E., and Bird, Staff Corps. It is expected that Colonel Hill, the commandant of the corps, will be selected by Sir Robert Napier as field engineer to the Abyssinian Force.—Times.—We hear from Secunderabad that one of the companies of Sappers and Miners stationed there is in readiness to proceed on service to Abyssinia; two companies from Bangalore are also mentioned as likely to be sent on the same duty. The 4th Cavalry Hyderabad Contingent, commanded by Col. Abbott, C.B., has volunteered for service in Abyssinia; the offer has been submitted for the orders of the Governor-General.—Athenaeum.

EDUCATION OF POOR EUROPEANS AND EAST INDIANS.—The Rev. Mr. Doyle, Roman Catholic Priest of Bellary, has brought to the notice of Government the necessity of providing industrial training and education for the children of the poorer classes of Europeans and East Indians of this presidency, and solicits the aid of Government to the establishment of industrial schools for boys, and of schools for girls, who would also be trained as domestic servants. The agency proposed by Mr. Doyle for these purposes would consist of members of religious communities, who would be brought from Europe to this country, the industrial schools for boys being superintended by Brothers of a religious order, while the education and training of girls would be confided to the Sisters of Mercy. Mr. Doyle estimates at Rs. 20,000 the cost of bringing out and establishing this agency. He would also require a loan of Rs. 40,000, for the purchase of a coffee estate, for the support of the community, and a monthly allowance of Rs. 600, until the establishments become self-supporting.—Times.

THE "DOUGLAS."—The Governor in Council has resolved, under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, Act I. of 1859, the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act 1862, and Act XV. of 1863, so far as those enactments respectively apply, to appoint the Magistrate of the Godavery District, and the Master Attendant at Coconada, to hold an investigation into the circumstances connected with the stranding of the barque Douglas, of Penang, Captain Morris, and thereupon to take such course and proceedings as may appear to them requisite and proper under the authority of the above enactment, forwarding a report to Government, containing a full statement of the case, and of their opinions thereon, accompanied by the evidence, and such observations as they may think fit, and submitting also to the Government, for transmission to the Board of Trade, a full report on the case, with the evidence. The Douglas left Coconada for Madras on the 31st ultimo, and was a total wreck a few days afterwards, twenty miles south of the former port, and six miles distant from the wreck of the Sacramento.—Times.

MEDICAL ALLOWANCE.—The Government of Madras has recommended to that of India that the surgeon of the 1st district in that presidency may, in addition to the pay of his rank and his salary of Rs. 200 as medical inspector of emigrants, be allowed the house rent of his rank, viz., Rs. 125, under the new warrant, it having been ruled that the salary of an extra appointment is not to debar the recipient from the presidency-house rent, if the salary of his substantive office be not more than Rs. 1,400 a month. The Governor-General in Council has been pleased to accede to the above recommendation and to the payment of the staff salary of medical inspector of emigrants, in addition to the realised pay as Presidency Surgeon.—Indian Daily News.

BLACK TOWN CHAPLAINCY.—On the recommendation of the Right Rev. the Bishop, the Governor in Council has sanctioned the division of the Black Town chaplaincy into two chaplaincies, viz., North Black Town, or Royapoorum, having the old Black Town Church, and South Black Town, or Emmanuel Church District. The boundary between the two districts is the line commencing at the Beach-road, and running westward between the Master Attendant's Office and the Courts of Justice, and then along Mahnuddy-street and Mahmood Khan-street. The Rev. J. W. Wynch is to be chaplain of the Southern District, and the Rev. F. G. Lys of the Northern. As the cemetery lies in the Northern District the servants and charges incidental to it are to be transferred from Emmanuel Church to the old Black Town Church.—Times.

GENERAL BRICE, C.B.—Brigadier-general Brice, C.B., has arrived at Kamptee, and assumed command of the Nagpore force. General Brice has won for himself an enduring name in the military history of India. He greatly distinguished himself in the critical operations carried on to so successful an issue by the Saugor field division under Major-general Whitlock; was present at the smart affair at Kubrai in 1851; and in the April of the same year he played a conspicuous part in the memorable battle of Banda—the cardinal event of the campaign.—Central India Times.

THE MUNICIPAL ESTIMATES.—In accordance with the provisions of Act IX. of 1865 the Municipal Commissioners submitted to Government, on Sept. 12, estimates of the income and expenditure of the Municipality for the year 1868. The Government replied, however, that as it is probable that the Municipal Act lately passed by the Local Legislature will be brought into operation at an early date, the Governor in Council deems it inexpedient, at present, to pass orders on the estimates submitted with the foregoing letter.—Times.

REMISSION OF LAND REVENUE IN BELLARY.—Mr. Wedderburn has submitted for the consideration and orders of the Board of Revenue a list of villages in Bellary talook, where, from previous bad seasons, and especially owing to the last being a severe one, the crops have been scanty, and the people are reduced to poverty. He says that a great portion of Bellary talook was, perhaps, the worst off of any in the district, during last year, the rains coming latest, and being most deficient in quantity. A greater number of people than elsewhere came for relief in famine works. The number of villages wherein remission of demand is recommended is fifty-nine; assessment due on cultivation (the waste has already been remitted) Rs. 69,217; of this amount Rs. 40,574 has been paid, and of the balance due, he recommends that Rs. 13,797-14-8 should be remitted, leaving Rs. 14,844-1-4 to be collected. The remissions proposed are at an average rate of twenty-five per cent. on the revenue of the villages in list A, in which only half a crop has been raised, and 16 per cent. on those in list B, where two-thirds was the amount of the harvest. These villages have been all visited and inspected by Mr. Firth, the tahsildar. Sir T. Munro, when principal collector of the Ceded districts, recommended, as the most effectual mode of relief, during the scarcity that prevailed in 1807, that remission of revenue should be given to the poorer ryots, and that the loss thereby accruing would be replaced by extended cultivation on the seasons proving more favourable. Of all the talooks in the district, not excluding Kudlighi and Madasira, Bellary is said to have shown worst in its southern moiety and eastern section. The Government have sanctioned the remission and requested that the collector will take all necessary precautions to ensure that the proper parties derive full benefit from this remission. —Madras Times.

EXHIBITION AT PALGHAT.—The Government have sanctioned the expenditure of a sum not exceeding Rupees 2,000 for the purposes of an Exhibition of agricultural and other produce, to be held at Palghat in November next, and have approved the proposed Prize List submitted by Mr. Ballard. The position of Palghat as regards Coimbatore and Cochin, its immediate proximity to the railway, and the convergence of several important lines of road upon it, besides its own mercantile importance, give every hope of a successful undertaking. —Times, Sept. 12.

THE COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT.—We understand that three clerks employed respectively in the Commissariat Departments here, in Bellary, and in Secunderabad, were asked to resign their appointments in consequence of their refusal to go as clerks in the Commissariat accompanying the Abyssinian expedition. The clerks, we believe, refused to resign on the ground assigned, but left it to their superiors to dismiss them, when they would appeal to Government on the matter. —Times.

INSTALLATION OF R. W. BRO. RITCHIE AS DISTRICT GRAND MASTER OF MADRAS.—At a special Communication of District Grand Lodge, held on the 19th August last, the interesting ceremony of installing the newly appointed District Grand Master was performed by W. Bro. Scharlieb.

REGIMENTS FOR BOMBAY.—A telegraphic message has been received from Bombay stating that only one regiment instead of four, as previously announced, is required to relieve the regiments destined for Abyssinia.

MISCELLANEOUS.

GOOD SERVICE PENSIONS.—On the recommendation of the Government of India, her Majesty's Government has been pleased to confer a good service pension on Col. Robert William Desney Leith, half-pay, 106th Foot. Col. Leith entered the army as an ensign on the 4th September, 1837; was promoted to lieutenant on the 10th January, 1839; captain (brevet), 19th June, 1846; captain, 12th March, 1849; major (brevet), 7th June, 1849; lieutenant-colonel (brevet), 28th November, 1854; colonel (brevet), 28th June, 1860; Major, 1st July, 1860; lieutenant-colonel, 28th February, 1862. He served with the 1st European Bombay Fusiliers in the Bombay column of the army of the Punjab in 1848-49; present at the siege and surrender of Mooltan; led the storming party at the capture of the city, on which occasion he was dangerously wounded, losing his left arm by a sabre cut (necessitating the subsequent amputation of a portion of the arm), and ball in right shoulder (medal and clasp). His services on that occasion received the special approbation of his Excellency Lieutenant-General Sir Willoughby Cotton, then in command of the Bombay Army; and he was, in consideration of his distinguished gallantry, subsequently appointed to the general staff of the army as deputy assistant adjutant-general on the establishment. He held this appointment from 9th March, 1855, to 23rd February, 1860. —Delhi Gazette, Sept. 24.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE QUARANTINE BILL for the harbour of Bombay have presented their second report on the Bill. It will be remembered that some public discussion took place when the Bill was introduced into the Legislative Council, in reference to the power given to the Health Officer to march into any bungalow in Bombay and capture any inmate, and carry him or her off if it appeared to that gentleman that such inmate was suffering from infectious disease. The Bill, as amended by the select committee, restricts this power, and it is only persons who are without proper lodging or accommodation, "or who, being on board any vessel, are without any lodging or accommodation on shore," who can be removed under the Act to a Sanitarium. Several minor alterations have been made in the Bill.

CHINA & JAPAN.

The Chinese Imperial Government have refused to hold themselves responsible for any future loans made upon securities of customs revenue.

Great distress continues in the neighbourhood of Peking from failure of the rice crops.

Rebel troops (chiefly cavalry) are reported within thirty miles of the capital. It is rumoured that the Tartar troops sent against them have been defeated. Li-Hung-Chang's troops are deserting in great numbers. [Above not yet satisfactorily confirmed.] The rebels have made their way through Imperial lines in Shangtung. All accounts, however, are very conflicting, and must be received with caution.

A new secret society has sprung up in Hunan, called the Ko 'lau hui. The Viceroy has issued a proclamation against it.

The laboratory of the Nanking arsenal blew up, and five men were killed. A mandarin, undergoing instruction, broke a lump of detonating powder with a hammer, and the result was a fearful explosion.

The Hong Kong estimates for 1863 had been brought forward. His Excellency in his speech put down the probable income derivable from gambling licences at 100,000 dols. No mention made of when the obnoxious Stamp Act is to be enforced. It is possible that there will be an excess of 24,000 dols. of assets over liabilities in the revenue of the coming year. Should the gambling licence not yield the expected revenue there will probably be a deficit of about 41,000 dols. by the end of the current year. The total estimates for 1868 are 894,192.60 dols.

Hong Kong was visited by a heavy typhoon on the evening of the 8th September, which lasted from nine P.M. to three A.M. of the 9th. The following accidents occurred in the harbour: Sunk (exclusive of yachts), one barque, one schooner, two water boats, one chop; wrecked, one ship, three barques, two schooners, and the Government junk. Eight other vessels are seriously injured, while an immense number have been more or less damaged. Great loss of native life has taken place.

Her Majesty's ship Pearl weathered the typhoon with loss of boats. She saved thirty Chinese lives. United States vessel Monocacy also safe, having lost funnel, various masts and yards, &c. No very serious damage done on shore, but a good deal of property injured.

A heavy typhoon is reported from Japan. The Shueylen steamer is said to have foundered, and the P. and O. crew steamer Singapore had been missing for some days, but the loss of neither is confirmed.

It is reported that Admiral Keppel has taken the Governor and Vice-Governor of Nagasaki under arrest, and sent them to Yedo in the Basilisk, to be dealt with by the Shogun.

Sir H. Parkes and Admiral Keppel have gone to Osaka, for the purpose, it is said, of demanding satisfaction.

Trade is reported as improving.

No additional news respecting reported abduction of Stotsbashi. —China Mail, Sept. 11.

No. 416, May 3, 1866, specially warning commanding officers of divisions and stations of the responsibility they will incur by authorising advances directly from civil treasuries or from divisional paymasters for military purposes, except in cases of very urgent necessity, having been repeatedly disregarded to the great inconvenience of the public service; it is hereby directed that, in future, the pay department is authorised at once to recover all advances made irregularly, in contravention of those and other orders on this subject from the officers who sanction them.

COMMANDS—CHOLERA.

With reference to Adjt. gen.'s circular, dated

June 15, 1865, republished at page 127 of the standing orders for that year, para. 3 of which says that the absence of general officers from their divisional head-quarters on duty is to be strictly limited to such periods as are necessary for purposes of inspection, "or any other purely public object," it is now explained, for future guidance, that it was not intended by the above quotation to authorise a general officer to leave his head-quarters for the purpose of visiting stations in his command where cholera had appeared, or inspecting family or convalescent depots.

2. In the case of cholera especially, it is the duty of generals of divisions and districts to remain at their proper head-quarters for the purpose of meeting emergencies that may arise at other stations to which the disease may shift; but in very special cases where general officers consider their presence urgently called for, a reference may be made by telegraph to army head-quarters.

It will further be stated whether all necessary documents in the case of each man shown in the roll have been transmitted to the proper authorities.

7. H.E. the C. in C. of the Bombay Presidency is requested to cause all invalids from Bengal, whose fitness for the fatigues of the overland route may have become doubtful after departure from Mooltan, to appear before medical boards at Bombay, in view to their being detained unless sent by the Cape route till late in the season, when the period for arrival at home will be more suitable for men in a weakly state of health.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS IN INDIA.—The European births, marriages, and deaths of our Indian dependencies, as duly recorded in the usual column of the Presidency journals, are capable of specific deductions, affording, in some degree, a test of the growing importance of the resident families of Anglo-Indians in India. The births, marriages, and deaths which are announced in the Englishman and other journals published at Calcutta are as numerous as those of any London newspaper, the Times only excepted. Collecting the lists, and computing the obituaries, &c., for one year, we find that there were announced 1,309 births, 407 marriages, and 745 deaths among resident families at the Presidencies, towns, and stations in India during the year. We subjoin an analysis of these announcements:—The births in January (1866), as advertised, were 155, or rather more than 38 weekly; February, 167, or 41 weekly; March, 101, or 27 weekly; April, 64, or 16 weekly; May, 75; June, 72; July, 88; August, 103; September, 112; October, 147; November, 110; December, 115. Thus the births reached their maximum in January, February, and March, and their minimum in April, May, June, and July. The marriages were in January, 20; February, 52; March, 50; April, 33; May, 29; June, 24; July, 24; August, 43; September, 28; October, 30; November, 36; December, 38; thus the marriages were most numerous in India in the months of February, March, August, October, and November. The deaths were in January, 75; February, 50; March, 52; April, 42; May, 65; June, 55; July, 82; August, 65; September, 65; October, 66; November, 63; December, 63; thus being most numerous in the months of January, May,

July, August, September, October, November, and December. The minimum was in February, March, April, and June. The above statistics show a much higher record of obituaries, &c., in British India than could be presented by any of the other colonies, whether the West Indies, Australia, or Canada, and is in some respects an index to the growth of the European population in India.

LAND MORTGAGE BANK OF INDIA.—The directors of the Land Mortgage Bank of India (Limited) have issued their report for the past six months. It states that the commercial depression at Bombay has prevented any material improvement in the value of some of the properties mortgaged, and has delayed their realisation. In view of a continuance of that disturbed State, the board propose to make provision for a further possible depreciation of £20,000; but they believe that, in anticipation of a possible improvement in prices, the safest policy is not to hasten the disposal of the bank's securities. They further state that the only liabilities of the association are its debentures, and, as these are amply provided for by undoubted accruing receipts from the mortgage investments, they have no intention of making any call on the shareholders. The secured income of the company for the present year enables the directors to recommend an interim payment on account of dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, after providing for debenture interest and all charges, and adding something to the reserve fund.

DESPATCH OF THE CALCUTTA AND CHINA MAILS.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 20.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Syria, Captain Christian, sailed this afternoon with mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Ceylon, Calcutta, China, Australia, and New Zealand. She takes out 200 passengers from this port, and 166 passengers proceed by the corresponding packet via Marseilles. The Syria also takes out a full cargo, including sovereigns, £50,000; gold coin, £20,163. 10s.; dollars, £27,078. 6s. 8d.; and watches, gold thread, jewellery, &c., £6,163. 16s. Amongst the passengers from this port are Captains Cabell, Tines, Fox, and Scott, Colonels Cholmley, Cape, and McDowell, Ensign Richardson, Staff Assistant-surgeon Palatiano, Dr. Davis, Majors Byers and Christie, Commander Percival, Surgeon Annesbury, the Revs. Crowfoot, Skelton, and Darling, Surgeon-major Mackay, and Lieuts. Madden and Stamford. A number of shipwrights have also gone out to Suez to repair the Company's mail steamer Surat, which recently struck on a reef about ninety miles from Suez.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 24.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamship Massilia, with the heavy portion of the above mails, arrived here yesterday, with seventy-eight passengers, 400 packages of cargo, and £3,700 in specie. She experienced fine weather throughout her passage, and spoke the steamer Sumatra on the 18th, and the steamer Venetia on the 22nd inst. H.M.'s Terrible and Crocodile, the French ship Andromaque, and the Egyptian fleet were at Alexandria.

EXTRAORDINARY QUICK PASSAGE.—The Bangalore, one of the new steamers recently built for the Peninsular and Oriental Company, ran from Southampton to Gibraltar in 3 days 17 hours. This is one of the quickest passages ever made. The distance is 1,000 miles. She experienced bad weather, and nearly all on board were at one time sea sick. One day only four persons were able to sit down to dinner.

NEW FLOATING RAFT.—A floating raft, composed of four pontoons, the invention of Captain Mendy, Naval Aide-de-Camp to her Majesty, has been ordered to be tried at the Royal Arsenal, and, if approved, will be attached as a tender to the Scrapis for the transport of troops across lakes and rivers in India. It carries 150, and, if found to answer, four more will be constructed for the new troopships Crocodile, Euphrates, Jummer, and Malabar.

INAUGURAL LECTURE ON SANSKRIT.—(CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 23.)—The lately appointed professor of Sanskrit, Professor Edward Byles Cowell, delivered his inaugural lecture in the Arts School to-day. He reviewed the position held by Sanskrit in comparative philology, and the way in which the language and its literature throw light on times when the various families of the Indo-Germanic races were closely united. He dwelt upon some peculiarities of the Hindu mind, and the way in which an acquaintance with Sanskrit literature would lead a European to comprehend them and treat them with consideration.

DOWNING-STREET, Oct. 19.—The Queen has been pleased to appoint the Hon. James Terence Fitzmaurice to be Inspector of Prisons in the Island of Ceylon. Her Majesty has also been pleased to appoint Lieut.-colonel Roland Macpherson, R.A., to be Colonial Secretary for the Straits Settlements.

LIVES OF INDIAN OFFICERS,

BY JOHN WILLIAM KAYE,

Author of "The History of the War in Afghanistan," &c.

Contents.

The Rev. HENRY MARTIN.	Sir HENRY LAWRENCE.
Sir CHARLES METCALFE.	General JAMES NEILL.
Sir ALEXANDER BURNES.	Brig.-Gen. JOHN NICHOLSON.
Lord CORNWALLIS.	Captain ARTHUR CONOLLY.
Sir JOHN MALCOLM.	Major ELDRED POTTINGER.
The Hon. MOUNTSTUART ELPHINSTONE.	Major D'ARCY TODD.
	Appendix, &c.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

"I am not without a hope that these memoirs may be regarded, in some sort, as a Biographical History of India from the days of Cornwallis to the days of Canning. * * I have not attempted, indeed, to write History; the work has grown up spontaneously out of the Lives of the great men who make history * * and, unless the ability of the execution has fallen far short of the sincerity of the design, I have done something, in these pages, to do honour to a race of public servants unsurpassed in the history of the world. * * I have striven to show how youths, from the middle-class families of our British Islands, have gone forth into the great Eastern world, and, by their own unaided exertions carved their way to fame and fortune." J. W. KAYE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the ATHENÆUM.

"We say at once that more admirably-written and interesting narratives are scarcely to be found in any literature. We do not envy the man who could read without deep emotion the lives here given of Conolly, Lawrence, and Nicholson; and we doubt whether the whole range of history can show more perfect characters. Nobler subjects of biography could not have been chosen, and higher praise it is impossible to bestow on a writer than to say, as we do of this author, that he is fully equal to such a theme. * * Mr. Kaye's 'Lives of Indian Officers' will take a high place among the standard books of England."

From the SPECTATOR.

"A cadet, an artillery officer, an editor, an employé of the first rank, a successful historian, Mr. Kaye unites in his own person all the qualifications requisite to the biographer of the great Indian soldiers."

From the EXAMINER.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

CONFIDENTIAL ADVICE.—To all persons who suffer from bilious headaches, disordered stomach, biliousness, or flatulency, these Pills are most strongly recommended as the safest, best, and quickest mode of obtaining ease without weakening or irritating the nervous system. Holloway's Pills are especially useful in clearing away any excess of bile, which usually produces fever, unless remedial measures be adopted without delay. In asthma, bronchitis, and congestion of the lungs, they may be relied upon for removing danger, and, by purifying and regulating the circulation, they effectually prevent relapse. By rousing the liver to a fair secretion of bile, and by quickly carrying it from the system, these Pills ward off low spirits, listlessness, and those distressing feelings often called nervous.

THE INDIAN ARMY AND CIVIL SERVICE LIST.

(THE PUBLICATION HAS BEEN UNAVOIDABLY DELAYED.)

Consequent on the measures adopted by Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances of the Indian Army—one of which was granting the right of admission to the Staff Corps of all the old officers, unconditionally—a considerable change has been made in the appearance of this volume. Although the old Cadres still exist, nearly all the names are in italics, showing the great number of officers who have availed themselves of the privilege; whilst the Lists of the Staff Corps themselves will show what a great stimulus has been given to promotion, numbers of officers having obtained two steps of substantive (and paying) rank in one day.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR latest advices are, from Bombay Oct. 14th, from Calcutta Oct. 9th, from Madras Oct. 8th.

Preparations for the Abyssinian campaign were going on briskly in the Bombay Presidency. Colonel Field, of the 10th N.I., led off the Advance Brigade on the 7th October for Massowah, with the Satellite to help him in disembarking troops and stores. It was expected that Colonel Field's command would at once march some sixty miles inland, leaving a sufficient depot behind at Massowah. The Sindh Brigade was to leave Kurrachee for the same destination about the 26th October. In another column will be found full details of what has been and is doing with regard to the Abyssinian expedition on the side of India.

We may mention here, however, a few items not included elsewhere. It is satisfactory to learn that among the officers bound for the realm of King Theodore is Major Grant, whose experience as an African traveller in company with the late Captain Speke will doubtless prove of some use to the force under Sir R. Napier, especially if it be true that he is to be attached to the Intelligence Department.

English contractors are not to reap the entire harvest in this campaign. The Sholapore people, it seems, are to have nearly a lakh of rupees for supplying the force with saddles and other necessities. In the Punjab also eighteen hundred mules have already been bought and forwarded towards Kurrachee.

Some disappointment has been felt in India owing to the contradictory orders sent from different places. A number of Commissariat officers, who had been holding themselves ready to start for Suez and Alexandria, have now been ordered to stand fast, their intended posts being reserved under some new arrangement for officers from this country.

From Bangalore on the Madras side we are told that three companies of the Madras sappers were about to start for Abyssinia. There is some chance, it seems, of Colonel Hill, the commandant of the sapper corps, being sent as field engineer with the Abyssinian force, by special request of Sir R. Napier.

The Bombay Government was still at Poonah, its hands full of warlike business; but it was expected to return to Bombay about the 20th October. Sir R. Napier was still dividing his time between the same pleasant station and the capital.

A handsome silver tankard has been awarded to the 26th Cameronians by the committee of the Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition, for the variety of useful articles contributed by that corps, and the excellence of their workmanship—merits to which Sir R. Napier bore witness in a flattering letter to the colonel.

A hard battle has been fought at last between the two ablest generals of the rival Afghan Ameer, in which Faiz Mohammad, Shere Ali Khan's commander, was slain, and his troops defeated. Faiz Mohammad's plan of a night attack had been betrayed to his antagonist, who received him with a withering cannonade. How the issue will affect the fortunes of Afzul Khan we must wait to see. Meanwhile, in another column, our readers will learn what the Times of India has to say about the matter. Shere Ali Khan's army is still in the field.

The Mazagon Reclamation Company had been allowed further grace, up to the 10th October, to pay up the remaining 2½ lacs due for the purchase of their property, failing which the 37½ lacs already paid will be forfeited, and the land resumed by the Government.

From Calcutta we have sad reports of the damage done by floods along both banks of the Ganges, from the point where it enters the Delta. From the Pudemah to within forty miles of Calcutta the country was a vast sheet of water. Rampore Bauleah has been partially washed away, and thousands of natives left homeless. The northern part of Nuddeah has been laid waste. Whole villages have been swept away in the most fertile and populous part of Bengal. The line of the East Indian Railway has suffered severely, especially about Buggoolah.

Misfortunes seldom come singly. A telegram, dated Nov. 2, from Calcutta, informs us that a cyclone on the night of the 1st did considerable damage to the shipping, and to many buildings. No vessel, however, was totally wrecked.

Mr. J. Strachey was at work revising the Oudh Rent Bill, with the aid of officials and Talookdars, so as to meet most of the objections still raised against it.

Our notions of crowds in this country dwindle into nothing before the actual numbers that throng an Eastern fair. At the last Hurdwar fair, the largest ever held, it is computed that 2,855,000 people were gathered together on the 12th of April.

This must throw even Mecca pilgrimages into the shade. No wonder that the Lieutenant Governor calls for a special sanitary officer for the North-West Provinces.

The Governor-General was to leave Simla on the 1st November, Umballa on the 8th, and make his public entry on the 9th into Lucknow. A week's stay at Lucknow, for the holding of durbars and such like pomps and ceremonies, would probably be followed by Sir John's departure for Calcutta.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, Mr. Grey, had been making a thorough tour of inspection through the districts of Assam. The results of his labours are not yet made known, but the Friend of India believes that "what he has seen and heard has not led him to think protection of the labourer less necessary than he did."

A plan for tunnelling the Hooghly has been submitted, says the Indian Daily News, to the Board of the East Indian Railway Company in London, so as to enable the company to build its terminus on the Calcutta side. The said terminus will then become the great central meeting point for the Eastern Bengal, the South-Eastern, and the Indian Branch Railways. If such a scheme be anyhow possible in theory, the expense alone would render it impossible in fact.

From Lahore we learn that the fever there and in the neighbouring districts has been so general that not thirty per cent. of the natives have escaped it, while the deaths have been sadly numerous. The fever, however, was abating by the last accounts. So was cholera at Nusseerabad, after making great ravages among the men, women, and children of the 1st Royals.

The Lawrence Asylum at Sanawar has, by the Viceroy's orders, been opened to the crowd of orphans left by the deaths from cholera of so many soldiers in the neighbouring hill-stations. The disease which ravaged Simlah and Dugshai seems, by good management or happy chance, to have spared Sanawar altogether.

Colonel Fytche was to reach the Burmese capital about the 1st of October. By Sir John Lawrence's order the Burmese customs were to be followed in the coming interview. The King was said to be willing to grant all the concessions demanded of him.

The Rajah of Nadoon has been invested at Simlah with the order of the Star of India for services done in the Kangra Valley, in 1846-48. Honours and prize money are equally slow in coming, it seems.

Lord Napier had just returned to Madras from a long tour through the Presidency, undertaken not so much for any special object as from a wish to gain closer acquaintance with the country at large. Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, late commander-in-chief of Madras, was to leave by an early steamer for England.

The fever which had been so deadly in South Canara was fast abating.

We have nothing new to say of the progress of the Abyssinian expedition from this side, simply because there is nothing new to tell.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.

The past fortnight has seen great progress made with the preparations for the Abyssinian expedition. The regiments composing the advance brigade have been collected from various parts of the Bombay presidency, embarked on board the transports provided for them, and despatched to Massowah; and so complete have all the arrangements for their despatch been, that in spite of the haste which the advance of the season renders necessary, not a single mishap or hitch of any kind has occurred. It was, indeed, never expected for a moment, in India at least, that any hitch would occur. The efficiency, the zeal, and foresight of the various departments, and, above all, the complete harmony which exists—and, under a chief like Sir Robert Napier, must always exist—between the departments, rendered this unlikely in the extreme. At the same time, this total absence of anything approaching the nature of a mishap is deserving of mention, as some of our readers may be able to contrast it with the bungling that is always looked for, and the results of which are often apparent, when preparations of even a more limited nature have to be hurriedly made by corresponding departments in Pall Mall. Everything that has been done hitherto in connection with the expedition shows conclusively the wisdom displayed by the Home Government in entrusting Sir Robert Napier with the organisation and equipment of the force. The meddling already attempted by the Government of India, but which Sir Robert firmly protested against and would not brook, would to a certainty have been carried to excess and been productive of much harm and delay, had they possessed the shadow of a right to interfere. And this, we believe, the Viceroy and the other members of the Supreme Government themselves now quite understand; for, since finding that Sir Robert had carte blanche from the Foreign-office at home, they have joined heartily in aiding him in whatever way they could. Though the final arrangements for the despatch of the advance brigade were left by Sir Robert to Brigadier-General Russell, commanding the Bombay garrison, his Excellency was in Bombay during the greater part of the past fortnight, when he inspected all the ships then chartered as transports, and reviewed the arrangements made for embarkation.

The embarkation of the brigade commenced on the morning of the 4th of October, when the head-quarters wing of the 3rd Cavalry, which had arrived by train from Poona on the previous evening, was conveyed on board the transports Star of the North, and Queen of Australia. The left wing of the regiment arrived on the evening of the 4th, and embarked next morning on board the transports Hydree and Atmosphere.

The 10th N.I., under the command of Col. Field, and the 3rd and 4th companies of Sappers and Miners, from Poona and Kirkee, arrived by train on the morning of the 4th, and embarked on board the steam transports India and Dalhousie, which carry the right and left wings of the 10th N.I. respectively. The Sappers and Miners embarked in the P. and O. Company's steamer Ottawa. On their way to the bunder (wharf) they were met and inspected by H.E. Sir Robert Napier, who complimented Colonel Field in very approving terms on the appearance of his regiment. No. 1 company Native Artillery, with mountain train, arrived from Malligaum on the 4th, and embarked, with their mules, horses, ammunition, baggage, tents, &c., on board the steamer Arabia.

On the afternoon of October 7th the transports S.S. India, with the Hydree in tow, S.S. Dalhousie, with the Star of the North in tow, S.S. Arabia, with the Atmosphere in tow, and the S.S. Sir Bartle Frere, sailed from Bombay for Massowah; the S.S. Ottawa, with the Mandalay in tow, and the S.S. Sattara, with the Queen of Australia in tow, left next day.

The steamers Sir Bartle Frere and Sattara, and the sailing transport, Mandalay, conveyed mules for the Commissariat Department, the Sir Bartle Frere carrying 112, the Sattara 214, and the Mandalay 253. The totals of the advance party, exclusive of the Commissariat Department, are as follows:—20 European commissioned officers, and 13 N. C. rank and file. The native troops will comprise 36 commissioned European officers, 1,354 N.C. rank and file, with 534 public and 154 private followers, and 460 horses and 626 mules. These, with the ten officers of the Pioneer Force, accompanied by 100 men of the Marine Battalion and some 40 sowars of the 3rd Light Cavalry, whose arrival at and departure from Aden has already been reported, comprise the whole of the troops that have yet left for Abyssinia. H.M.'s screw corvette Satellite, Captain Edye, is now busily engaged in making preparations to follow these vessels as a convoy, to assist in landing the troops, stores, &c., carried by them, and thereafter to prosecute survey operations on the coast. The departure of the transports seems to have been anxiously watched for by the other ships in harbour, the crews of which cheered them lustily as they passed. The blue jackets of H.M.'s S.S. Octavia crowded the rigging, and cheered as, we venture to say, they have not cheered for many a day, while their hand struck up appropriate national airs.

The following officers sailed with the force:—Col. J. C. Graves, Lieut. J. F. Willoughby, and Lieut. C. L. Hulbert, 3rd Light Cavalry, in the Star of the North; Lieut.-Col. F. A. E. Loch, Lieut. J. E. Gordon, and Assistant-Surgeon Simpson, 3rd Light Cavalry, in the Atmosphere; Capt. Macnaghten, and Assistant-Surgeon McDowall, 3rd Light Cavalry, in the Queen of Australia; Capt. Moore and Lieut. C. D. Owen, 3rd Light Cavalry, in the Hydree; Major Marett, Lieut. Seton, and Assistant-Surgeon Turnbull, 1st Company Native Artillery, in the Arabia; Capt. Leslie, No. 3 Company Sappers and Miners, and Lieut. Leacock, No. 4 Company, and Lieut. Willans, in the Ottawa; Col. J. Field, Major Pierce, Capt. Durand, Lieut. Blowers, and Surgeon-Major Murray, 10th N.I., in the India; Major James, Capt. Burd, Lieut. Good, Lieut. Burns, and Assistant-Surgeon Lang, 10th N.I., in the Dalhousie; Lieut. Beck, of the Marine Battalion, in the Sir Bartle Frere; Capt. Byle, Land Transport Corps, in the Sattara; Lieut. Shewell, of the Commissariat Department, in the Arabia; and Lieut. De Thoren, H.M.'s 45th Regt., in the Mandalay.

The advance brigade is under command of Colonel Field, who will be Brigadier-General in Abyssinia till the arrival of the Commander-in-Chief. The brigade will establish a depot at Massowah, and then proceed about sixty miles inland, awaiting there the arrival of the main body of the expedition.

The Sied Brigade will be the next despatched from India. It will consist of the 33rd Regiment, G-14 Battery Royal Artillery, and the 27th N.I. (Beloochees), and will sail from Kurrachee direct for Abyssinia in two divisions—the 33rd Regt. and the Artillery about the 25th of October, and the Beloochees about the 2nd of November. For the conveyance of these, three P. and O. Company's steamers have been chartered, viz., the China (2,000 tons), the Madras (1,185 tons), Sultan (1,124 tons), and the B. I. S. N. Company's S. S. Asia (1,207 tons). These steamers will tow respectively the sailing transports Indian Chief, Yorick, Tanjore, and Peckforton Castle. The total force comprised in this brigade will be 46 European and 15 native commissioned officers, 4 warrant officers, 942 European and 659 native non-commissioned rank and file, with 735 public and 209 private followers, 185 horses, and 161 bullocks. The 33rd Regt. will be relieved by the 109th from Poona, and the Belooch regiment by the 17th Madras N. I.

The Bengal column consists, as our readers already know, of the 10th and 12th Bengal Cavalry, the 23rd Punjab Infantry (Pioneers), a Mountain Train Battery, and Mortar Battery. It will be under the command of Colonel D. Stewart, Deputy Adjutant-General of the Bengal Army, for whom the Government of India asked and obtained from Sir Robert Napier the rank of Brigadier-General, and also permission for Colonel Stewart to bring an aide-de-camp with him. Captain Kennedy, of the Viceroy's staff, who had volunteered for service in Abyssinia, has been selected for the post. Captain Fellowes, Brigade Major of Umballa, has been appointed Major of Brigade to the Bengal column, and Major F. Roberts, V.C., Assistant Quarter-master-General. It is believed that the whole of the Bengal troops will embark from Calcutta between the middle and end of November. We believe the Mountain Train Battery will be very completely equipped with six seven-pounder bronzeguns and six five-and-a-half-inch mortars. For the transport of the guns and baggage two hundred mules will be provided, while elephants will convey the mortars. It is stated that the battery will be increased to a strength of 100 or 120 gunners, with a due proportion of non-commissioned officers. The cavalry regiments will also be raised to a strength of 80 sabres per troop, so that the contingent from Bengal, though small, should be of material assistance in the event of there being any serious work to do.

Arrangements have been made for the establishment of a camp post-office to accompany the Abyssinian field force, and we believe that a special steamer is to be employed on this service between Massowah and Aden. Letters, papers, &c., for this force will require to be addressed to "The Field Force, Abyssinia."

NEWS FROM THE PERSIAN GULF.—A letter received from the Persian Gulf yesterday informs us that the compact entered into between Syud Toorkee and his nephew Syud Salem is not likely to secure the peace of Oman. Another uncle of the Imaum's, Syud bin Salem, who is a cousin of Syud Toorkee's, is said to be engaged in zealous preparations for an attack on Muscat. This Syud bin Salem is said to be supported by the whole of the Hinavi tribe, in which case Syud Salem has the odds against him. The tribe of Beni-Hinavi or Beni-Yemen occupy the line of coast from Cape Ras-ool Geet to Cape Mussondom, and are subject to the Imaum. The tribe consists of six chief families, each of which has its own shaik, and many of these have been in revolt from Muscat, or disaffected, for many years.—Times of India, Oct. 5.

KEENE'S "LETTERS ON INDIA."
No. II.

ON the question of the new paper currency for India, Mr. Keene holds that Sir C. Wood's measure has proved to be a "misfit," leading thus far to no very tangible improvement on the old system. His own leaning is in favour of an issue of "small Exchequer bills, bearing interest, and only convertible at the treasury from which they were issued." For such a plan his own experiences in the Indian mutiny furnish a very fair, if not sufficient plea. As chief administrative officer in the Dhoon, he himself succeeded, without Government sanction, in floating such an issue of small notes during the long crisis from May to October, 1857; and the Accountant of the North-West Provinces, in a subsequent letter to the Government, bore admiring witness to the success of a measure which he described as "very remarkable, and deserving of a place in history."

On the judicial and constabulary departments of Indian administration our author has something practical to say. Instead of the old violent feuds between village and village, Indian combativeness now "finds a bloodless arena in the law courts," where men of different tribes still fight each other with "unfounded claims" and "baseless countercharges;" opposing false evidence by false evidence with a noble disregard of consequent dangers. In such a state of society—and we cannot deny the broad truth of Mr. Keene's picture—"a sound judicial system is of the last importance." In following out this deduction he lays just stress on the need for a fair division of labour, in the interests of mere justice, between the chief departments of the civil service. A system which heaps on one pair of shoulders "the multifarious duties of a chief constable, a land bailiff, a road trustee, and a municipal commissioner," is hardly suited to existing needs, even in a country where personal influences still outweigh those of the best regulated system with the popular mind. In spite of some weighty objections to Sir Erskine Perry's scheme for developing judicial reform downwards, on the pattern of the existing High Courts, the author still sees in it much that "merits attentive consideration." The one necessary amendment, which would also meet the more tenable objections, he finds in "the erection of a separate department for judicial work," on the principle already applied by Lord Canning to finance. The lower courts of first instance might still be open to men of all classes, on due assurance given of each candidate's "forensic training." But after five years of general service, the covenanted official should be required to make his choice between the financial, administrative, and judicial departments, his fitness for the latter being ascertained by a formal examination. Once entered on judicial duties, he would be free to compete for promotion "with the celebrities of the local bar; . . . but the controlling and appellate jurisdiction of a district court should, as a matter of fairness and expediency, be reserved, as at present, for the covenanted alone."

On this last point opinions will naturally differ. For ourselves, we cannot see very much force in the plea for closing the higher appointments against the uncovenanted, because a blow would otherwise be dealt at the "vested rights" of their covenanted brethren. But it might for a time be advisable to retain the exclusive principle as a rule, to which the exceptions, few at first, might gradually become more numerous as the old generation of civil servants passed away. If Sir Joseph Arnould, himself a barrister-judge, speaks with authority, there can be little need for filling up the judgeships with local barristers, while England sends out a due supply of "competition-wallahs," young men "well grounded in the general principles of jurisprudence, completely versed in the vernaculars, ready, as far as the exigencies of the service will permit, to devote themselves exclusively to a judicial career." This is encouraging praise of a class too often assumed to be little fit for one kind of work, because they may not shine in another requiring a larger stock of physical aptitude. Anyhow, the question of barristers or competitioners apart, any system which tends to sort the right men into the right places must be an improvement on that old rule of higgledy-piggledy, which sent an able revenue officer into the sudder bench, and turned a promising sessions judge into an indifferent commissioner.

A like jumble of incongruous duties still marks the remodelled system of Indian police. It is scandalous indeed to think that an Indian magistrate "may also be in charge of the police of his district or his subdivision; appear, as it were, as a party in his own court; and condemn the prisoner whom his own detective energies have rightly or wrongly placed at the bar." The fruits of this system may be found in the excessive number of appeals against the sentences thus awarded; and the remedy here too seems to lie in a complete separation of judicial and police functions. Some check should also be placed on the growing tendency to transform policemen into soldiers, after the Irish fashion, and thereby to weaken their power for detecting crime.

The educational question likewise stops the way. For the last ten years we have been trying to gather the figs of Europe from the thistles of Hindostan; in other words, to deck out the nature of Indian youth in the rich but incongruous trappings of Western culture. His English training has not yet made the young Hindoo a nobler being or a more useful servant of the State. Such, at least, is the inference drawn by Mr. Keene, alike from his own experience and the complaints of others who have shared in the practical development of the reigning system. We, for our part, are still loath to believe that the State-schools have proved a failure, merely because Christianity makes no progress, or even because high officials "cannot, or will not, fill vacancies in their offices by pupils from" those schools. Does the fault lie with the pupils themselves, or with the officials who fail to employ them, or with the hard work and poor pay which the pupils are invited to compete for? Is it true or not that, during the mutiny, no pupil from the State-schools, no native of any English culture, joined the rebel cause? If true, there is something to plead in behalf of an English training.

There is a thoughtfully reasoned letter on the Viceroy's Powers, from which the thoughtful reader may carry away some useful notions touching the real sources of British-Indian policy. Lord Halifax gets fairly stripped of the plumage stuck about him by the Quarterly Review, in an article ascribing all the recent progress in India to his "careful and enlightened administration." Of the measures for which he gained sole credit some broke down, others were really due to former Governments at home or else to local authorities. Too much, on the other hand, is perhaps made of the weakness of the Home Council as against its President, seeing how often the latter is hampered by the financial veto entrusted to the former. From the closing letter, on the dangers involved in "government by flashes of lightning," that is by intermittent bursts of zeal on the part of an ignorant, apathetic mother-country, we must quote one pregnant passage by way of conclusion. It is a squib taken from an Indian journal, the Nasim Jaunpuri.

"Article I. In two years' time lands assigned for the revenue of temples and mosques (not churches) will be confiscated. Article II. Any newspaper writer convicted of writing against the Christian religion will be punished by a fine of Rs. 1,000, and two years' imprisonment with hard labour. Article III. All women, of whatever creed, will be forcibly remarried after the death of their husbands, even a third time if necessary, under penalty of a fine of Rs. 1,000, with five years' imprisonment."

Let the zealots of Exeter Hall and the followers of Sir Herbert Edwardes take the meaning of this sally betimes to heart.

LONDON SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS FOR ABYSSINIA.—As already announced in some Indian papers (contrary to the desire of the gentleman concerned) Mr. Charles Austin, D.C.L. and Fellow of St. John's, Oxford, has been selected as special correspondent for the Times during the Abyssinian campaign. Mr. Austin had only recently returned to Madras, where for a few years he has with great ability edited the Madras Athenæum and Daily News. During a sojourn at home whilst taking his degree, Mr. Austin has been a frequent contributor to the Saturday Review. Some experience of India—if an African traveller could not be caught—was indispensable to make a good correspondent from Abyssinia, and we do not know that the Times could have entrusted the responsible duties of its correspondent to better hands. We wish Dr. Austin every success in his capacity of historian of what promises to be a very extraordinary and memorable expedition. When, as was stated by the Times itself, the competition to represent that journal had been so very close, the compliment paid to the late editor of the Madras Athenæum in selecting him and appointing him by telegram, in preference to so many able volunteers on the spot, affords good evidence of the estimation in which he is held in the London literary world. We have heard that another correspondent, name unreported, is being sent out by the Times: if this be the case the gentleman is probably a military reporter, strictly speaking. The Daily Telegraph has sent out another former Indian editor, Mr. G. A. Stack, who during the last two years has been editor of the Indian Daily News and the Mofussilite. Mr. Stack arrived by the mail yesterday, and we understand that he is well provided with letters of introduction from the Commander-in-Chief and the Indian Secretary, addressed to the ruling men here. Mr. Stack's communications will undoubtedly be as lively and brisk as the climate will possibly admit of.

FIRING AT A MAIL STEAMER.—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Ellora, with the homeward China mail, was hurriedly steaming into Singapore harbour on the evening of the 5th ult. when she was fired at from a shotted gun from her Majesty's ship Satellite, because she did not stop and pick up a boat from that ship. The passengers on board the Ellora were much frightened, and there was a general rush from the deck when the whiz of the shot was heard. With regard to this outrage, we ask, is it a custom of the Royal Navy to take random shots of this nature, thus endangering the lives of inoffensive civilians and British subjects? The aggressive act of the Satellite will of course be reported to the Admiralty, and we trust that it will be deemed a case worthy of investigation.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SECTION OF THE DELHI RAILWAY between the Beas and Umritsur will be opened before the end of October.

THE CINCHONA is so thriving in the N.W. Himalayas above Kangra, that Mr. John Mackey, the superintendent, hopes to be able to supply a pound of bark for analysis at the close of this rainy season.

THE FRENCH IN INDIA.—The population of the French possessions in India, comprising Pondicherry, Chandernagore, Karikal, Mahe, Yanacoon, and their districts, is, according to the last census, 229,000 souls. The superficial extent is 49,000 hectares, or 122,500 acres.

ROBBERY OF THE DARJEELING BANGHY MAIL.—The local paper states that the Darjeeling Banghy mail was robbed, on the 26th Sept., at a place called Rumbhool, a few hours only after it had been despatched from the post-office. The robbers were the Nepalese runners, and the responsibility is said, therefore, to rest entirely with the department. Perhaps the Postmaster-General of Bengal will inquire into this matter.

RAJAH OJODERAM v. KHAN SEEDER NUZZUR ALLY.—According to the Englishman, the prosecution of the suit of Rajah Ojoderam v. Khan Seeder Nuzzur Ally, for the possession of the ancestral estates of the former at Midnapore, is likely to lead to the re-opening of the question of the responsibility incurred by the late Mr. Henry Torrens, as agent to the Governor-General at Moorshedabad, in their purchase. If so, a very ugly story is likely to come out.—Friend of India, Oct. 3.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.—The presence of Colonel Strachey, R.E., Inspector General of Irrigation Works, will be required at Bombay before the end of the year. We regret this in so far as it will postpone the meeting, at Calcutta, of the Committee on Weights and Measures, of which he is president, till January, and make it impossible for legislation on the subject to take place till the session of 1868-69. Colonel Strachey, we believe, has prepared an exhaustive memorandum on the subject of weights and measures, which will facilitate a speedy arrival at definite conclusions by the committee.

LUCKNOW, Oct. 7.—There is but little local news of any kind to record. Mr. Strachey is expected back from Simla on the 25th, and Mr. St. George Tucker from England next month. The return of the latter gentleman was not expected so soon, and will cause a good deal of commotion among the higher officials. Sir George Couper a week ago relieved Colonel Barrow of the duties pertaining to the Judicial Commissionership. Lieutenant Montmorency, officiating deputy commissioner of Oonao, has been deputed by the Chief Commissioner to photograph all places of interest in Oudh, and will enter upon a tour at once with the above object. Energetic officers are preparing to get under canvas, and tourists, guide book in hand, are swarming about the lions of the place.—Delhi Gazette.

THE COURT OF BURMAH.—Eureka! we have found an item from our extreme Eastern frontier. Colonel Fytche has gone on his great mission to the Burmese capital. The powerful monarch of that warlike country is still determined to support the character given to his court by Lord Dalhousie, namely, that of being the most arrogant court in Asia. He has flatly refused to receive the Chief Commissioner unless he takes his boots off and humbly prostrates himself on the ground before him. Colonel Fytche, like a true Briton, has made a fight (we mean no pun) against this degradation, but the mild and obsequious Governor-General has compelled him to give way. In Colonel Yule's valuable work on Burmah there is a picture of a reception of a British embassy by the King and Queen of Burmah. The poor Britons are squatted bootless on the ground, and in an upper gallery, like a gemini of baboons, are seated the King and Queen of Burmah. It is a picture very humiliating to the British mind. But at that time the King was King of Burmah, and the embassy could not otherwise have approached him. But now that we have stripped him of the best half of his dominions, deprived him of his sea-board, and cooped him up in the cul-de-sac of his ancient territories as securely as a wild elephant in a kheddah, it appears monstrous that we should submit to his arrogant pretensions. Really these boot and shoe questions should be settled in a manner worthy of the British name, and our high position in the East.—Englishman, Oct. 5.

ARMY COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT.—The Supreme Government has resolved, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State for India, to add another grade to the permanent Department of the Army Commissariat. This will consist of eight officers with the designation of Sub-Assistant Commissary General, 3rd class, on a staff salary of Rupees 150 a month. This innovation is designed to obviate the inconvenience which has been found to arise from the existing practice of attaching officers holding regimental or other substantive appointments to officiate for lengthened periods in the Commissariat Department, in room of the officers of the permanent establishment absent on leave. Admission to this new grade will be governed by the rules hitherto applicable to the department in respect of probation and qualifying tests.

OFFICERS ON SICK LEAVE.—The Government of India has ruled that officers absent on sick leave in India cannot be held to exercise a trade or profession, the absentee allowance being a consequence of past service, and therefore are not subject to the licence tax. An officer is to be assessed on his permanent and substantive pay when he resumes duty, paying for a whole year if before the 1st November, and for a half year if after. In justice this should be applied to traders and professional men also.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF ANCIENT BUILDINGS.—The Bengal Government has been requested by the Supreme Government to draw up a list of all ancient architectural structures and remains and works of art in the Presidency, with a view to steps being taken to photograph, and, if possible, preserve them. The Governor General is of opinion that amateur photographers will give their services gratis if remunerated for travelling expenses. Dr. Simpson has gone to Assam for this purpose.

THE AMLAH OF THE SEALDAH SMALL CAUSE COURT.—The Small Cause Court of Sealdah must be in a happy condition when a suitor cannot find a pleader to act for him, because his suit involves a charge against the Nazir of the Court. We could scarcely believe that a single officer of a court could exercise so much influence on its pleaders, and yet a case lately occurred which showed that such was the fact. Under the new law uncertificated mooktears are not allowed to practise in Mofussil courts, but is it true, as we are informed, that uncertificated mooktears are suffered to prowl about the Sealdah Court, and that many of them are the dependents or proteges of the Nazir? We would recommend Mr. Bell, Judge of the Court, who promised well at the beginning, to look sharp after his amlah. He cannot too often remember that implicit confidence placed in a Mofussil amlah is not unfrequently liable to abuse.—Hindoo Patriot, Sept. 23.

TEA CULTIVATION IN ASSAM.—We have heard that it is the intention of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to write a very exhaustive minute on the whole tea question, based upon the information he has received and the observations he has made during his recent journey to that province. Under other circumstances we should have been very glad to see such a minute, for we believe that the Lieutenant-Governor is thoroughly honest in his intentions to obtain correct information, and to record his convictions of the true causes of the tea collapse, whatever those causes may be. But what information could he receive, and what observations could he possibly make, in the journey he made up the Burhampooter? To form correct opinions it is necessary to see the peopled districts, the plantations, the planters, the local authorities, and the labourers, and this can only be done by travelling through Lower, Central, and Northern Assam. And beyond two or three isolated spots on the banks of the river nothing can be seen of these districts in a voyage by steam. We do not think, then, that this question can be solved by any minute that the Lieutenant-Governor can write on the strength of his Assam experience.—Englishman.

MOUNTAIN BATTERIES.—The Pioneer expresses its satisfaction at the determination of Government to arm all the mountain batteries with the new seven-pound muzzle-loading bronze gun. Government has not yet decided whether it shall retain the twelve-pounder howitzer. If retained, a mountain battery would consist of two seven-pounder rifled guns and two twelve-pounder howitzers, than which it would be difficult to imagine a worse combination. The present is an excellent opportunity for discarding altogether the twelve-pounder howitzer, and forming a small five-and-a-half inch mortar battery for mountain service. One of these light field batteries should be converted into a mortar battery and stationed at Abbotabad, or if that be not sufficiently central, at Kohat, two guns at Dera Ismail Khan, and a detachment of two guns at Bunoo.

THE FALLS OF THE TONSE.—A correspondent of the Sindh News describes the falls of the Tonse river twenty miles due north of the town of Rewah, in Central India. The visitor comes suddenly upon a gigantic fissure, and from the eastern side of the chasm he beholds descending the opposite wall of rock, not a turbulent volume of water, but a veil of delicate gossamer spray, a fleecy mist, at least 500 feet clear into the abyss below. A unique charm of this beautiful cascade—seen only when attentively regarded—is the numerous and delicate jets into which the snowy vapour arranges itself in its descent. The basin below is a little lake of cool water in the hottest weather, frequented by alligators. The Rajahs of Rewah in the olden time used to punish felons by having them cast down the precipice. There is a dak bungalow at Mowgunge, seven or eight miles off. It has been often said that the only fine falls in India are those of Gairsoppa, in Bombay. But in the Himalayas, at the close of the rainy season, there are falls into the infant Sutlej and other streams which dwarf even Foyers, near Inverness.

A GREAT NATIVE SCANDAL.—There has been a great native scandal in the neighbourhood of Umballa. We give the story as it was told to us. It appears that some very important papers relating to the Maharajah of Puttiala had reached the office of the commissioner of the Umballa division. This fact somehow leaked out, and the result was that the box in which the papers were kept was stolen. The robbers got safely away with their booty, but were stopped on the road and arrested on suspicion, not being able to account for the box and its contents; they then confessed that they had been employed by Cool-bund Roy, the Dewan of the Puttiala State. This confession led to the arrest of the Dewan, and he is now in custody at Umballa on a charge of aiding and abetting in the robbery. If all we hear be true there is a regular intrigue on foot to procure the downfall of the Dewan, but it is to be hoped the Government will not suffer itself to be hoodwinked into playing the cards of his enemies. The fact of the robbers allowing themselves to be caught with the box of papers in their possession, considering they were professional thieves, looks very much as if they wished to be caught.

ARRIVAL OF THE TROOP SHIP "JUMNA."—The Jumna is 4,173 tons burthen, and left Plymouth on the 28th July; she made a very rapid passage to Trincomalee in spite of stopping at St. Vincent's, Simon's Bay, and Algoa Bay. She reached Trincomalee on the 8th September, where she stopped to coal, there being no coal at Simon's Bay. Between Trincomalee and the Sandheads she experienced exceedingly rough weather, and was at one time under a close reefed main top-sail. The machinery got a little out of order, and this will necessitate a thorough overhaul and a detention of some ten or twelve days. The Jumna will not be brought above Diamond Harbour. The following is a list of her passengers:—From Port Elizabeth—Lt. Col. Annesley, 10th Foot, Mrs. Annesley, 4 children and 1 servant. From Plymouth—Major Battersby, 60th Rifles, Mrs. Battersby, Governess, 4 children and 1 servant; Capt. Meade, R.A.; Lieutenant Penbey, R.A.; Riding Master Sampson, R.A.; Cornet McKay, 19th Hussars; Ensign Keighly, 11th Foot; Captain Stanley, 23rd Foot; Mrs. Stanley, two children, and one servant; Lieut. Webb, 36th Foot; Paymaster Manning, 38th Foot; Lieut. Westropp, 41st Foot; Capt. Seymour, 82nd Regt.; Ensign Bailey, 82nd Regt.; Ensign Chator, 91st Regt.; Lieut. McCall, 60th Rifles; Lieut. Franks, 107th Foot; Lieut. Hill, 107th Foot; Surgeon Thomson, 76th Regt., and Mrs. Thomson; Staff Assistant Surgeon O'Neill; Staff Assistant Surgeon McCartney; Staff Assistant Surgeon Fitzmaurice; Staff-Surgeon Macnamara, Mrs. Macnamara and one servant; 4 non-commissioned officers, and two wives of non-commissioned officers. We have heard complaints that there is only one bath-room for the officers and there are no Punkhas—grievances which the Marine Department here will no doubt rectify.

A TRAGEDY IN CENTRAL ASIA.—The full and reliable details which we have received of the murder of the aged Khan of Khoten by Yakob Kush Begi, the ruler of Yarkund, constitute a thoroughly Oriental tragedy. At the end of last year Kush Begi seems to have determined to carry out the plan he had formed when he expelled the Chinese from Yarkund, of making himself master of the whole of Little Tibet. He began by imprisoning the agent of the Khan of Khoten, who tried to despatch to his master intelligence of the intended treachery. The messengers were arrested and shot, and the agent, under the fear of death, disclosed all he knew of the resources of his master. Kush Begi then marched to Khoten at the head of a large force, and when within two days of the town, induced Habeeboollah Khan, with very great difficulty, to pay him a friendly visit. After being royally entertained, the Khan with his son and followers retired to rest and were at once made prisoners. The Khan's signet-ring was used by the traitor to order the chief men of Khoten to visit the Yarkund camp as a friendly alliance had just been formed. The leading officials left Khoten by one road, the Yarkund forces entered it by another, took the city quietly, slew the garrison, and secured a very large treasure in gold and silver. Khush Begi put the city under one of his officers as Governor, and distributed the ladies of the Khan's harem among his followers. But with heroism like that more than once recorded in Greek story, they formed a plot, and, seizing their opportunity when their new husbands were unarmed, killed many of them. On this Khush Begi slaughtered the Khan, a man of more than 80 years of age, his son and all of his followers who would not take service in Yarkund. He then marched on Aksu and took it, and by the latest intelligence, to 3rd September from Leh, was capturing Kucha. From the days of the Judges of Israel to the present time how Asiatic history repeats itself.—Friend of India.

FLOODS.—The floods with which the Nerbudda inundated the Guzerat and other districts in the Western Presidency have scarcely subsided when we hear of still more extensive inundations in Bengal. Much as Guzerat sometimes suffers from the overflowing of the Nerbudda and the Taptee, some of the most fertile districts of Bengal suffer still more from the flooding of such rivers as the Ganges and Burhampooter, as did Orissa last year from the Mahanuddy, for these great streams, fed by their numerous mountain tributaries, are never unlikely to overflow the low-lying alluvial fields on either side of them. Bengal was visited by several floods last year, each of which did more or less injury to the opium and the rice; but a really serious flood—when rivers which, in summer, resemble a thread of silver amid a desert of sand, become, in the rains, roaring torrents miles in breadth—has not been known in the fertile plains of Bengal for some twelve years past. This year another of those destructive floods have occurred; "never," it is said, "in the memory of man has such a flood inundated the districts on either side of the Ganges," as that which prevailed a fortnight ago from Rajeshaye to within 40 miles of Calcutta. The civil station of Rampore Bauleah has been partially washed away, and thousands of people have been rendered homeless, and deprived not only of the fruits of their past labour, but of the opportunity of earning a living in the meantime. Up to the 4th inst. the flood was still rising, and nothing but its rapid subsidence could prevent the neighbouring districts being inundated with thousands of starving poor. Before the occurrence of this calamity the rice crops were looking well; now, except in the most sheltered spots where there was no current, they must either have been carried away with the soil on which they grew, or buried beneath a deposit of mud and silt. The effect on the communications was precisely the same as happens in almost every part of India under like circumstances. From Kooztea, the Ganges terminus of the Eastern Bengal Railway, to within some 43 miles of the capital, the whole country presents the appearance of a vast inland sea. Railway bridges show unmistakable signs of distress, and embankments disappear bodily, rendering the running of through trains, if not an impossibility, at least a matter of great risk. The officials no doubt will do all they can to effect repairs; but their efforts must be of little avail till the water subsides.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE B. C. & R. S. N. COMPANY have determined to abandon the line between Colombo and Madras, a few months' working having proved it unprofitable.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN FERRERS.—We regret to learn of the death of Captain Ferrers, 3rd Madras Cavalry. The deceased officer had only just rejoined from England. He served during the mutiny at Sholapore with part of his regiment.

H. E. THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS, who is again on tour, arrived at Erode on the 8th Oct., and left the same day for Dindugal. Two bandies belonging to his baggage train were upset in the Oomrawutty river, and a large quantity of plate was lost.

THE MADRAS MUNICIPAL BILL.—The following is the reply of the Hon. G. N. Taylor to the letter addressed to him by the committee appointed to draw up the petition against the Municipal Bill. Mr. Taylor is the representative of the Madras Presidency in the Governor General's Council, and was requested by the committee to be so good as to give his support to the recommendations of the petitioners. We observe that Mr. Taylor is silent as to his own action in the matter. We trust that the papers which appear to have been forwarded to Government will enlighten us on this point, and also that they will be made public without delay. Mr. Taylor's letter arrived by the mail steamer Candia, we believe, and Sir John Lawrence's decision on the petition was doubtless forwarded by the same mail:—To J. McIVER, Esq., Madras.—Sir,—I have to acknowledge your letter of the 5th of August, giving cover to copy of a petition to his Excellency the Governor General, containing certain objections to the Municipal Bill which has been passed by the Madras Council, and bearing numerous signatures of the inhabitants of Madras. In reply, I beg to state for the information of the meeting of which you were chairman, that the petition has been very carefully considered by the Governor General along with the other papers which accompanied the Bill, and the result has been forwarded to the Madras Government and will doubtless be communicated to you.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant, G. N. TAYLOR, Member of the Governor General's Council. Simla, Sept. 16, 1867.—Madras Times, Sept. 30.

LORD NAPIER returned to Madras on Saturday morning last. Very little has been heard about this visit to the Pulney Hills, which seems to have partaken more of a pleasure-trip than an official tour of inspection. Colonel Orr, the secretary to Government in the Public Works Department, accompanied the Governor throughout, and his presence gave something like an official importance to the tour. People are rather puzzled, however, to know what official service the Public Works Secretary could render on this occasion. Though the Government have long been contemplating some irrigation projects in the Madura district, it is not known that they have had similar intentions with regard to the Pulney Hills. It is hoped that Lord Napier will make known the results of his recent peregrinations through the Presidency. The public expected great things from the Bellary tour especially, but nothing has been said about it as yet. It is rumoured, however, that his lordship's visit does not promise to be characterised by increased vigour in the prosecution of irrigation works. This, we think, will be a source of disappointment both here and in England. We may perhaps learn by-and-bye what the Governor's views are on this important subject. His lordship's opinions on all questions connected with public works are of course considerably influenced by Colonel Orr, who has earned the reputation of being anything but a "Progressionist." It is said that the Colonel is to be reappointed to his office at the expiration of his five years' tenure, but it is to be hoped that Lord Napier will be better advised. Colonel Orr's re-appointment would be objectionable on many grounds. It would in the first place check that promotion which his juniors not unreasonably look forward to; the Colonel again is understood to be strongly opposed to some of the irrigation schemes of Colonel Strachey, and it would therefore be very undesirable to have two doctors squabbling about theories while our public works are being neglected; and lastly, a little new blood is evidently required in the Madras Public Works Department, the present head of which, though generally acknowledged to be an able man, is crotchety and obstructive.—Madras Times, Oct. 8.

COMMISSARIAT FOR ABYSSINIA.—The Government of Bombay have resolved that the following officers shall form the Commissariat Department of the Abyssinian Expeditionary Force:—Controller of Supply and Transport—Lieutenant-Colonel H. W. Holland, Bombay Staff Corps.—Deputy Commissary-General—Lieutenant-Colonel A. W. Lucas, Bombay Staff Corps.—Director of Land Transport—Major R. P. Warden, Bombay Staff Corps.—Assistant Commissaries-General, 1st Class—Major F. P. Mignon, Bombay Staff Corps; Captain M. Willoughby, Bombay Staff Corps; and Major G. R. F. Bardin, Madras Staff Corps.—Assistant Commissary-General, 2nd Class—Captain H. P. Hawkes, Madras Staff Corps.—Deputy-Assistant Commissaries-General, 1st Class—Captain R. T. Clarke, Bombay Staff Corps; Captain B. F. Heysham, Madras Staff Corps; Major J. Thacker, Bombay Staff Corps; and Captain A. Phelps, Bombay 11th Regiment, N.I.—Deputy Assistant Commissaries-General, 2nd Class—Lieutenant A. M. Shewell, Bombay Staff Corps; and Lieutenant G. F. Bryant, Bombay Staff Corps. The selection of three more officers as Sub-Assistant Commissaries General, 1st class, will be named hereafter. In case of casualties occurring, promotion will be made as if the whole of the above officers belonged to the same service.

SIR GASPARD LE MARCHANT is expected in Madras this day, and will, it is supposed, quit these inhospitable shores for ever by the next P. and O. steamer. There is a rumour in military circles to the effect that Major-General Sir J. Rowland Smyth, commanding the centre division, is also about to resign, in consequence of the new chief, Lieut.-General McCleverty, being a junior officer. Other reasons are also mentioned, though we cannot vouch for their accuracy. The gallant Major-General, for some reason or other, is not very popular with Madras society, and has recently been going to law with the Ootacamund Club. General Smyth objected, it appears, to pay a bill of the club on the ground that the charge for a certain pie "made to order" was exorbitant. The nature of the pie was not stated in evidence, but, seeing that the magistrate compelled the gallant officer to pay the price the club put upon it, we may conclude perhaps that it was a rather "humble" one. Major-General Duke, commanding the southern division, will act as commander-in-chief, pending the arrival of General McCleverty. —Times, Oct. 8.

DHOOLY BEARERS FOR ABYSSINIA.—The steamer Krishna left this port for Bombay on the 2nd Oct. with 500 "ferocious" dhooly bearers for the Abyssinian Expedition, under the command of Lieutenant Smith. Captain Twentyman, 18th Hussars, Acting Assistant Adjutant General at Bellary, has been appointed to the command of a Transport Corps, and Lieut. Pearce of the 76th Regiment has also joined the corps. The Bombay Government has applied to Madras for the services of a considerable number of junior officers to serve with the native regiments in the Abyssinian Expedition. It appears that Sir Robert Napier is not satisfied that his regiments are sufficiently officered, and being determined not to risk his own or the Sepoys' reputation, he has applied for more officers. Sir Robert's application has caused something very like a sensation amongst military men, and is looked upon as a practical condemnation of the present organisation of the Indian army. The cry for another re-organisation is already being raised, and the necessity of it is becoming painfully apparent on all sides.

BOMBAY.

PROBABLE RESULTS OF THE DEFEAT OF SHERE ALI.

It is impossible for us on this side of India to work ourselves into such high political fervour about the Kilkenny-cat warfare in Aff-ghanistan as do our brethren in Calcutta; therefore we think the Bombay Gazette misconceived the public demand when on Saturday it hastened to issue as an "extra" the news of the defeat of Shere Ali and the death of Fyz Mahomed, his best general. Though we have as yet received no confirmation of this news circulated by our contemporary, the account given by its correspondent is circumstantial enough to induce confidence in its correctness. So far as the civil strife in Afghanistan is of any consequence to us the event now reported is, indeed, sufficiently important to attract a little renewed attention to the affairs of those savage and restless chieftains; but the defeat of the legitimate pretender—if such a term be admissible—and the death of that valiant soldier of fortune, Fyz Mahomed, ought to make some of our contemporaries a little less confident in forecasting the affairs of a country in respect of which their judgment seems ever at fault. Thus only the other day, in one of its stock alarmist paragraphs, the Friend of India said:—"Shere Ali is the legitimate Ameer, and with Persian and Russian aid he is sure to oust Afzul Khan before we shall be forced to abandon our policy of non-intervention." Of course, according to the Friend, Shere Ali has had "Persian and Russian aid," for it quotes, more than half approvingly, the gup of the bazaars to the effect that "Russia has entered into a league according to which Shere Ali will be re-seated in Cabul, giving up Herat to Persia to hold it until, on the fall of Constantinople, she receives Bagdad, and the tombs venerated by Shias as the reward of her subservience." The utter defeat of Shere Ali and his best general shows that this "Russian league" is as much of a mare's nest as the recently paraded political meeting at Meshed between the son of Shere Ali and the Persian Shah. This league, as the credulous Friend is assured by its spies in the "bazaar," is intended to place that much battered stage property "the Colossus of the North" with "one foot on the Pacific and the other on the Persian Gulf." Our contemporary only admits "that this may be a dream, and it is an exaggeration;" but, we ask, why give currency to such monstrous dreams, which are so far inconsistent with political and physical geography that a native pupil in our high schools might well be ashamed to indite them?

But these outbursts of Russophobia, although now harmless, are wonderfully irrepressible, and, to parody the old line—"dread springs eternal in the Indian breast." No sooner has the rout of Shere Ali smashed the Friend's imaginary figment of a "Russian league," than our contemporary the Gazette takes up the wondrous tale—not of history and facts, but of prediction—and assures us that a "league" between Shere Ali and Russia is now "inevitable," and that this "must at once lead to the establishment on the Afghan throne of a Russian puppet as the prelude of, and preparation for absolute Muscovite occupation." That there may be no mistake as to the sources of our contemporary's knowledge of these arrangements, we subjoin the following piece of information:—"He (the defeated Ameer) still holds the great prize of Herat and the adjoining country, and if news of this victory has reached the Russian cantonments at Merv, the covetous eyes of Russian officers are already strained towards that city, one of the keys to India; and overtures of assistance to him are being brooded over in the subtle Muscovite breast." It is manifest that there is no keeping up with a writer who, like the Friend, can draw political portents from the gup of the bazaars; but that is nothing to the Gazette, which knows exactly what is "being brooded over in the Muscovite breast," and we confess that clairvoyance of this kind, like the cut of the Sydenham trousers, "defies competition." Seeing that our contemporary's version is not curtailed by physical obstacles, it should have told us all about those Russian cantonments at Merv. What size are they? When did these bogus Muscovites cross the Oxus? How many troops are massed at Merv? Do they "eat the country," as Theodorus bids his soldiers do, or are they supported with money and stores from Orenburg and St. Petersburg? Information on these points would throw light upon many things which are wholly irreconcilable at present. For instance, we gave the other day—as the latest authentic information available in India relative to the Turkomans and the Cossacks—an account of a struggle, and probably a final one, between the Ameer of Bokhara and a Russian force; but that took place at Yany-Kurgan, a station many miles north of Samarcund. This battle, which was invited by the fanatical Ameer, took place some three months ago, and if since then those terrible Russians have marched three or four hundred miles and taken up a military position, they are a match for anything recorded by Mr. Baring-Gould in the "Myths of the Middle Ages." It is, however, rather noticeable that these writers—who speak of Russian movements in Central Asia in terms that might lead one to suppose the Cossacks were shod with skates or supplied with wings—do really know better of what those countries consist than would appear from their extravagant political theories. Thus the Gazette tells us of Shere Ali, that now after his defeat "the Muscovite chains will be woven around him in effectual secrecy amid the deserts and fastnesses of Turkistan." There is evidently a little confusion of thought here; for if poor Shere Ali is to have "chains woven around him," and if this is to be done "in effectual secrecy"—that is, one might presume, in a dungeon—and if all this is to happen to the Ameer "amid the fastnesses of Turkistan," far away to the north of the Syr-Daria, one thing is certain, that he cannot do much to disturb the peace of Afghanistan. But it is on credulous and absurd vaticinations of this kind that some journalists attempt to found a serious argument for our meddling in Afghanistan!

It must be confessed that we are unable to muster sufficient respect for such an argument as would induce us to attempt to meet it seriously, though, indeed, a close inspection always shows that it is too intangible to be grasped. Happily for India it has now a ruler who has proved himself superior to those political superstitions about the "Colossus of the North," "Muscovite intrigues," and those "designs on Afghanistan" which are gratuitously invented on behalf of Russia. And it is not only Sir John Lawrence who deserves credit for having firmly set down his foot against the deceitful and ruinous policy of counter-intrigues in Afghanistan against an imaginary enemy, but the whole Government of India is steadfastly set against any schemes to pamper the restlessness and dread which the Friend is ever and anon doing its best to foster. The Government of India will not, we are persuaded, be moved by any clamour to imperil the impregnable position we now hold on the Indus. The experienced members of the Supreme Government, whilst they know that we could at any time take up either a political or military position in Afghanistan, also see clearly that to do so now would be to invite, nay to create, the very danger of which the alarmist politicians display such an unseemly dread. These fratricidal struggles in Afghanistan are, we fully allow, painful to behold. This civil strife would, indeed, at once cease were a foreign enemy—ourselves, the Persians, or Russians—to enter their barren land on any pretext; but the terms of the truce in the bitter tribal quarrels would be a concentrated, ubiquitous, and remorseless struggle with the invader or interloper. No one dare question the boldness or determination of the present

Viceroy; but the journalists who rail against him for his attitude of firm restraint might at least give him credit for ordinary sagacity in refusing to imperil the British name and the English flag by gratuitously challenging a bootless and inglorious strife with an implacable foe. If the Russians should ever venture on taking up a position in Afghanistan, they will find such a foe—is it not common sense to allow the Muscovite instead to find such a foe if he chooses?—Times of India.

THE NEW BANK OF BOMBAY.

Considerable uncertainty has existed and not a little dissatisfaction has been felt amongst the outside public because of the Bombay Government not having yet made fully plain its intentions with regard to the new Bank of Bombay. There are three conditions in respect of which it is essential that the intentions of Government should ere this have been distinctly expressed, in order to enable the organising committee to see its way, and to give confidence to the public who with commendable alacrity have already applied to subscribe for nine-tenths of the whole capital proposed for the new bank. These three essential points are:—

1. The Local Government's partnership in the new bank.
2. The proportion of capital to be subscribed before engaging to entrust the Treasury business to it.
3. The minimum amount of standing deposit that the Government will keep with the new institution.

As to the first of these questions, which is by far the most important, it has long been understood—though not to this day formally announced—that, notwithstanding the objections to State partnership in banking which are known to be entertained by the Secretary of State and the Finance Minister, the Government of India has deliberately decided that at this juncture the Bombay Government must, as a shareholder in the old bank, take up a proprietary interest in the new one. Mr. Massey, it is understood, has recorded a well argued minute in which he endeavours to show the inexpediency as well as the contravention of principle involved in the State accepting a share in joint stock monetary institutions. The paper, in which the majority of the Supreme Council concurred, to the effect that in present circumstances the State must transfer its proprietary interest from the old to the new Bombay Bank, was, we believe, from the skilful pen of H.E. Sir W. Mansfield. It is understood that both the Secretary of State and his Excellency, Mr. Fitzgerald, are also quite prepared to accept proprietorship in the new bank—but the Bombay Government has as yet given no sign.

With regard to the third point named above, there is no practical difficulty; but as to the second it is understood the local government desires that a larger amount of capital shall be paid up before March next than the 50 lakhs (10,000 shares), as arranged in the prospectus. This is thought needful by Government as a guarantee that the reserved issue will ultimately be available. The way in which this at present is put on behalf of the Government makes the proposition appear more unreasonable and injudicious. It is demanded that, as regards the reserved issue of 10,000 shares—which it has been intended shall be for the old shareholders—Rs. 100 per share shall be called up on the 1st of March. This demand is almost like breaking faith with the old shareholders, on whose behalf the arrangement was made in order that they might avail themselves of the assets of the old bank in taking up shares in the new one. There is no excuse whatever for this pedantic caution on the part of the authorities, for whatever may be the fate of the old shareholders the new capital is sure to be taken up if the prospectus—to which Government itself is virtually committed—be not departed from. These and other views entertained by the Local Government were informally communicated to the committee on Saturday last, when a close discussion took place. After various suggestions towards meeting the wishes of Government without departing from the plan marked out by the prospectus, the committee felt themselves compelled to abide by the stipulations already made with the public, and it was decided to inform his Excellency of this. It is expected that this step will elicit a formal and full communication from Government on all the questions involved in the reorganisation of the new bank.

Another interesting question has been raised as to whether the Local Government, in virtue of its large proprietorship, shall take part in the ordinary management of the bank, or shall exercise a systematic and independent supervision over its accounts and the results of its business. The wish of the committee, and probably a majority of the shareholders, would be, no doubt, that Government servants should sit at the board as heretofore; but the Secretary of State's view is that the preferable course would be for the bank to dispense with official directors in the management, and instead of that for Government to institute a regular and independent audit of all the concerns of the bank. There is obviously much to be said in favour of this course; and when the system became understood, and were it firmly carried out, the bulk of the shareholders would see that their interests might be watched over rather more closely than has been the case in the old spendthrift concern. There may be urged these two objections—first, the paucity of men suitable as directors; secondly, that Government has always had the power to institute the most rigid audit at any time. In reply, it may be said, the circle from whence directors are selected may easily be widened; and, secondly, though the Government has always had statutory power to make an effective investigation into the bank's affairs, not one Governor in a generation has the requisite determination to face unpopularity with the leading men of the commercial community, still less would his Council be likely to sanction his bringing three civil servants to trial, and in some such light would be regarded an investigation into the result of their action as directors. Although the various unsettled questions relating to the constitution of the new bank are here fully stated, it is not desired to offer a shred of excuse on behalf of the authorities concerned, for their having allowed this subject of primary commercial importance to drift on as they have done. There can be no justification for the delay that has taken place; and as on the 15th proximo half the capital of the first issue (a sum of £250,000) is to be paid up, many important matters will in the interim have to be settled by telegram instead of by the usual methods of official consultation. Nevertheless, there is ground for thinking that his Excellency the Governor of Bombay is now convinced of the urgency of the matter, and will make all needful efforts to support the committee in their great undertaking. Nothing further has transpired in regard to any investigation of the causes that led to the ruin of the old bank, and if the proprietors at home are not determined enough to secure this through the means of an independent and skilful English liquidator, the matter must be left to the chance results of a parliamentary debate, which will, no doubt, be raised on the subject.—Times of India, Oct. 4.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ESTATE OF THE DADY SETT FAMILY, comprising the village of Malhar, Toolsey, Aran, and Canara, in Salsette, has been sold to Ahmedbhoj Hubbibhoj, Esq., for about Rs. 2,15,000.

THE HON. H. L. BAYLEY has been elected chairman of the Justices of the Peace for Bombay, vice Mr. A. R. Scoble resigned.

H. M.'s SCREW CORVETTE "SATELLITE," 17 guns, Edye, arrived in Bombay harbour yesterday morning from Trincomalee.—Times of India, Oct. 4.

EXPORT OF COTTON.—During the month of August last, 33,186,664 lbs. of cotton, valued at Rs. 1,33,85,233, were shipped from Bombay. Of this nearly 7,140,000 lbs. went to China, a sure sign of falling prices.

THE MERCANTILE CREDIT ASSOCIATION.—The Bombay High Court sanctioned the declaration of a compromise of six annas in the rupee to the creditors of the Mercantile Credit and Financial Association, of which Mr. Bendir is the official liquidator.

THE SASSOON HOSPITAL AT POONA.—This, the most magnificent building at Poona (and certainly one of the finest in the Bombay Presidency), is now completed, and will, we understand, be inaugurated by his Excellency the Governor as soon as arrangements are made for the accommodation of the patients.

A SUBSCRIPTION is now being raised on behalf of Captain Kennedy and the officers of the ship Waubojee, who lost the whole of their property by the destruction of that vessel by fire. Some £250 has at present been collected. The cause of the fire was the culpable negligence of two of the seamen, who went into the hold at night to steal beer, and one of them accidentally threw a lighted candle into the beer; an explosion was the immediate result, and the fire thereby spread to other parts of the ship.

INCOME-TAX AND STAMP REVENUE COLLECTED IN BOMBAY.—The following statement showing the gross and net collections on account of income-tax and stamp revenue of the Bombay Presidency (including the general and political treasuries subordinate thereto) during the month of July, 1867, is published in the Bombay Government Gazette of Oct. 3: Income-tax, amount assessed, Rs. 189; gross collections, Rs. 163; refunds Rs. 398. Stamp revenue, gross collections, Rs. 4,63,596; refunds, Rs. 24,455; net collections, Rs. 4,39,141.—Gazette, Oct. 4.

DEATHS FROM APOPLEXY ON BOARD THE STEAMER "NUBIA."—The steamer from Suez, the steamer Nubia, which arrived in the roads last evening, brings the following intelligence:—Sept. 16.—Lat. 12 deg. 46 min. north, long. 45 deg. 36 min. east, Lieutenant D. H. Spier, Naval Agent, steamer Nubia, died at sea of heat apoplexy. Sept. 17.—Lat. 12 deg. 47 min. north, long. 45 deg. 56 min. east, Captain H. B. Bromley, Paymaster 108th Regiment, died at sea of heat apoplexy.—Times of India, Sept. 27.

THE MAZAGON LAND AND PRESS COMPANY.—An extraordinary meeting of the shareholders of the Mazagon Land and Press Company was held at the office of the secretaries and treasurers, Messrs. Ritchie, Stuart, and Co., on Friday, to consider the financial position of the company; J. G. Smith, Esq., occupied the chair. After some discussion the following resolution was adopted by a large majority:—"That a committee be appointed to take into consideration the financial position of the company, and, in conjunction with the directors, take such immediate measures as may be necessary, reporting their progress to the shareholders within three weeks from this date."

BOMBAY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—At the annual meeting of the Chamber on Sept. 30th, the Hon. Alexander Brown in the chair, it was proposed by the Chairman, seconded by W. E. Crum, Esq., of Messrs. W. and A. Graham and Co.,—That the Committee for the ensuing year be as follows:—Chairman: The Hon. G. Foggo, of Messrs. Forbes and Co. Deputy Chairman: James Bogie, Esq., of Messrs. Wallace and Co.
